Once More—Come West.
Long Life, Sunshine.
Power Unlimited.
Farrell, Sloan, Ford.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 13.

IN MAKING plans for travel Americans should remember that California is a summer resort as well as a winter resort.

Today, in this city the climate is much like that of New York in the middle of June—cool, bracing.

YOU should come west, see everything between the two oceans, then travel industriously up and down the American side of this biggest ocean.

S. W. STRAUS, intelligent American who started in Chicago and has spread all over the country, came out here and made a few purchases about nine years ago. He bought among other things 22 acres on Wilshire boulevard for $300,000. He has been offered, and has refused, $2,000,000 for a strip 150 feet deep and 600 feet long, on the boulevard. If he sold that, he would have 20 of his 22 acres left, with plenty of room for his Ambassador Hotel.

THE Biltmore Hotel opened its new addition, adding 500 rooms, last year, and is crowded already.

This city moves forward, and its population of 1,400,000 grows like a rolling snowball.

A SEAT on the Los Angeles stock exchange cost $30,000 three years ago. It costs $150,000 today. You may remember that this column suggested a seat as a profitable purchase.

LOS ANGELES stores like stores in New York and Chicago are establishing branches outside of the congested downtown districts. "Bullock's," an ably managed store, has opened a big branch in the residence and retail district of Wilshire boulevard called "Bullock's Wilshire Boulevard."

WHEN George Young, of the Los Angeles Examiner, and Dr. Barham, of the Los Angeles Herald, were urging day in and day out the building of the Boulder Dam it was said that the cost could not be paid off in fifty years, because "Southern California could not absorb 1,000,000 horsepower so quickly."

Dr. Elwood Mead, in charge of the dam building, under the Secretary of the Interior, told Denver, yesterday, that the National Government has received from the Los Angeles municipal plant, the Southern California Edison Company, and other power companies, bids for double the power available from the proposed dam.

It is now suggested that the dam be built 25 feet higher, greatly increasing its power supply. And soon another dam farther up will have to be constructed to supply more power.

THESE details of profit and progress may sound sordid. But they interest everybody in the United States.

The forty-eight states are one.

Whatever helps any part of the United States or any citizen of the United States helps the whole country. And whatever hurts any place or person hurts everybody.

TO SAY that millions of people in the East could find on this coast long life, plenty of sunshine, a perfect climate, summer and winter, fertile soil, unlimited power, is to send good news to the whole country.

EVERYBODY is glad to hear that his uncle in Australia is doing well, he MAY get some of that uncle's money.

Everybody should be glad to hear that his brother Americans in Los Angeles, San Diego, San Francisco, Seattle, all along the whole coast are doing well. He is CERTAIN to share in that growing prosperity.

GREAT industrialists of the United States, Alfred Sloan, Jr., the head of General Motors; Henry Ford; President Farrell, of the United States Steel Corporation, should and eventually will establish important plants on this coast.

Many of them have made a start.

GENERAL MOTORS has assembling plants up and down the coast, so has Henry Ford.

The United States Steel Corporation has bought the Columbia Steel Company, most important on the coast, with headquarters in San Francisco. Mr. Farrell evidently knows that there is cheap power and plenty of iron here. If necessary he can bring his special ores from Cuba all the way by water to cheap power plants on the edge of the Pacific.

SEE this country, all of it, between the two oceans, from Canada to Mexico.

You can come by many railroads, by ship through the Canal, or by any one of 24,000,000 American automobiles.

NO EXCUSE FOR NOT COMING.

NATION-WIDE PLUNGING ROCKETS STOCK

Rise Sweeps Whole Market Up; Wall Street Looks for Split-Up of Shares Soon

By W. S. COUSINS
International News Service Financial Editor.

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—The nation-wide buying demand for United States Steel stocks swept the market off its feet today and supplied most of the bullish momentum to the move in other steel, electrical, manufacturing and industrial stocks.

After a short reaction at the opening, the result of a small accumulation of over-night selling orders, "big steel" raced ahead in one of the most spectacular movements of the year.

HITS NEW HIGH

In the early afternoon, steel common hung up an all-time high price record at 240, up 11 points for the day and 27 points from Saturday's low price. The rise added about $80,000,000, to the total value of the stock.

Rumors of a special directors' meeting today were also spiked, and it was stated officially that only the regular finance committee meeting would take place. Directors of the Steel Corporation will meet on August 27, but no melon is expected until later in the year.

Bethlehem's new jump to 128½ carried the stock 3 points above the best previous high record. At today's price Bethlehem was up 10 points above the high of last week and 46 points above the low of the year. Crucible Steel, Vanadium, American Steel Foundries and Youngstown advanced about 2 points on the average.

CALL MONEY DROPS

To help matters along for the bulls, call money eased off to 7 per cent in the early afternoon, and the Wall street bulletins reported plenty of money in sight for stock market uses. General Electric forged ahead to 387 for a gain of 7 points and new advances of 1 to 4 points were recorded for Westinghouse, American Can, American Telegraph and Telephone, American Tobacco and other favorites. Chesapeake and Ohio led the rails today, moving up about 7 points, to 264.

THREATS SENT HELEN WILLS

CHICAGO, Aug. 13.—(INS.)—Postal authorities and police here cooperated today in seeking the author of anonymous death-threat letters received during the past week by Helen Wills, champion tennis player, at her home in Berkeley, Cal.

Miss Wills is in New York. Last week she led America to victory over the English women tennis stars in the Wightman cup matches at Forest Hills.

Dr. C. A. Wills, father of the tennis champion, told police that a man who gave the name of John Bowden, and declaring himself to be the writer of the letters, recently appeared at the Berkeley residence and demanded to see Miss Wills.

When the father replied she was not at home the intruder became abusive. A short struggle ensued, and "Bowden" fled.

Quake Starts Fight Between Boy Twins

TORONTO, Aug. 13.—(AP.)—The usual grist of strange experiences followed Monday's quake, but top prize goes to the town of Weston. There two boys, twins, had to be separated by family and neighbors when a fist fight resulted from the insistence of each that the other was to blame for repeated shaking of his bed, preventing sleep.

BUC SHAKEUP NEAR; HURLER SENT HOME

By CHARLES J. DOYLE
Staff Correspondent.

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 13—A drastic shakeup in the ranks of the Pirates was promised today when Manager Donnie Bush sent Pitcher Fred Fussell home for breaking the club training rules and intimated that similar doses would be meted out to certain other Corsairs unless they displayed a willingness to give their best in the team's fight to overtake the Chicago Cubs in the National League pennant fight.

Fussell's punishment marks the second time that he has been "set down" this season. He was fined $100 in the spring training period after being charged with drinking intoxicants, the same charge held against him today.

SUSPENSION LIKELY

It is expected that the southpaw pitcher will be indefinitely suspended without pay upon his return to Pittsburgh. Fussell, Bush intimated, was given this summary discipline as an example to others who might take the training rules lightly.

Manager Bush, desperate as a result of the Pirates' poor showing in recent weeks, is prepared to rule with an iron hand, and other members of the Pittsburgh club will follow Fussell home unless the Bucs take a decided brace.

DREYFUSS SILENT

Barney Dreyfuss, president of the Pittsburgh Baseball Club, today said that he had not as yet received any official information from Manager Donie Bush regarding the disciplining of Fred Fussell, Pirate pitcher, for breaking the club training rules, and that the announcement made by the Sun-Telegraph this morning was the first news that he had received regarding the action.

Fussell was sent home today, but Dreyfuss was not prepared to say what penalty might be meted out when he arrives here.

The extent of Fussell's punishment apparently has not been decided upon by Manager Bush, but the boss of the team is determined to discourage the breaking of training rules by any player. Fussell is suspended and is not a member of the club, said Manager Bush who gave out the information a few minutes before the Pirates left for Albany this morning.

USE OF THIRD DEGREE DENIED

Defendant's Nerve Slipping As Case Nears Conclusion; Outline 6 Possible Verdicts

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN.
International News Service.

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 13.—Dr. James H. Snook was "highly self-possessed" when he was undergoing a grilling after his arrest for the slaying of Theora Hix, young campus beauty. This was the testimony today of Harry E. French, chief of police of Columbus, at the trial of the ex-college professor for first degree murder.

"Snook was the most self-composed prisoner that I have ever helped interrogate in 29 years," testified French.

"SNEERED AT QUESTIONS"

"He seemed amused while he was being questioned. He wore a sneering smile. He was never ruffled. He tilted back in his chair and talked to us in a most unconcerned manner. He was highly self-possessed."

French testified that Snook finally confessed. He declared emphatically that Snook did say that after hitting the girl with the hammer that he slashed her jugular vein "to relieve her suffering."

FINAL WITNESS

French was listed as the final witness of the trial. Closing arguments will follow and then, after the court gives his instructions, the case will go to the jury—probably tomorrow.

Police Chief French told the jury that when Snook was ready to confess he was offered the use of a typewriter, but declined, saying he preferred to dictate it to a stenographer. This he did, according to the witness.

"Were any threats or promises made to Dr. Snook before he signed the confession?" French was asked by Assistant Prosecutor Paul C. Hicks.

"No," replied the police chief. "Chief French, didn't you say to Dr. Snook: 'Doctor, now that FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Aug. 13.—The Graf Zeppelin with 20 passengers, a crew of 41 and a cargo of mail, will start on its nearly 7,000-mile flight to Tokio Thursday morning between 3 and 4 a. m. (Wednesday between 10 and 11 p. m., Pittsburgh time).

This definite announcement was made by Commander Eckener to me last night on my return from Munich, and after he had conferred with Capt. Fleming and his other officers.

The commodore gave two reasons for not starting sooner: First, it is not certain that all the fuel gas will be transferred to the Zeppelin by that time, and second, the promise of more favorable weather assuring a speedier flight. Dr. Eckener said:

"There is a dirty atmospheric area in the northern Urals which I will give 24 hours more to get out of our way. Moreover, the tightening of the Graf's skin will

MYRNA DARBY, STAR, VERY ILL

Miss Darby was forced to retire from the cast of Ziegfeld's "Whoopee" when a peculiar illness followed the severe sunburn she courted.

She was a clerk in Pittsburgh's prohibition enforcement office until she ran away from home to go on the stage in 1925.

Her first stage bit was as a bridesmaid in "Able's Irish Rose" in Pittsburgh.

The $29,000 is left "to procure medical attention to the sick and needy who could not secure such attention without the aid of this fund, to render financial aid and assistance to aged and infirm people of the white race, and for the maintenance or partial maintenance of such persons in a home."

The will further urges that the trustees render aid to as many persons as possible. The Commonwealth Trust Company is named executor of the will.

Actor Denied as Father By John Gilbert Dies

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Aug. 13.—(AP.)—John Pringle, 67, actor and veteran head of stock companies in New York and Chicago, known as the father of John Gilbert, screen star, is dead.

Gilbert refused to recognize Pringle, who was his mother's first husband, as his father, saying his mother had told him he was born of a second marriage to a man named Gilbert.

Pringle, who, since his retirement from the stage four years ago, had been employed in films, clung to his contention that his divorced wife, the screen player's mother, did not reveal the facts of his parentage to young Gilbert. The widow, Mrs. Florence Pringle, also survives.

G. O. P. CHIEFS TO INSIST MALONE OR KLINE QUIT RACE

BOSSES SEEK HARMONY IN PRIMARY

18 Candidates for 5 Seats In Council; 9 Running for Sheriff; 3 for Controller

Conferences on the mayoralty situation are being continued today by former State Chairman W. L. Mellon and other Republicans.

They are expected first of all to make an effort to persuade either Mayor Charles H. Kline or Councilman James F. Malone to withdraw from the race.

Supporters of both insist that such an effort will be useless. Failing that, the leaders will throw their influence to either one or the other. Announcement of their choice may not be made until the campaign is well under way.

Talk of an organization "harmony" candidate was effectively quieted when only Kline, Malone and Judge Richard W. Martin, running as an independent, filed nominating petitions.

CHAOTIC SITUATION

The petitions filed revealed a chaotic situation in the Republican primary. There are three entries in the mayoralty fight, three for controller, 18 for five council places, nine for sheriff and 14 for jury commissioner. Coroner W. J. McGregor is unopposed for renomination.

Councilman Daniel Winters created a stir yesterday when he filed for controller against Henry Oliver Evans, the present incumbent. Another aspirant for the position is Thomas D. Thomas. Edward Townsend, who had taken out nominating papers, did not file.

The first mayoralty papers to reach the commissioners' office were those of Malone, carried by Assistant United States District Attorney Ralph H. Smith and Benjamin Lencher. They had approximately 750 signatures, including that of Controller Evans. Judge Martin's petitions, with 2,485 names, were filed by Attorney John Frankel.

15 WARD CHIEFS FOR KLINE

Mayor Kline personally filed his petition, containing 114 names, including those of 15 Republican ward chairmen and Councilmen W. Y. English, John S. Herron and Winters. He is said to have hundreds of other petitions with thousands of additional signatures. The other aspirants also reported additional filed petitions in their hands, although only 10 signatures are needed.

Councilmen English, Herron, P. J. McArdle and Harry A. Little filed for re-election. Well-known political figures who filed councilmanic petitions were Magistrate E. M. Hough, Magistrate William J. Soost, Representative Michael Muldowney and Lieut. of Detectives T. D. Malone. Others entered in this fight are Mrs. Anna Winner, Roger McKelvey, R. J. McGrath, Robert Boston, Ervin Brenner, Robert S. Craig, the Rev. H. V. T. Hightower, a Negro clergyman; C. B. Connelly, Franklin B. Booth, former controller, and T. B. Chapman. Sheriff Robert H. Braun, frequently mentioned as a possibility, did not file. Neither did A. D. Brandon, magistrate of Morals Court.

NINE OUT FOR SHERIFF

The sheriff contest drew petitions from former Commissioner Robert S. Cain; Franklin T. McQuaide, formerly house detective of the William Penn Hotel; Squire A. W. McMillen, Carnegie; Representative Arthur Storer, now a deputy; Squire A. T. Lorch, of Allison Park; Clyde S. Edeburn, former head of the city detective bureau; John "Honus" Wagner; James "Troubles" McInerney, and former Police Commissioner William S. Kane, who is said to have the support of Commissioner C. C. McGovern and various reform organizations.

Jury Commissioner James M. Moore filed for renomination. In the field against him are Chris McCormick, a Twenty-second Ward leader; Louis Alpern, T. O. Himsen, Lewis Doyle, W. H. Kennedy, J. L. Domer, Lewis Fisher, Joseph Hogle and W. H. Reese.

DEMOCRATIC FIGHT

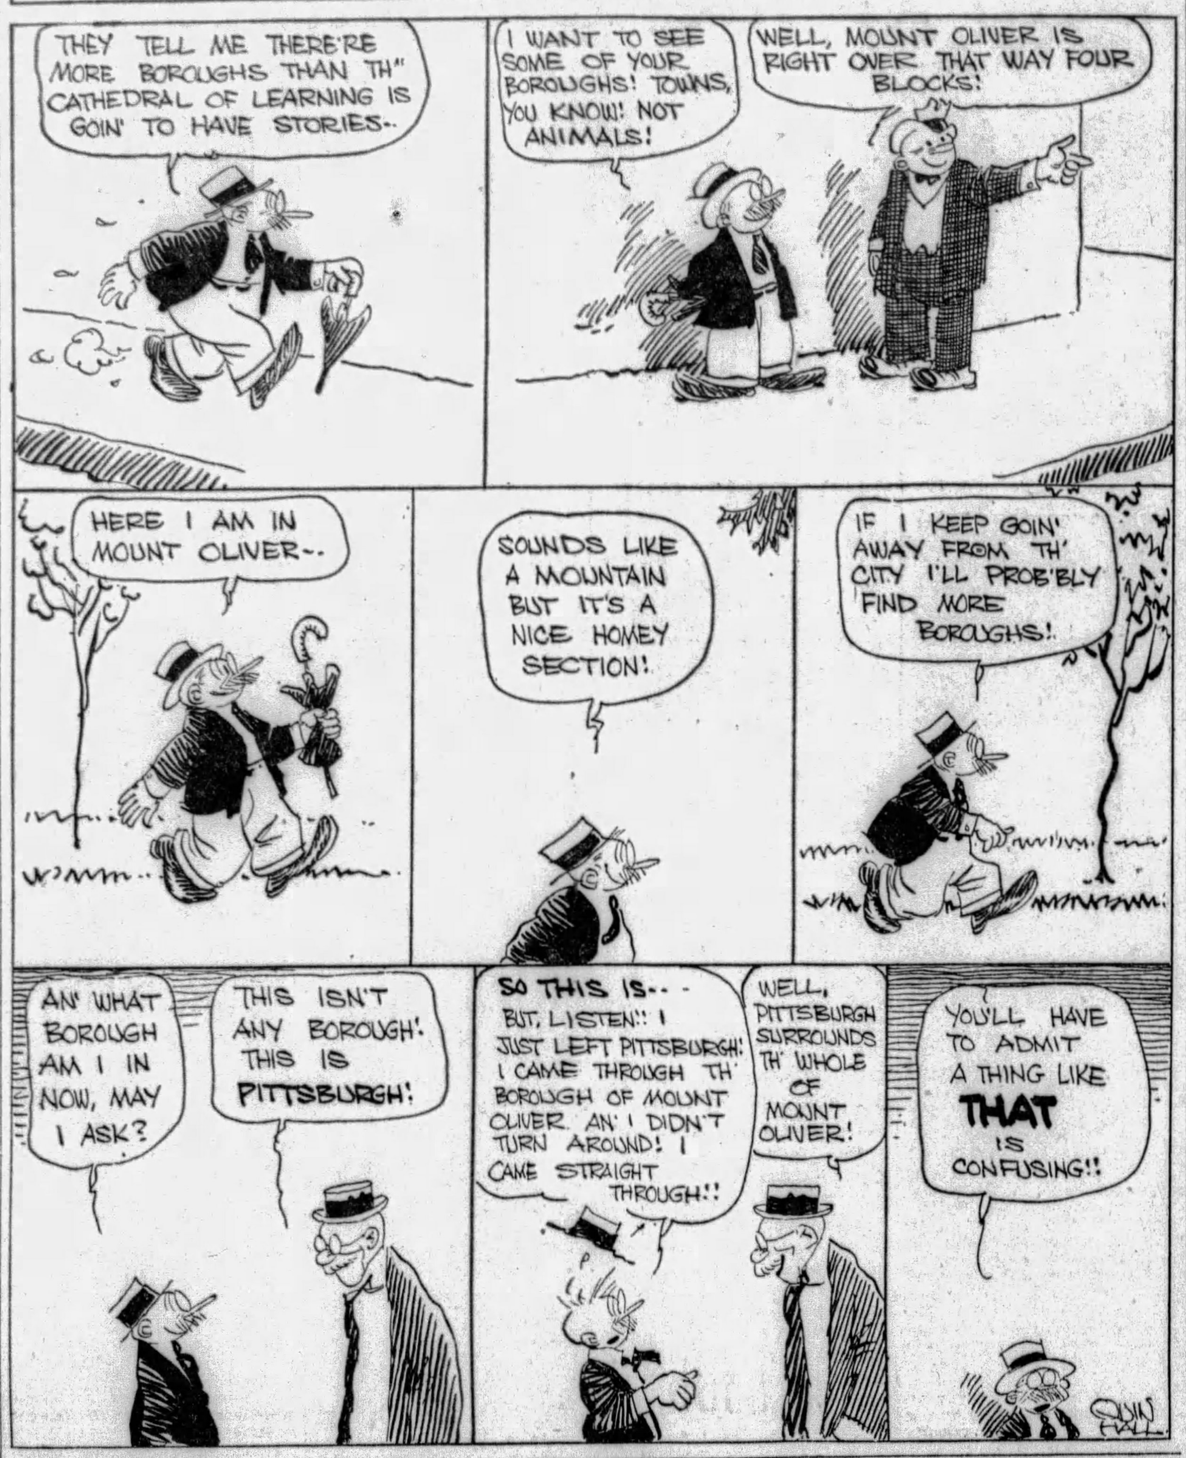
Patrick T. Fagan of the United Mine Workers is a Democratic candidate for council. With him on the organization slate of that party are George E. Evans, William Barclay Foster, James Murtha and Clair E. McGinnnis. Anthony Ferrera is candidate for sheriff and Peter Ladsick for coroner.

Ward chairmen who signed the single petition presented by Kline are Howard Neely, Fourth; Roy D. Schooley, Eighth; William J. Soost, Eleventh; Leo Kirch, Fifteenth; Thomas D. Jones, Eighteenth; Samuel Reno, Nineteenth; Henry Townsend, Twentieth; William Herd, Twenty-first; John P. O'Donnell, Twenty-second; Robert Murray, Twenty-third; Justus Schroedel, Twenty-fourth; E. M. Hough, Twenty-sixth; David Cadugan, Twenty-seventh; H. B. Birch, Twenty-eighth, and Fred Sacher, Twenty-ninth. The Kline camp claims nine other ward chairmen.

Mellon, Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong and Senator M. G. Leslie held a conference yesterday afternoon, making no announcement afterward. There was a report that an effort was made to persuade Armstrong to enter as the "harmony" candidate, but that it proved unsuccessful.

SO THIS IS PITTSBURGH! :-: By QUIN HALL



LAST WITNESS ON STAND IN SNOOK TRIAL

you have confessed, doesn't your conscience feel better?' and didn't he say 'Yes?'"

"Yes, that's correct."

SNOOK SLAPPED

The chief, in pointing out that the confession was not obtained under duress, declared that after he confessed, Snook shook hands with Prosecutor John J. Chester, Jr., who had slapped him when he had lost his patience.

The witness related that the prosecutor had apologized to Snook after he slapped him and that Snook said: "Oh, that's all right, Jack."

Chief French parried Defense Attorney Rickett's questions so cleverly Ricketts said: "Are you by any chance a lawyer?" and French came right back with: "No, it's bad enough to be a policeman." The spectators roared.

French denied that Snook was given any "third degree."

"No self-respecting police officer in the United States would countenance such methods," French said.

Q.—(By Ricketts)—"It took you and your men 23 hours to make him ease his conscience, as you say?"

Court was then adjourned until 1:30 p. m.

SIX POSSIBLE COURSES

The judge probably will instruct the jury they can return any one of six verdicts:

1—Guilty of first degree murder without any recommendation of mercy, carrying with it the penalty of death in the electric chair.

2—Guilty of first-degree murder with mercy, carrying life imprisonment.

3—Guilty of second-degree murder, which provides life imprisonment with hope of parole.

4—Guilty of manslaughter, which provides imprisonment of one to 20 years.

5—Acquittal on the grounds of insanity.

WOMAN EMBARRASSED

Few trials ever held anywhere in this country has even approached the Snook case. It was no surprise that Mrs. Harry Cassady, the only woman on the jury, frequently bowed her head in embarrassment during the testimony.

Attorneys interrogated witnesses on subjects that simply are not talked about in any society, and it is amazing that women and girls retained their seats and listened to such testimony. Seats in the courtroom were at a premium, and the trial played to a full house throughout.

Dr. Snook, in revealing his motive for slaying the attractive young co-ed, told a story that could not even be hinted at.

The thought occurred to more than one observer that the American bar might well establish rules governing testimony that would prevent a repetition of this situation. Quite conceivably the facts could be brought out with less bluntness and in better taste.

SNOOK'S NERVE BREAKING

Snook's "steel nerves" are apparently beginning to give way as the trial nears a conclusion. His nonchalant, detached demeanor has given way to one of anxiety. He has become glum and morose, and he no longer exchanges occasional pleasantries with those he comes in contact with.

Attorneys for Snook make no secret of the fact they will consider they have won a victory if they succeed in saving the defendant from the electric chair. They admit the state has presented a powerful case against their client.

Betting odds in Columbus, where interest in the case is at a high pitch, continue to favor the maximum punishment for Snook—the electric chair. Although E. O. Ricketts, chief counsel for the defense, is out with a prediction that Snook will never "burn," there is plenty of money waiting to be wagered that he will.

FRENCH LAST WITNESS

An unconfirmed rumor was in circulation today that before the case goes to the jury Judge Henry L. Scarlett will dismiss the only woman juror, Mrs. Cassady, and have the thirteenth, or emergency juror, take her place in the deliberations. The only known excuse for excusing Mrs. Cassady is the fact that a week ago last Saturday evening she visited the Franklin County jail, where Snook is confined. She was accompanied by the woman matron assigned to the jury. She did not see Snook in the jail, however, and it is understood the case was not discussed in her presence.

The last witness of the trial resumed the stand this morning. He is Chief of Police French, who testified concerning the methods employed by the authorities in exacting a confession from Snook following his arrest. When French leaves the stand the defense planned to petition Judge Scarlett to make some special charges to the jury, following which the closing arguments of the attorneys will begin.

MRS. W. C. ROBINSON

MRS. A. L. ROBINSON

Mrs. W. C. Robinson and her daughter and daughter-in-law, prominent in Sewickley society, were rescued with other Pittsburghers when the Robinson cruiser, Salana, went aground near Portland, Me., last night.

PITTSBURGH BOAT PARTY RESCUED

W. C. Robinson, Wife and 5 Guests Taken Off as Yacht Piles on Rocks Off Maine

PORTLAND, Me., Aug. 13.—(AP.)—The 106-foot cabin cruiser Salana, owned by W. C. Robinson, of Pittsburgh, was pounded to pieces by high seas on Watts Ledge, near the entrance to Portland harbor, today. It had gone aground last night in a dense fog.

Robinson, his wife and five passengers, all of Pittsburgh, were taken off the craft by Coast Guardsmen from the Cape Elizabeth station, two and one-half miles away.

After landing the party the coast guard crew returned to the Salana to stand by in the event the craft and the crew of nine men who remained aboard, needed assistance. Inspection revealed the cruiser was wedged between two rock shelves.

STICKS ON ROCKS

An attempt to pull the boat off the ledge was unsuccessful.

Besides Robinson and his wife, those landed by coast guardsmen were Mrs. Alexander Laughlin Robinson, Miss Mary Robinson and Miss Althea Robinson, of Pittsburgh, and Miss Winifred Galvin and Miss Overall.

In addition to the crew of the Cape Elizabeth station, the coast guard cutter Chicopee and a 75-foot Gloucester coast guard boat were ordered to leave port at daylight and stand by the Salana at high tide when another attempt will be made to release her.

FAMILY PROMINENT

W. C. Robinson, who lives in Sewickley Heights, is prominent in business and financial circles of Pittsburgh, with offices in the Fulton Building. He is a director in the Union Trust Company and Mellon National Bank, president and director of the Allegheny Country Club, and a director of several other institutions.

QUARTET HELD IN HOLDUPS

John B. Sloan, Joseph Maloney, Andrew L. Hufnagle and Henry Zadach, accused of banditry, were held for the grand jury by Magistrate Thomas Jones in Central Police Court today.

Maloney is charged with holding up bank messengers and stealing $14,501 they were carrying from the Ward Baking Company to the Franklin Savings and Trust Company on April 2, 1928.

Sloan is charged with being an accessory to the crime "after the fact."

Five other men were tried last year for the Ward Baking Company holdup, and four were convicted, two as actually participating in the "stickup" and two others as fellow conspirators. The messengers testified they were robbed by three.

Sloan is charged with the Unger jewelry store robbery, and Maloney with being an accessory.

Sloan is charged with the Ruud Manufacturing holdup and Zadach with being an accessory.

These were the charges on which Jones held the men for court. No mention was made of the Hays bank holdup, for which Sloan has been indicted.

The hearing was perfunctory. Detective Lieut. Edward O'Rourke presented the charges. Nothing was said in regard to confessions the prisoners were alleged to have made. The defendants were represented by counsel, but did not testify.

The magistrate's court room was crowded with spectators.

STRIKE RIOT IN COUNCIL ROOMS

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 13.—(AP.)—Open fighting broke out in the City Council chamber this morning when a union labor committee presented to the body a petition signed by thousands of persons asking that the ordinance placing a ban on jitneys in the street car strike be revoked.

The fight started over remarks made to a policeman who directed tear bombs at a mob that stoned street cars last night near a mass meeting of union sympathizers.

The policeman fired several shots in the corridor floor during the height of the disturbance and a boy bystander was hit in the foot.

Members of the commission council were jostled about in the melee and furnished targets for fist blows on the jaw.

Police reserves restored order.

After the mob had been quelled, scores continued to mill about the corridors and several hundred who collected on the outside attempted a second storming of the building, but were driven off by police with tear bombs.

Horse Gives Life In 'Last Stand' Tilt With Auto

CLEARWATER, Cal., Aug. 13.—(INS.)—This is not a story of a horse who gave way to the automobile. Neigh! Neigh!

It is a story of a horse that met the "enemy" full tilt and died with his hoofs on.

Three occupants of the automobile were injured when a saddle horse crashed into it, but today the machine age had claimed another victim, for when the test came, gasoline proved more potent than oats.

BRIDGE PERMIT PETITIONED

The McKees Rocks-Woods Run Bridge is a step nearer realization. County Commissioners yesterday petitioned the Public Service Commission for permission to construct the bridge, a mere formality, the people having approved a bond issue and the War Department authorized its construction.

Lucky Bucks—New Money for Old

By LUCKY BUCK.

Well, folks, I promised I'd spend those four 50-1 shots today, didn't I? H'm. I did—and how! I spent 'em, and they're all gone—there isn't any more atall.

I s'pose you're just dyin' with curiosity. I was goin' to hold off for another day or so before tellin' you just where I spent them simoleons, but I guess I might as well unbosom myself now. Here's the low-down on the fifty-for-one situation in Pittsburgh:

Now Fortunate Simoleon No. N76742813D is tucked away, snug and comfy, in the cash register of the Sterling grocery store, 938 Western avenue, North Side. I thought that'd be a good start for a hard day. Those are good eggs I gave away outside of the store, too. Not satisfied with that errand of mercy, I betook myself to the stronghold of the redoubtable Mr. Guenther in the Union Trust Building barber shop and had a shave of him, so I wouldn't look so infernally like Santa Claus. And Bro Guenther didn't bat an eye, he didn't, but just shaves away with gentle precision. Felt like tippin' him, folks, but when I asked him to change that $50 buck, he smiles, friendly-like, and says to pay the cashier and give him the coin. What a world!

So I takes the easiest one of all, E97791B, out to the grocery store at 583 Siegert street, and buys me some cigarets; I haven't coughed yet.

Then it was lunch time, so I strolls into Child's restaurant and donates Benevolent Bean No. D17344336B to the cause, while the cashier looks on an' demurely recites her piece about bein' just a pinch-hitter for the day and wouldn't I please excuse her for not knowin' what kind of cigars they have?

And that's the story of how four little Benevolent Beans came to grief. Get on their trails, folks, a little salt on their tails may help.

Of course, after that I had to have my little joke on those birds in A. Wehrheim's, 3763 Bigelow boulevard, so I dropped in and had some very good apple pie and a glass of milk, on account of I was hungry. But I suspicion that Bre'er Wehrheim is going to be a most unhappy man when he reads this and understands that he gave Lady Luck the cold shoulder. Knocking opportunity, I calls it.

Then I bought some funny pink stuff for your hair at the drug store at 5618 Wilkins avenue, Martin and Vandervoort's, I think they appel it. But that baby didn't catch on worth a copper, so I oozes on towards town, trusting the stout bozo back of the cigar counter in the City-County Building would feel more like takin' me up on a Succulent Suskin. X67194137D, it was, but that bird didn't wink a wink, either, so on my way to Browning-King & Co., Wood street, where I bought me a very nice four-in-hand—no, not horses—and shall step out tomorrow in all the glory that was Caesar's.

Incidentally, 'I'm downright sorry I wasn't here to extend a glad hand to Master Delbert Dorenburg, 11, who called in person to collect a new double sawbuck for Lucky Buck B66240730E, which I gave to driver of Red Cab No. 28 on August 4. Delbert picked the suskin up in a grocery store in Carnegie, where he lives, with his mother and father, at 317 Fifth avenue. Delbert's going to be generous and split with his mother, because it ws her dollar!

And I'm going to place two Bucks downtown Thursday, where any one can get 'em without any trouble at all. But meanwhile, I'm wondering where those Grove City, New Castle and Wheeling Bucks are.

Today's new ones are thus and so:

Canine 'Lucky Buck' Found, Escapes Police Bullet

"Lucky Buck," who crossed the continent from Los Angeles with his master, D. H. Buchanan, of 530 Dickson avenue, Ben Avon, and then joined the lost and found column, no longer is lost.

He's a brindle bull terrier, with more than ordinary intelligence, not hard to look at, and fond of adventure. But his last adventure came near ending his earthly career.

K. W. Leitschu, of 267 Kennedy avenue, North Side, saw "Lucky Buck's" picture in the Sun-Telegraph last night, and read with more than passing interest of Buchanan's grief over the loss of his pal.

Leitschu was the man who saw a policeman in one of the north boroughs getting ready to shoot "Lucky Buck" a few days ago, and saved his life by inducing the unsympathetic officer to let him take the dog home. It seems "Lucky Buck" hadn't been behaving himself properly, and suburban police won't have anything of that.

As soon as Mr. Buchanan calls at the Leitschu home he can have "Lucky Buck."

CHURCHES ACT TO UNITE

SEATTLE, Aug. 13.—(AP.)—A step toward unification of the Disciples of Christ with the Northern Baptists was taken by the delegates to the international conference of the former denomination here last night.

The convention adopted the report of its church unity committee recommending immediate steps to combine the educational evangelistic and missionary work of the two bodies.

The Rev. Dr. Edward DeWitt, of Detroit, who submitted the report, declared that a joint commission of the denominations could find no fundamental differences in the doctrines of the two communions.

Robert A. Long, millionaire lumberman of Longview, Wash., was elected president of the 1930 convention. Mrs. Luella St. Clair Moss, of Columbia, Mo.; W. N. Briney, of Louisville, Ky., and Dr. Cleveland Kleihauer, of Seattle, were named vice presidents; J. H. Nance, Dallas, Tex., was named treasurer; Graham Frank, Dallas, general secretary; Mrs. George M. Buckley, Fulton, Mo., recording secretary, and H. B. Holloway, Indianapolis, transportation representative.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Aug. 13.—(AP.)—A motor parkway between New York City and Buffalo over a route taking in points in New Jersey and Pennsylvania was advocated last night by Governor Roosevelt in an interview after his arrival from Hancock.

The executive said he had asked the governors of the other interested states to co-operate in his plan and that probably a tri-state commission would be formed to study the proposed route.

The two committees reaffirmed the agreement made May 4, following a strike by the workers.

2D METRO PLAN VOTE UP TO COURT

Ruling Asked by County Commissioners, Charter Backers, in Test Case

Common Pleas Court was asked today to rule on the question of whether the Metropolitan Plan Charter can be resubmitted by the County Commissioners to the voters at the general election in November.

The Commissioners' case was presented by County Solicitor W. Heber Dithrich, and argued by Attorney Charles K. Robinson, counsel for the Metropolitan Plan Commission.

The "friendly opposition" to the Commissioners' petition was James P. O'Connor, a taxpayer, represented by Attorney William M. Hall.

The Commissioners' argument was that under the act they have the right to submit the question on the November ballot. It was pointed out that although the vote on the plan was not the necessary two-thirds of the municipalities in the county, the plan did get a majority vote and a two-thirds vote in 40 municipalities.

The opposition argument was that additional legislation is necessary before the charter can be resubmitted. Judges Joseph M. Swearingen, James R. Macfarlane and Harry H. Rowan heard the case and will hand down their opinion later. Their decision will be appealed to the Supreme Court, which sits here in September.

RUM SALES PAY SCHOOL COSTS

CHICAGO, Aug. 13.—(INS.)—Two college students and another youth preparing to enter college this fall were being held in the county jail today in default of bail set by United States Commissioner Walker after they pleaded guilty to selling liquor on the steamship Manitou to obtain school funds.

The three, arrested by federal agents late yesterday, were working on the boat as bellboys. They are Arthur Schaible, 21, of Wanatah, Ind., a student at the University of Indiana; Roy S. Laird, 20, of Milford, Ill., a University of Illinois sophomore, and Edward A. Sheve, 19, of Manistee, Mich., who planned to enter the University of Michigan in September.

It was to earn money for college expenses that they sold liquor aboard the boat plying between Chicago and Canadian ports, the young men told the commissioner. Both Laird and Schaible have worked their way through college thus far.

The Michigan Transit Company, owners of the boat, had asked federal authorities to help in ending liquor sales on the ship, it was said, offering the agents a trip free of charge to make the investigation. During the trip the agents purchased several pints of liquor from the boys, it was charged.

FINED FOR SLUR, BLAMES POLICE

Fined $25 for slurs said to have been cast upon Lieut. Belmont Pugh at the dead officer's funeral Friday in Wilkinsburg, C. A. Boddie, radio engineer, of 5408 Stanton avenue, today indicated that he would appeal from the fine. Boddie was arraigned before Burgess Jesse Langley in Wilkinsburg last night on a disorderly conduct charge.

Lieut. Pugh, a member of the Wilkinsburg police force, was found shot to death last Wednesday in the apartment of Miss Louise Stine, at 6492 Frankstown avenue. The woman also was found dead, a bullet wound in the head. At the hearing last night it was testified that Boddie made slurring remarks about the dead officer, remarking that "it was a wonder he had not been found dead a long time ago."

Yesterday afternoon five boys were picked up on the streets of the borough when they were seen distributing handbills, stating that the entire police force was in a deplorable condition and instead of suppressing lawlessness and banditry, were actually fostering it. The bills bore the name of Boddie.

Burgess Langley said that officially he would ignore the charges made against his officers, but he was not able to say whether police would push the prosecution for distributing bills without a permit.

Goebel, who two years ago won the Dole airplane race to Hawaii, yesterday brought the airplane which carried him to victory to its final resting place here. Last night he was entertained at an informal dinner by Frank Phillips, who sponsored the flight. Goebel made 56 stops in a farewell trip in the ship on invitation of leading citizens of the Mid-West, and during the trip flew 8,971 miles.

The plane was built specially for the race. It is a two-seater speed model, the front seat space having been filled with extra gasoline tanks. The ship is capable of 150 to 160 miles per hour and is powered with a Wright J-5 motor.

The women's derby is scheduled to start August 18 at Santa Monica. The route is through Phoenix, El Paso, Fort Worth, Dallas, Oklahoma City, Tulsa, Wichita, Kansas City, St. Louis and Columbus to Cleveland. The finish is scheduled for August 26.

CRACK TROOPS' STABLE BURNS

HARRISBURG, Pa., Aug. 13.—(INS.)—Charred and smouldering ruins were the sole remnants today of the proud stable of the Governor's and Headquarters' Troop, One Hundred and Fourth Cavalry, Pennsylvania National Guard, following a fire that burned five horses to death and destroyed the stable at the Harrisburg Fair Grounds last night.

Fifty horses were quartered in the center of the stable where the blaze started. The flames quickly ate their way toward both ends of the frame structure. Stable hands fought their way through the smoke to the panic-stricken horses, soothed them and led all but five to safety.

Members of the troop were meeting in the armory when word reached them of the fire. They rushed to the scene by automobile and captured the crazed animals, which had been released after being led outside the burning building.

INVENTOR FREE IN CAR THEFT

Revealing that he has been granted a patent on a device to prevent automobile thefts, R. F. Mossy, former eastern radio announcer, today won a two-year parole after pleading guilty to transporting a stolen automobile and concealing it.

Before Judge R. M. Gibson, in Federal Court, he told of his invention, an electrical system controlling the ignition of a car. He said there are 26 connections which afford 2,980 combinations in twos and 2,600 combinations in threes, making the chances 6,000 to 1 that nobody except the owner can find the proper combination of buttons which must be pressed before the car can be started.

Last May 14, he admitted transporting a stolen automobile from Chicago to Washington, Pa., on October 15, 1927. He was released on bail.

United States Attorney John D. Meyer, recommending a long parole, said the prisoner had been instrumental in aiding the government in recovering another stolen auto, in the theft of which he had no part.

Terms of the franchise were agreed upon at a meeting between RKO officials and representatives of independent exhibitors from 22 states.

The franchise makes it obligatory upon the independent theater owner to accept all the RKO output up to 52 pictures a year or none.

Q UAKE DAMAGE FOUND SLIGHT

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 13.—(INS.)—A check-up today of the succession of earth tremors that started inhabitants over an area of five eastern states and Ontario yesterday revealed the resultant damage as slight.

The shocks were felt from Massachusetts to Ohio and from Pennsylvania to the province of Ontario. Seismograph calculations fixed Bellefontaine, O., as the center of the disturbance.

ATTICA HIT

The greatest damage was reported at Attica, N. Y., where one wall of a church collapsed and an industrial plant was forced to suspend operations as a result of damaged machinery.

Buffalo was also seriously affected, residents laying aside their work as the tremors smashed crockery, caused pictures to dance upon the walls and furniture to shift its position without human aid.

New York City was not affected in the slightest degree, according to the seismograph at Fordham University.

AGREE ON HOUR

Earliest manifestations were reported from Binghamton, where residents declared the shocks came as early as 1 a. m. However, the general time of the tremors, if judged from the majority of the places affected, was 7:30 a. m.

Among the places visited by the tremors were Syracure, Oswego, Auburn, Utica, Rochester, Jamestown, Westfield and Alfred, N. Y.; Waterford, Pa., and St. Catherines and Ottawa, Ontario.

Cost Accountants' Directors to Meet

CONTINENT ON SECURE BASIS

North America Has Little To Fear From Temblors, Museum Curator Asserts

The earth tremor which shivered through the northeastern section of the continent yesterday probably will not return for 100 years or more, Dr. Andrey Avinoff, curator of Carnegie Museum and noted scientist, said today.

Eight miles underground, a fissure opened and the surrounding strata slid, Dr. Avinoff believed, shaking the earth's crust as it spread.

"Tectonic formation" was the scientific term used by the Carnegie Museum head to describe the character of the earth underlying the states from Connecticut to Ohio and from Ontario to Central Pennsylvania. In the layman's language, that formation would be explained as alternate layers of shale and rock.

EIGHT MILES DEEP

"There is very little chance that people will be shaken from their beds again very soon, or that there would be anything more than tremors, even though a disturbance did occur," Dr. Avinoff said. "The quake was not near the surface, nor violent.

"Probably eight or more miles beneath the earth the strata slipped a bit, readjusted itself.

"But the geological formation in these states is one of the most secure types composing the crust of the earth. There is little chance of its doing anything radical. This section of the continent, at least, is safe.

"Volcanic earthquakes usually are of violent intensity and localized opening cracks in the surface of the earth. Quakes resulting from redistribution of bodies of water lying miles underground may be disastrous to certain districts.

"In Japan, for instance, the earth seems to be in constant process of shifting."

CONTINENT SECURE

The Japanese islands, Dr. Avinoff said, are not yet completed in geological structure. New ranges and valleys are rising and sinking, with the result that quakes are frequent.

But the North American continent, a venerable old gentleman in the geological world, has almost settled himself for a few geogolgical snoozes of an age or two, before he reasserts his right to mutation.

Theories had been expounded yesterday that changes in the Great Lakes might have been responsible for the shake.

Dr. Avinoff admitted that studies had been made by Carnegie Museum official of a changing shore line at Presque Isle, near Erie, Pa. But that change, he said, was due not to crinkling of the earth's crust, but to shifting shore tides in the lake.

LAKES "WELL-BEHAVED"

"I know of no changes in Lake Erie or other lakes that would warrant a belief that release of underground supplies of water into the lake caused the quake yesterday," Dr. Avinoff said. "The Great Lakes are very well behaved bodies of water so far as we know."

Dr. Avinoff did not believe that the disturbance was localized to a subterranean district, although the slide may have originated near Bellefonte, Pa.

"That type of an earthquake is of widespread effect, and not usually intensified in one place," the scientist declared. "The type of formation precludes almost a violent shake in one small district, and also insures us against a return, now that the readjustment has been made."

WORLD'S INTEREST IN ZEPPELIN FASCINATES WILKINS

CROWDS FLOCK TO AIRSHIP'S HANGAR

Explorer Finds All Nations Represented in Throngs Now at Friedrichshafen

By SIR HUBERT WILKINS,

Famous explorer, who crossed the Atlantic aboard the Graf Zeppelin from Friedrichshafen, and is writing the story of the Heart-Zeppelin-Round-the-World Flight.

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Aug. 13.—"Tonight" "we're all set to go." "The weather looks good for an early start."

These are the remarks heard on every side from Commander Eckener, Capt. Lehmann, Fleming and Von Schiller, the engineers, the mechanics, the chef and the steward as they answer, patiently and courteously a series of inquiries made in six languages and twice as many accents.

Here are gathered, besides the Germans from various states, English, French, Spanish, Italian, Austrians, Russians, Japanese and Australians. Probably no more kaleidoscopic conditions exist in the world than those in Friedrichshafen.

The natural picturesqueness of the surroundings add tremendously, from the windows and terraces of the Kurgarten hotel, to the views across Lake Constance, in keeping with the varied incidents. On both sides of the lake's shores are great, aged trees, still massed in the foliage which, under autumn's influence, deepens to dark greens and nut browns.

MOUND BUILDERS

Beneath the trees are low mounds, built by early man. The mounds and their contents are the only legible record of their builders' existence.

Leaving the international groups viewing the lake and its beauties, I stepped out to look at the streams of people anxious to view the Zeppelin—this marine airship—or even look at its mysterious hangar. Some of them are in peasant costume, others in the dernier mode. They mingle as incongruously as do the high-powered limousines with the bullock wagons which crowd the macadamed roads leading through the town.

The walls with two gates guard the approach to the Zeppelin field. At the outer gate a bullock-drawn wagon blocked the way. The driver, drawn by the magnetic influence of the crowds, with one idea in mind, had left his team to crane his neck and gaze longingly toward the great steel cocoon housing the pride of Germany.

CONTENT WITH LITTLE

He saw nothing of the airship. One might thing his an idle gesture, unprofitable and unsatisfying, yet deep satisfaction was expressed in his eyes and those of others. They were content to gaze across the field and see the solid-looking lair of the great Zeppelin and the huge steel skeleton of its successor.

Three months ago, workmen were tearing down the duplicate hangar, not used because it is too small for the new ship the Zeppelin company plans to build. Today, the framework of the new and larger hangar is half erected.

We saw that skilled workmen had been busy on the tail of the Zeppelin. It had lost its wrinkled appearance. The men, at noon, were lacing the last small section, stretching the last yard of fabric. Nothing more remains to be done except to paste the covering strip over the lacing, and that job will be done soon.

Other workers were passing along the light frames into the hull, tap-tapping at various parts informs us that the reefing bars for stretching the covering are being installed. Two new sections of linen fabric have been lashed to the envelope forward. The control car's natural brown coloring is still uncovered by the silver-tinted dope.

BUCKETS OF DOPE

Men with buckets of dope were working from the stern forward and plying their brushes freely. They will, by evening, re-dope the greater part of the ship.

Beneath the control car, a new and bigger buffer bag has been installed. It is made like a basket framework, lashed together in the manner of the Eskimo summer igloo. Inside the frame will rest a huge rubber bag filled with air, to take up on the landing shocks.

So far as mechanical perfection and the human elements are concerned, all will be ready Tuesday evening, but the main factor for determining both the start and the success of the trip is the weather.

It is Capt. Fleming's duty to keep an eye on this. He is assisted by Dr. Seickopf, Germany's greatest expert on European and Asiatic weather. Their noon weather chart showed high pressure over the Mediterranean. The Siberian and Asiatic reports will not be in until evening. The reports come in from Hamburg, Leningrad, Vladsoe, Mukden and Chabalovsk, in Siberia, and from Pekin, in China. Later on, we will get reports from Alaska.

Risks Don't Tempt Zep Chief

By LADY DRUMMOND HAY,

Only woman passenger on Hearst-Zeppelin-Round-the-World-Flight.

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Aug. 13.—"The Graf Zeppelin is ready when we are," Commander Eckener told me this morning when I accompanied him on his tour of inspection of the great, sleek silver airsteed stabled in the giant "airdok."

Since our landing the Graf has submitted to the solicitous ministrations of a hundred hands preparing it for the second and greatest stage of Hearst-Zeppelin Round-the-World-Flight with the impatient tolerance of a race horse scenting a challenge.

"The Zeppelin will be in readiness by the time all the passengers are assembled at Friedrichshafen this evening, but I do not expect to make the start until Thursday at dawn," said Dr. Eckener.

"The weather forecasts are favorable but I want this warm temperature to cool down a few degrees before I trim the airship for this 7,000-mile flight."

Hope for Cool Weather

The warmer the weather the harder it is for the Zeppelin to rise and the less weight she can carry. One single degree drop in temperature permits the airship to take up an additional 800 pounds, which is vital. It also means miles to us, and miles may spell the difference between ice fields and the barren Siberian steppes, and the hospitable welcome at our destination.

"Safety first," and Dr. Eckener smiled gently. "The youngest and and most hot-headed member of the crew was not more thrilled and joyous than I was myself at the record we made on our trans-Atlantic voyage the other day, but with more than 60 souls aboard my duty first and last always lies in insuring their security and safety.

"The prospect of the most world-shaking and spectacular record possible would not tempt me to renounce one single pound of petrol which I have deemed necessary to give us a generous margin. So nothing will induce me to leave Friedrichshafen until I am utterly satisfied that everything is ready."

Eckener Examines Motor

We walked around the vast hall, Dr. Eckener stopping every few paces to examine the work that was being done, to confer with the workers, and to greet Chief Engineer Siegle, who never seems to be absent from his charges—the mighty motors.

The commander pointed out to me the new propeller being put in place, and the spars that had been inserted to strengthen the sides where he considered there had been too much movement. He examined the engine which has run the most hours of the whole five—it has been in operation about 600 hours—and which is now being refitted with new exhaust valves.

"The Zeppelin is in excellent condition," he remarked, "but each voyage teaches us something new."

He was attentively interested in the new spars, and launched into the full technicalities, seemingly anxious that I should understand and appreciate every detail of his wondership.

The refueling is in progress. We will carry 25,000 cubic meters of gas fuel, some 12 tons of petrol, which with all five motors working at cruising speed suffices for 137 hours. But it is not likely that we will use all five motors all the time. With four engines going at cruising speed there is enough fuel for 160 hours, or more than a week. Favorable tailwinds will mean a smaller consumption of fuel.

"However," said Dr. Eckener, "I expect to arrive at Tokio with a good margin of fuel. So far as I can say now the voyage will take us about five days. I plan to go as far north as is expedient, but we must leave our definite plans so we can be guided by weather conditions from one hour to the next.

Course Still Uncertain

"I have not yet decided where we will make our exit from Russia, either."

The Zeppelin works is agog with animation all day. Dr. Eckener, with Capts. Lehmann, Flemming and Von Schiller, are always besieged by newspaper men, photographers and visitors of all categories. I found Capt. Lehmann serene and courteous and unhurried, as he was explaining a hundred and one things to our two Japanese passengers, Dr. Enti and Dr. Kitano.

Dr. Enti and Dr. Kitano reflected the enthusiasm which, we learn, holds Tokio in its thrall these days, regarding every detail connected with the Zeppelin's movements. I have been visiting Japan this summer—I left Tokio less than six weeks ago, when interest in the Zeppelin was already at fever heat—and so I can vividly imagine the increasing daily excitement in the colorful capital of the Flowery Land.

At last the visitors bowed themselves out, and Capt. Lehmann turned to me and asked, quizzically:

"Ready?"

Its a Long, Long Trail

"It's going to be a long, long trail and one intensely interesting from all points of view. We will see what few, if any, human beings have seen, and will no doubt add volumes to airship navigation experience—not that I expect difficulties," he hastened to add, "but flying over long land stretches is always more varied than over the ocean spaces. More varied, and more bumpy, too," he smiled.

Capt. Von Schiller, in the next room, was engulfed in passenger problems, ranging from allocating the berths and cabins to deciding what is to be done with the accumulation of gifts and mascots. His office looked like a shop. Presentation packs of cards, beautiful leather encased bridge score pads set with "winkies," dolls, flags for Zeppelin labels, a huge evergreen and laurel wreath festooned with scarlet and white satin ribbons. This last was from the Breslau Union of former prisoners of war in Siberia, and bore the legend: "In Memory of Our Comrades Sleeping in Russian Soil."

This we will carry on the Zeppelin over Russia and it will be cast reverently from the clouds "somewhere in Russia."

There are four paying, independent Zeppelin travelers on the round-world list, Capt. Von Schiller told me. They are Leeds, Rickard, Lt. Col. Iselin and Dr. Megias.

No Freight Aboard Ship

This time there is no freight at all, the available weight being devoted to fuel. There is no livestock, either. I am glad that my mascot, the stuffed velvet cat, can go along—an animated kitten would have to be left behind.

There is plenty of mail, even at our high rates.

Two things, particularly, stood out among today's happenings.

Commander Rosendahl paid touching respect at the grave of Walter Scherz, of the Graf Zeppelin crew, who was a member of our first trans-Atlantic crossing personnel, who died early this year and was buried in a blinding snowstorm in Friedrichshafen's little graveyard.

Scherz was loved by everybody, and will never be forgotten. Commander Rosendahl's first thought, on revisiting Friedrichshafen, was to lay a beautiful wreath upon our comrade's resting place.

The other thing, which created a most happy impression, was a letter from the Polish government, which Capt. Lehmann showed me. As usual, the Zeppelin authorities had asked permission to fly over Poland. Permission was granted without delay, and unconditionally—except that we must not photograph while over the country. That is such a usual condition it does not count.

In addition to the courteous invitation to fly over Poland, the letter added another paragraph, to the effect that:

Poland Prepared to Aid

"Of course, there are no hangars in Poland to shelter the Zeppelin; nevertheless, the Polish government authorities are fully prepared, in case of an emergency landing, to give every assistance in their power."

Leaving Capt. Von Schiller to wrestle with the job of sorting out the 20 passengers of 10 different nationalities, I found Steward Kubis immersed in the maze of provisioning for the flight.

"We were cleaned right out on the last trip," he told me. "There was not a thing left except plenty of water. I was surprised not to miss more of that beautiful, special blue-gold Zeppelin porcelain. Only four salt pots were taken as souvenirs and about six glasses were broken by accident in the kitchen. That was the extent of the caualties in my department."

Kubis tells me he is provisioning for six days, takig 3,600 pounds of food exclusive of drink. There will be some 300 litres of drinking water, 200 bottles of wine, but no beer. The wine includes alcoholic cordial which by special permission of the United States governmnt may be brought into America.

There is a reason, however, for this startling privilege. It permits us carrying four bottles of a "digestive stomachic" and remedy against "airsickness," Kubis adds with a grin. The remedy will be distributed free to passengrs in need.

Fresh Fruit on Menu

In addition to the usual food supplies plenty of fresh fruit is being taken along, including peaches, pears and apples. But there is no rice for the Japanese; no frogs or snails for the Frenchman; no vodka for the Russian professor, Dr. Karin; and no onions for King Alfonso's physician, Dr. Megias. There will be plenty of sausage and delicatessen for the German travelers.

There are playing cards in plenty, chess boards and pieces, dominoes, a gramophone, and last, but not lease, Capt. Lehmann's accordeon, which everyone demands shall be aboard. I asked Frau Lehmann to be sure to tuck it under her husband's arm as he goes out. She said it had rusted in the summer house, so she would bake the damp out of it and surprise him. It will surprise him.

Capt. Von Schiller awaits with some curiosity the passenger from Switzerland, who sent his passport on in advance by post to Friedrichshafen. We are wondering how he will get over the border without it.

TWO BRADDOCK SUSPECTS FREE

Frank Amata, described as a leader of the Italian colony in Braddock, who has been held in the county jail for 10 days on a murder charge, was absolved of complicity in the slaying of James Buono, 45, Braddock storekeeper, who had been arrested for liquor law violations, at the coroner's inquest today.

In a deathbed statement, Buono named Amata and George DeCairo, of Braddock, as the killers, but Amata produced witnesses to prove that he was with Police Lieut. Edward Goldstein, of Braddock, at the time of the shooting, and DeCairo proved that he was out of town.

Buono was slain by killers who pulled alongside him in an auto in Braddock on August 2.

The coroner's jury promptly acquitted both men.

SPEEDING TRAIN WRECKED

PUEBLO, Col., Aug. 13.—(AP.)—Three Pullman cars were overturned and three others derailed when the trucks on a baggage car in Santa Fe train No. 5, Chicago-bound, broke while the train was traveling at high speed 20 miles east of here early today.

Passengers in Pullmans were reported bruised and shaken, but no one seriously hurt.

SOVIETS GRANT AID

It was Dr. Seilkopf, Germany's most noted meteorologist, who advised Dr. Eckener not to start before Thursday morning. Dr. Seilkopf is going with us as chief of the weather service aboard the ship, because of his intimate knowledge of the atmospheric conditions in Northern Russia and Siberia.

The Soviet government is taking the keenest interest in the Hearst-Zeppelin-Round-the-World-Flight, which goes for about 5,000 miles over its Russian territory, and has organized a special weather service throughout Russia and Siberia to aid us. M. Kaklin, the Soviet's representative, who is also empowered to tell us when we may photograph Russian territory from the Zeppelin, is expected to arrive today. The little Baltic states of Latvia and Esthonia have granted permission to fly over their territory, but forbid photographing any part of it.

Dr. Eckener was going over a huge pile of cables and telegrams of congratulation when I came into his office. Among the many were messages from the King of Sweden, French Air Minister Laurent Eynac, President the Master of Sempill, of the British Royal Aeronautical Society, who congratulated Dr. Eckener on his "magnificent trans-Atlantic flight."

Capt. Fleming came in with the latest weather maps, which he and Commander Eckener went over. One especial map contained numerous reports of Northern Russia and Siberia. After glancing at it, the old air commander remarked:

"We won't lose much, if any, time in getting to Tokio by waiting until Thursday, the original date set for the start of the second lap."

Capt. Fleming is dreading the arrival at Los Angeles. Advices received here indicate there may be 750,000 people around Mines Field when we land after making the first air crossing of the Pacific from Asia to America.

Fleming and all the other officers are greatly perturbed lest the spectators, in their well-meant enthusiasm, break through the lines and rush the ship, perhaps endangering it.

SEEK EXTRA GUARDS

There is no hangar at Los Angeles into which the ship could be placed, which presents the problem of protecting the Graf that is causing considerable worry here. Said Fleming:

"Los Angeles is our only landing place where we will not have a covered airship dock. I hope the Los Angeles authorities will furnish a large force of guards who can and will prevent the immense crowds from rushing the ship.

"Twice, despite the marine guards, the crowds broke through the lines at Lakehurst, and if there will be anything like that number of people around the landing place at Los Angeles that we are told will be there, then it will not be easy to control them."

It is planned, of course, to give Los Angeles the opportunity to file by the dirigible and see the conqueror of the air as was done at Lakehurst.

In Japan our landing place is 45 miles from Tokio and will be in the hands of the navy, so there is no concern about the landing there. But California's air-mindedness and the Golden State's enthusiasm is known even in Friedrichshafen.

BORAH DENIES BACKING BANK

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—(INS.)—Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho, was here today to tell the grand jury about a "national bank" he was supposed to be founding—the only difficulty being that it is all news to him.

He came from Washington in response to a telegram from Assistant District Attorney Harold W. Hastings, who is prosecuting a charge of grand larceny against Biago Viale, a builder, of Valley Cottage, N. Y.

It is charged that Viale sold stock in the Franklin Plan, Inc., on representation that Senator Borah had obtained a charter to establish the company as the Franklin National Bank. The senator declared today he never heard of the plan before.

The principal complainant, Joseph Abbott, New York tailor, declared he paid $1,000 for the stock, which later proved worthless.

Bartenders Bow To Dry Law, Change Name

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 13.—(AP.)—The Bartenders' International League of America has capitulated to the Volstead act and following a week's convention here will be known officially as the "Beverage Dispensers' International League of America."

But, according to Emanuel Koveleskie, Rochester, N. Y., international representative of the Bartenders' League to the American Federation of Labor, times have changed.

"The old time saloon bartenders still are tending bars, but as soft drink and soda jerkers, so in the interest of accuracy we're changing the name," he said.

AMERICAN GIRLS BRAVE WILDS OF RUSSIA

Arrive in Moscow Penniless And Hungry After Daring Exploration Into Caucasus

Two New York society girls, Mary Van Renssalaer Gogswell and Mable S. Ingalls, who were members of the large party of Americans recently touring Russia, tired of the monotony of the journey which seemed to have mostly business ends in view. So they left the well-conducted tour of the American delegation at Tiflis and started out on horseback over the mountain trail. The two girls dragged their weary limbs into Moscow, penniless, bruised, hungry and sun-burned after their harraising exploration tour of the wilds of the Caucasus with a boy guide from the Near East Relief as their only companon. Miss Gogswell tells her own story of their thrilling experience.

By MARY VAN RENSSALAER COGSWELL,

MOSCOW, Aug. 13.—We have had more thrills in the one week since we left the well-conducted tour of the American delegation than we have had in our whole lives.

Miss Ingalls and I are agreed on this point at least. But at that were ready to accept the kindness of some American friends when we arrived in Moscow yesterday, when they took up a collection to pay our taxi fare from the station and to buy us the first decent meal we have had in a whole week.

We came to Moscow without a cent in our possession, and with many bruises on our bodies from the hardships we had to go through on our own "specially conducted" tour through the mountains of the wild Caucasus country where the wild men of Russia all come from.

ALL MONEY STOLEN

We had some strange experiences, but the week of thrills culminated on the train from Charkov which finally brought us to Moscow today. While we were sleeping some thief took my purse which held our combined fortunes—about $450. The thief also got away with two gold bracelets, our trunk keys and my passports.

The latter loss has compelled me to cable the State Department for assistance, because I do not see how I can ever get out of Russia without a passport. At the same time it seems I am out of luck again because I am told that Washington cannot do much for me because the United States has not recognized Russia.

When we left the American delegation at Tiflis we traveled by horseback over a mountain trail 9,300 feet up. We slept in a school house the first night and in a peasant's hut the next night. We did not have much to eat except some cocoa which we brought from Moscow. Otherwise the food available was simply terrible.

KEPT IN DUNGEONS

When we reached Kutaiss we were arrested by the Soviet secret police because they thought we were British spies. We were held on a charge of taking photographs without a permit and they kept us in dungeons for two hours until they were convinced we were not Britishers stealing Soviet secrets.

When we got to the Ossitim war trail we found there was no way to get across except by autobus, which would cost us $75. So we promptly went into the autobus concession business. It was between 5 and 6 o'clock in the morning, but we drummed up enough additional passengers so that we reduced our own fare to $25. We charged one passenger a ruble extra for excess baggage.

We left our guide at Vladikavkas where with some difficulty we got tickets for the hard car train.

We narrowly escaped arrest a second time because we mistook a Red general for a porter and asked the general to bring up glasses of tea. We could not tell that he was a general because all he wore was a pair of pants.

The losing of my purse was the final blow. I cried oceans of tears and I couldn't do anything about it, because even our handkerchiefs were stolen.

CHICAGO, Aug. 13. — (INS.)—Prohibition agents placed four members of the steamship Manitou crew under arrest as the boat lay at its dock here shortly after returning from Canadian ports.

Library Man Sues For '$150,000 Job'

Damages of $150,000 was asked in a suit filed in Federal Court today against the American Steel and Wire Company by John Dutko, Czechoslovakian, of Library.

In his suit Dutko alleges that the company agreed to retain him as a laborer at $8 a day in an agreement made March 15, 1908, after he lost his right eye while working for the company. This agreement was made to halt any liability on the part of the company, he alleges, and was broken September 2, 1925, when he was discharged.

CREW AWAITING RESCUE SHIP

SEATTLE, Wash., Aug. 13.—(AP.)—Stranded on the bleak Arctic coast of Siberia, 300 miles east of the Kolyma River, the crew of the Norwegian fur ship, Elisif, awaited the arrival of the Russian freighter, Stavatoll.

The three-masted motorship was beached by its crew of 20 men to prevent its foundering. A radio message said the men had plenty of provisions and that good weather prevailed.

Capt. Evan Larsen, of Brevik, Norway, commanded the ship which is owned by the Swenson Fur Trading Company, of Seattle.

Recently freed from year's imprisonment in the ice pack off North Cape, the ship was westward bound toward the Kolyma River when she was again caught in the grinding ice Saturday night. She was so badly damaged that the captain decided she had to be beached.

Clyde M. Huntley, father of Charles Huntley, 21-year-old radio operator, received the news of the wreck and of the safety of the crew.

Fraulein Frolich, who was among the 200 passengers who debarked after the steamship had been delayed several hours by the heavy fog in the harbor, said that she had met her fiance in Hof, Germany, when they both made their homes there.

She said that her sweetheart had left six years ago to set up a business in this country, and that following a mail correspondence, she accepted his proposal of marriage.

MATES PERISH IN SEA, POET RETURNS

Explorer Tells of Life on Pacific Isles; Voyage Made in Science Interest

By DAVID P. SENTNER.
International News Service.

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—Three went out and one came back.

Gustave Davidson, poet, author and explorer, today came back from the South Sea Isles with the tale of how his two scientific confreres, W. B. Hargrave, of Colfax, Wash., and P. E. Haskevitch, former resident of Paris, France, disappeared.

"They left the island of Raivavae in a native catamaran boat last April bound for Tubuai and Papette," said Davidson. "Perhaps the storm got them or perhaps the sharks know their fate. But they were never sighted afterwards, although I have searched every island in the Austral group."

Hargrave was a relative of Harriet Beecher Stowe and a trailmate of the late Jack London, the writer, in the Klondike, Davidson said.

STRANGE TALES

Davidson, who hurried home from his Polynesian studies when informed his aged father was very ill, also brought back strange tales of the customs and habits of the island natives. The expedition has been in these islands south of Hawaii since May, 1928. Davidson lived and learned among the natives and was the first white man ever to establish residence upon Maria Island.

"The Polynesian men are the most handsome in the world—tall, strong and golden-skinned," he asserted. "The women, however, are not very good-looking, although they sing like nightingales. They do not believe in bobbed hair, wear bright red loin-cloths, but dress up on Sunday.

"The women are very gentle and love children, but apparently are devoid of the maternal instinct. It is the common practice for mothers to give their babies away to neighbors to be brought up.

NATIVES MORAL

"The people, however, are very moral. They believe in one wife to each man and generally have a committee of elders, of which the chief is president, to judge those who break the unwritten law of the tribe."

They have prohibition problems in this group of islands. Although the French authorities forbid fermented drinks, the natives are fond of imbibing native beer made from cocoanut cream and fei (bananas). In fact, there is considerable bootlegging of this commodity.

The marriage system generally goes like this, according to Davidson. The young man and woman gather in a hut with their relatives and there is much communal chanting, a prayer by the tribal chief and a bit of bootleg native beer to bless the event.

WORSHIP IDOLS

Although most of the natives have come under the influence of Protestant missionaries, Davidson said, in the event of a cyclone or other sudden catastrophe they return to praying to their idols which are 10 feet tall, of stone, with an Egyptian profile.

Davidson related stories of several narrow escapes from sharks. Once, as he was diving in the lagoon off Raivavae, a shark pursued him to land. Another time, natives harpooned away a school of sharks as they were working up an appetite around Davidson.

"They all wanted to set up house with me," he said smilingly.

The returned writer is writing a book about Polynesian matters and wants that fact included in this story.

Greenfield was recently found in Detroit after it became known that his company had obtained approximately $750,000 from purchasers of trustee Standard Oil shares. DAILY SHORT STORY

The Joy Clock

By N. FLORENCE LEECH.

MILDRED HOLMES closed the door of her tiny two-room and kitchenette apartment, and without pausing to remove either hat or gloves, tore open the large, imposing envelope with "Golding and Moss, Attys." in the upper left-hand corner. Her fingers trembled with eagerness as she drew out the short typed letter, and gazed joyfully at the pale blue check attached. "Pay to the order of Mildred Holmes, two thousand dollars."

The cheap alarm clock on her dresser ticked excitedly, jerkily, through a long minute, while Mildred sat, the check held tightly in her hand. It was not a slip of water-marked blue paper to her. It was a key to Paradise, a ticket to Heaven!

Mildred never had known anything but poverty. She and her mother had always struggled for mere existence, while Great Aunt Emma had held tightly to each screaming dollar. Now Great Aunt Emma had passed away, and her lawyers had written, informing Mildred that while part of the old lady's estate went to charity, the greater portion of it had been left to her. And Aunt Emma, Mildred had always been told, was fabulously rich! Mr. Moss had written that certain stocks had to be sold and converted into cash. This remittance would be followed by others.

Mildred gayly scrambled to her feet. She would put on her best frock, and go to a restaurant for supper. Then she would decide how to spend her check. It should be invested in something that would bring her joy. What should be her first purchase? It must be a dream materialized.

At that instant her eyes fell upon the advertisement of a clock which made her catch her breath. She had always loved clocks. Beauty and melody—a clock whose friendly ticking would comfort her lonely heart, whose chimes would encourage her. The price was startling—eighteen hundred dollars—but price, she reminded herself happily, did not matter now. She would have thousands and thousands before long. Golding & Moss' next letter would inform her definitely what she could expect. "I'm going to buy that clock," she resolved, her eyes bright with excitement, her cheeks crimson. "It shall be my Joy Investment."

Mildred told her employer that she had an important business engagement and could not come down to the office on Wednesday. He assured her that her absence would be excused, and for the rest of the day wondered what the engagement was. There had been a subtle change in Miss Holmes for a week. She was efficient, as always, but with an air of assurance previously lacking. He decided to increase her salary the first of the month.

At 3:40 on Wednesday a mummylike package was delivered to Mildred's apartment, and at the same time, Mr. Brent Roberts, of Roberts Brothers, arrived. The young man explained that his father, who was the head of the big firm of jewelers, was out of the city, and had asked him to take his place. Under his direction, the mummy was carefully unwrapped, and stood revealed, in the litter of excelsior and wrappings, as lovely as Cleopatra, unrolled from the carpet before Alexander.

"Wait till you hear the chimes," he replied, and with long expert fingers began making delicate adjustments. Mildred settled herself close by to watch and listen, and presently she heard for the first time the sweet melodious note of the gong, preceded by fairy-like chimes. Brent glanced with approval from the stately clock to its radiant owner. "I think you will find it satisfactory," he said, rising. "If anything goes wrong, let me know." But still he lingered.

Mildred thanked him, then added impulsively, "I know you are tired. Won't you let me give you a cup of chocolate?"

"I'd enjoy it," he replied, surprisingly.

Mildred's cheeks were flushed as she cut sandwiches and prepared the chocolate. A few weeks ago she would never have dared invite this man to tea. But having Great-aunt Emma's money made a difference. From now on, she could dress like all other girls, live in a nice home, entertain her friends. The rest of the check had gone for clothes, most of which she had now. She wriggled deliciously. How good silk felt!

At 9 o'clock Brent tardily remembered an evening engagement and hurried away. "May I come again?" he asked. "The clock may need further regulating."

Hours tick-tocked into a week, two weeks, and Mildred's "Joy Investment" became dearer and more dear. Then came a letter from Golding & Moss. It contained another blue check—but on reading it, Mildred felt herself sinking—sinking into a blacker despair than any she had known. The stock had depreciated, the lawyers informed her, and this check represented the remainder of her legacy. It was for $1,000. And the clock had cost eighteen hundred! Well, she was back where she started—the clock would have to be returned.

Next morning, she telephoned Brent, and when he came in response to her urgent message, she tried, though rather incoherently, to explain. "There isn't any legacy," she admitted, tears in her voice. "Fortunately, I didn't give up my position. And I've been raised to twenty-five a week."

Brent drummed on the table with his finger tips. It was a fierce tattoo, expressing, perhaps, what he thought of great Aunt Emma, or what he could do to a man who would pay Mildred a paltry $25 a week. Presently, he spoke. "Keep the clock," he advised, and "use the last thousand for—a trousseau."

She gazed at him with bewildered, tear-wet eyes, and he drew closer. "Has it ever occurred to you that I might need a Joy Investment, too, one that will keep time with my heart-beats, and grace my life and home? Mildred, will you—" Brent paused, for the clock was striking three.

"What did it say?" he spoke whimsically, seizing her two hands.

Color flamed in Mildred's cheeks, but she did not draw her hands away. "The clock said 'yes,'" she replied.

SCHILLER PARTY FOUND, SAFE

THE PAS, Manitoba, Aug. 13.—(AP.)—Anxiety for the safety of Charles A. "Duke" Schiller, Canadian air pilot, and his party was at rest today after receipt of a message announcing their arrival at Baker Lake.

Schiller, with Thomas Creighton, a prospector, and Jack Humble, a mechanic, set out two weeks ago on a prospecting flight into the North Country, along the shore of Hudson Bay. When no word was received for several days, officials of the Northern Aerial Minerals Exploration Company, by whom Schiller is employed, dispatched planes to search for them.

The first information concerning the safety of Schiller and his party was received yesterday from T. M. Reid, one of the fliers engaged in the search for them. Reid said that on August 10 he had located the missing party at Wager Inlet. The message gave no information regarding the delay in reaching Baker Lake. It was presumed, however, that in the flight from Wager Inlet to Baker Lake Schiller was forced down and that the intervening time was spent putting the plane in condition for further flight.

Farm Board Pay Checks Await Senate O. K.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—(AP.)—When Uncle Sam sends around his semi-monthly pay checks Thursday, those of members of the Federal Farm Board will not be delivered.

Under a technicality of the law, these $12,000 a year officials will have to serve without pay until their nominations have been confirmed by the Senate. President Hoover did not appoint the board until after the Senate had recessed last June.

SCOUTS CLOSE JAMBOREE

Eagle Scout Clark B. Johnston, of Crafton, who has received many honors as an ideal Scout, is reporting details of the International jamboree at Birkenhead, England, for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. His cabled news reports are being published exclusively in the Sun-Telegraph.

By CLARK B. JOHNSTON,
Eagle Scout
Correspondent, Sun-Telegraph.

BIRKENHEAD, Eng.—Camp days in England are over. Today Arrowe Park is deserted, the 30,000 Boy Scouts having brought the International Jamboree to a successful close.

We left yesterday for Leamington, and from now on our stopping place will be a hotel instead of a tent. We expect to tour several countries before returning home.

The official closing of the camp was featured by a brilliant display of fireworks last night. Fine weather increased the attendance, and there was the last-minute rush of the autograph collectors. Every boy in the Bulldog Patrol is suffering from writer's cramp.

The Pittsburgh boys have had a wonderful time, but were not sorry to leave. Better weather made camp life more bearable toward the last, but the day-after-day of wallowing in mud took much of the joy out of the experience.

Boy Scouts who are interested—and all of the thousands in Western Pennsylvania are interested—in the biggest event in the history of Scoutdom will find exclusively in the Sun-Telegraph news written for them by one of their own Scouts. Scout Johnston will feature the news which he as a Scout knows will be of special interest to Scouts here. Watch the Sun-Telegraph for his articles.

Opera From Morris Chair Radio Feature Tonight

By DARRELL V. MARTIN,
Sun-Telegraph Radio Editor.

"OPERA FROM THE MORRIS CHAIR" and a musical reading, "The Shooting of Dan McGrew," should excite our humor tonight when WCAE presents the third in a series of Rendezvous at 711. Marley R. Sherris, who can paint as good a word picture over the radio as anyone in the business, will give us the setting for the ballad of the Yukon. It all happens at 9 p. m.

The old sea captain has chosen a story of "Volcano Island" for the WCAE Harbor Lights at 10:30, but if you like the air better than the sea, don't neglect the WJAS wave at 8:30, where you will hear a gripping aviation yarn, "The Sky Snare," with machine guns and everything.

Adele Curtis.

Sacred songs, KDKA at 7:15, will contain the hymn, "My Redeemer." Over the same station at 9:30 Carson Robison of the Dutch Minstrels will give his version of "Peg Leg Jack," playing his own accompaniment as usual.

Paul Whiteman has selected a medley from "Hot Chocolates" for the Old Gold hour, WJAS at 9 p. m.

Adele Curtis, blues singer, appearing nightly with the orchestra at Sanders Inn, will bid Pittsburgh listeners good-bye on tomorrow night's program over KQV. She will be heard tonight at 11:05.

Purol Band, KDKA at 8, failed to make Radio Ralph's "best bets," but it is one of the evening highlights with Ketelbey's "In a Persian Market" and the "Second Connecticut Regiment March."

We Now Present

Whether or not it is pleasing fans, the WLW policy of announcing the names of numbers after they have been played is causing comment. It eliminates the "What was that?" type of listener who has become almost as annoying as the man who used to read aloud the titles at a movie show.

With Paul J. Miller, of KQV, in the farm district at Sheakleyville, Pa., spending a two-week vacation, we can expect serious damage to the fruit crop this fall. Plans for the new KQV no doubt will be preserved for the ages as the Napoleonic engineer carves hieroglyphics into tree trunks, indicating by pretzel design the modus operandi of the latest efficient hookup. Cows will be contented if Paul keeps static to a minimum.

Less technical is the mention that Gene J. Gold, reviewer of books over WJAS, was a visitor to the new studios in the Law and Finance Building last night. "Great! Wonderful!" he exclaimed.

Just five years ago the first network program was broadcast in America, with WCAE one of the first seven stations to participate in an event of this kind. Beginning at 7 p. m., a gala entertainment was provided for the curious who at that time were fortunate enough to own radio sets. Vincent Lopez, Happiness Boys, Eveready Entertainers, Gold Dust Twins and the Astor Orchestra were among the entertainers. The local WCAE announcer was C. A. Wakeman, who then was quite young in the game of radio casting. A. L. Macheney was the operator on duty. Actual network service was inaugurated October 4, 1924, with a broadcast of the Washington-New York world series.

Louis Kaufman's "Haunting Melody" has been as intriguing to radio fans as it has been haunting. Dramatization by Frederick G. Rodgers has been above the average, and the musical score by Victor Saudek has thus far furnished an excellent background for a well-developed continuity. We congratulate the KDKA principals involved.

Without using the name of his brother as a stepping stone, Ted Kaufman at KQV has risen to an immense popularity among Pittsburgh fans. Ted received "pointers" from Louis, but never once has he attempted to "cash in" on his brother's prestige in the radio world. They are exceptional boys with pleasing personality.

Mrs. Warren Harding's favorite song, "A Perfect Day," will be sung by one who sang it for the Harding party in St. Louis years ago, when the radio series "Face to Face With Our Presidents" turns to the late Republican leader in the Sunday broadcast over WCAE. Helen Musick, a dramatic soprano, of St. Louis, will be the soloist.

ZONING BOARD LETS PERMITS

The zoning board of adjustment has approved an application from R. S. Suydam to build a basement under a four-car garage in the rear of 5416 Darlington road.

Officials of the Pennsylvania College for Women were given permission to build a two-story power house and a 75-foot smokestack to replace an obsolete structure.

Decision was reserved on an application from the Improvement of the Poor Association to build a four-story dormitory, workshop and garage on the site of the former Labor Temple, 1001 Webster avenue. Attorney J. Howard Devlin, representing objectors, was asked to seek an agreement with the sponsors.

Dragnet Out for Albus, Prize Tomcat

ARLINGTON, Virginia, Aug. 13.—(AP.)—Because his name is Albus, because he has a fine white coat, and more especially because he has one green eye and one blue eye, all of Arlington County is on the lookout for a stray tomcat.

Albus wasn't a stray tomcat until yesterday. Instead, he was the prized pet of C. L. Staples, of Clarendon. But then adventure, or something, called him, and Staples, after spreading a general alarm, called on Sheriff Howard B. Fields for aid.

"We've thrown out the proverbial dragnet," Fields announced, "and if Albus is in Arlington County, we're going to catch him."

MOTORIST HELD IN AUTO DEATH

John O'Day, 24, who lives near Bellevue, was held for grand jury action today on a manslaughter charge as result of fatal injuries to Paul Westerwick, 20, of Mt. Nebo road, Kilbuck Township.

The coroner's jury took this action after it was testified O'Day was driving his machine at a reckless speed in Lowry Run road, near Camp Horne, July 21. It crashed into a fence and overturned. Westerwick was a passenger in the machine and received a skull fracture. It was testified an empty liquor bottle was found a short distance from the wrecked car.

NIGHT CLUB GIRL DYING IN FALL

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—(INS.)—They'll have to get another hostess "somewhere in the forties" tonight, for Eva Davis is dying.

It's just another Broadway halftone—only worth a paragraph or two.

"Jumped or fell." That's the way the police always put it.

"Davis is only my cabaret name," gasped the girl to hospital internes. "My real name is Eva Goldstein, of Philadelphia. My father lives at 1518 North Marshall street. Take me there—please."

It happens so often that it might not be worth these few paragraphs only Eva fell from her room in the Claridge Hotel at Forty-third street and Broadway, the very heart of the merry-go-round.

U. S. AGENTS FLY IN DEATH QUIZ

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—(AP.)—Two agents of the Department of Justice today were en route by airplane from Washington to Phoenix, Ariz., to investigate the death of Paul E. Reynolds, Department of Justice special agent, whose body was found yesterday in Phoenix.

The agents, J. N. Keith, general inspector of the justice department's bureau of investigation, and S. W. Hardy, special agent, left here last night and expected to arrive in Phoenix some time today.

The Department of Justice also announced that J. C. White, in charge of the Oklahoma City office, had left by airplane for Phoenix and that agents of the El Paso office would join in the investigation.

Boston's Famous Hotel Will Close

BOSTON, Aug. 13.—(AP.)—The United States Hotel, patronized by Daniel Webster, Charles Dickens, Henry Clay and other famous guests, is closing its doors. Also to be discontinued are the annexes, "Texas" and "Oregon," constructed when those states were admitted to the Union.

Progress in completing the new concrete highway between the McMurray road and Hill Church, giving a short route between Pittsburgh and Washington, Pa., has been followed by inquiries for acreage and suburban property on the Washington and McMurray roads in Allegheny County, and plots held by investors and prospective home owners are being improved. Eight new brick dwellings are in course of erection in Brookside Farms and in the immediate neighborhood. The Stevenson-Williams Company has a large force of men at work in grading and roadbuilding on its plot east of the St. Clair Country Club and several new dwellings have been announced on the Southvue Heights plan near the McMurray road.

Alterations estimated to cost about $50,000 are being made by the Chamber of Commerce of Pittsburgh preparatory to changing its entire office arrangement in the Chamber of Commerce Building. The restaurant has been transferred to the second floor and half of the third floor, vacated by the Chamber, will be subject to sub-lease to tenants. The restaurant, now closed, is expected to be re-opened September 1.

A new duplex improvement in the Twentieth Ward will be erected at 2738-40 Bergman street by A. C. Hill. The structure will be of brick and is estimated to cost about $10,000.

The Freehold Real Estate Company has sold to Frank A. Blake a lot on Fairfax road, Edgewood Acres, Forest Hills, for the East Wilkinsburg Improvement Company.

A consideration of $65,000 is given in the record of the sale of a property in Robinson street, Twenty-second Ward, acquired by Hubert E. Harkins from John C. Blair.

A plot 181 by 397 feet in Banksville road, Twentieth Ward, was sold by John McMonagle to John H. Hall.

The congregation of Trinity Evangelical Church, Swissvale, has bought from Dr. E. T. Craney a property in Monongahela avenue, that borough for $8,000. The lot is 56 by 135 feet.

The Allegheny Trust Company has sold a house in South Charles street, North Side, lot 25 by 100 feet, to Joseph Johnson for $5,300, and a property in Seabright street, 60 by 127 feet, to William F. Billinger for $2,600.

A permit has been granted J. W. O'Brien for a brick dwelling at 2052 Sherman avenue, Twenty-seventh Ward, to cost $6,500.

A new Nineteenth Ward dwelling will be erected by John Haas at 213 Meridan street. It will be of brick and is estimated to cost $8,000.

LADY AND MOTHER ARE BENEFITED

Pittsburgh Residents Credit Better Health to New Medicine, Ten Herbs

Every day scores of reports are received, telling how the new medicine, Ten Herbs, is ending stomach, liver, kidney and bowel disorders, rheumatism, neuritis and nervousness. Ten Herbs consists of ten wondreful, natural ingredients, which have a cleansing, soothing, correcting action on the entire human system, often assisting Nature in such a manner that the ailing person soon feels better in every way and is eventually benefited so greatly that he is willing publicly to recommend this compound to other sufferers. Learn more about Ten Herbs by calling at May's Main Store, Fifth and Liberty, Pittsburgh, where this famous medicine is being introduced.

"Ten Herbs helped me so much that I induced mother, who is past 70, to use your medicine, as she had about the same health troubles as I," said Mrs. Elizabeth Gott, 23 Roberts Street, Pittsburgh. "We both received the same satisfactory results that everybody who takes Ten Herbs tells about. My appetite was poor, and there seemed to be a heavy lump in my stomach. There also was a constant pain in my stomach. I became nervous and worried over my condition. My liver was inactive, and constipation troubled me. I felt sluggish and sometimes would fall asleep while sewing. My kidneys were so weak I had to arise five or six times a night, and there were severe pains across my back. I did not rest well at night, and my complexion became sallow.

"Ten Herbs improved my appetite and put an end to the heaviness and pains in my stomach. My liver and kidneys were benefited. I no longer had to arise at night, and the pains left my back. In place of that worn-out feeling, I acquired strength and energy. I could sleep well, as my nerves were quiet. My bowels were regulated. My general health became good. Mother and I gladly recommend Ten Herbs to the public."

Ten Herbs is being introduced at May's Main Store, Fifth and Liberty, Pittsburgh, and is sold at all May's Drug Stores.

Stage and Screen Shows of Week With Critical Comment on Attractions

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

DO YOU want to see a lot of fun? Take a divorcee with whom a young man who does not know her is in love and place her as a guest in the island home of the young man's sister, where other guests are the divorcee's ex-husband and his present wife, who also does not know her, and complicate matters by having another guest, a young women in love with the young man who loves the divorcee.

Then have a situation arise whereby neither the divorcee nor her ex-husband desires the others to know their relationship. Trouble is the result and trouble, if it doesn't happen to you, can be very funny.

VEST BUTTONS IN DANGER

Perhaps, for the sake of a little fun, you might not find it possible to arrange such a situation as the one described. Don't worry about that. It has all been arranged for you by Adelaide Matthews and Martha M. Stanley in the form of a farce, "Scrambled Wives," which is being presented this week by the George Sharp Players in the Pitt, with dire effect on such vest buttons as have not been wired to the garment.

"Scrambled Wives" isn't a play. No quality of imagination could dignify it by such a descriptive word. It is just a lot of hooey, the only purpose of which is to make you laugh. That it does so too illogically to entitle it to be credited with being a play in an artistic or technical sense does not deprive it of the merit of being a laugh-producer. That is what it is and we'll not be too critical about how it achieves such results. Just be content to know that it is farcical to the point of the extreme.

ROLES ARE WELL PLAYED

The central characters, divorcee and her ex-husband, are deftly played by Pauline MacLean and Kenneth Daigneau, whose forte in such light comedy is well exemplified. Anne Forrest, guest player in the company for the week, portrays the wife who is jealous of even any memory her husband may retain of her former mate. She, too, plays her part with artistic appreciation of the frail character allotted to her for delineation. Robert Fiske is the young man in love and he makes his petulance seem very natural when things begin to look dark for the character of the one to whom he is prepared to give his name.

Others who are effective in less prominent roles are Mabel Kroman, Cathrine Meison, Frances Neilson, Cledge Roberts, Clyde Shafer and Arthur Sprenkle.

'BROADWAY' ON GRAND SCREEN

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH.

The extravagant hand of the movies has had its inning with "Broadway," successful stage melodrama of night club life, and the result is being seen in the Grand. This result retains the original plot but presents it with a lot of scenic and musical embellishments which were unseen, unheard and undreamed of during its footlight existence.

Naturally, all this "added attraction" makes for more elaborate entertainment. But, somehow, we liked "Broadway" better in its original form. And certainly its dramatic story was the more effective for the lack of all the eye and ear consuming trimmings that the movies give it.

On the screen "Broadway" expands out of its exclusive back scene atmosphere of the original play and takes audiences into the night club proper. And what a night club! As it spreads itself through the projecting machine it must cover a couple of city blocks. Here scores of extras make merry, chorus girls dance and cubist art assails the eye, while behind the scenes gang war progresses and murder is done.

The story of "Broadway," which most everyone knows, is one of love, revenge and bootleg liquor. The romantic interest is carried by Glenn Tryon and Merna Kennedy. Glenn does well enough as the much-in-love and very second rate actor. However, he is too much in the camera eye and in his several song sequences it is obvious that someone else does the singing.

What we like best about the cast is Thomas A. Jackson, who gives a keen portrayal as McCorn, the detective. Evelyn Brent gives a pretty decent study of a revengueful gangster's "moll." Robert Ellis proves he is weighty enough in histrionics when it comes to doing a heavy role. He handles the part of Steve Crandall, dressy gangster.

There are many trick camera "shots" in "Broadway." Action of the players and the revelry in the night club is presented from many confusing angles.

Also there is an abundance of song. Among the numbers are "Broadway," "The Chicken and the Egg," "Hot Footin' It," "Sing a Little Love Song" and "Hittin' the Ceiling." But there isn't a "hit" song in the bunch.

Incidentally, and as expected, the players talk during the unfolding of the dramatic story, the dialogue being the same—or practically so—as that heard in the stage version.

AMERICAN

IRELAND

'Fall of Eve' Film in Harris

"The Fall of Eve," the all-talking film in the Harris this week, features Ford Sterling in an amusing farce of laughable incidents and embarrassing situations. He is a "big bathing suit and sweater man" from Chicago, with strong inclinations for the opposite sex. By threat to place his order elsewhere, he forces his staid business friend, Jed Prouty, into stepping out for a night of "whoopee," but their wives cause the plans to become badly tangled. Patsy Ruth Miller, as Eve, has her reputation seriously jeopardized in some of the bedroom scenes, but is saved in the end by Arthur Rankin, the son, with whom she is in love. The lines are cleverly written and comically spoken, especially by Mr. Sterling.

The picture moves quickly throughout, is filled with laughs, and is altogether above the average of bedroom farces.

"Now and Then" is a talking playlet, demonstrating that, while the youth of the last generation employed quite different technique from that of today in "throwing" a party, the final results achieved were about the same. Jack Wilson, in a sketch called "My Wife," and some unusually interesting news reels complete the program.

Aldine Offers Drama of War

"She Goes to War" is the current photoplay in the Aldine. And the "she" involved is Eleanor Boardman. Right up into the front line she goes. She hears the rat-a-tat of the machine guns. She sees men die. She kills one herself. All of which is rather a hectic experience for a woman.

The story of "She Goes to War" concerns an aristocratic society belle who goes to France and meets with a sort of reformation. Shunning menial tasks at first she ends up by scrubbing floors in a canteen. On the spur of the moment she goes up to the line in the hope of saving the man she is to marry from disgrace. When she returns from her trying ordeal it is to another man that she goes, and they "dunk" doughnuts and find love together.

Much of the old war stuff is in "She Goes to War." There are tears and mud. Goodby scenes and death episodes.

The production is presented with a snychronized musical score and with some incidental songs. These are offered by Alma Rubens in the role of another war worker. The picture is not a dialogue film.

A Rupert Hughes story is the basis of the production. It was directed by Henry King.

Walter Winchell On Broadway

Old Man Fate's Prank

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.

INSURANCE, of course, is a good thing and all that, but there's the story of James Shreve and his wife, Adele, whose father once was a New York Central official. The Shreves "belonged" and for ten seasons maintained luxurious residences here and there. One was located on Park ave, and they summered at Manursing Island, Rye, just opposite George Gould's love nest.

At the time, Shreve was president and principal stockholder of the Habirshaw Insulated Cable group. He admitted to intimates that he was spending $75,000 a year and could easily afford it. His eldest daughter was being tutored at Rosemary Hall, the fashionable finishing school in Greenwich, and another daughter, Polly, went to Spence. Everything was simply swell.

About seven years ago Shreve dropped his fortune when his company tottered and he was forced to relinquish the town apartment, but the family dwelled at the other palatial place at tremendous sacrifices. Shreve and his wife turned to Christian Science for comfort and struggled desperately to keep up something of the old front. It was a losing game, however, and came to a tragic climax two years ago when the Shreves motored to Boston to raise $100,000 to start a new company.

* * *

TRAGEDY OF FATE

THE deal proved successful and he was speeding homeward to start anew and make his faithful wife and children happy again. Driving through the pitch darkness between New Haven and Milford, Conn., they crashed into a parked bootlegger's truck bearing no warning light, and both were taken to a nearby hospital in a hopeless condition. Mrs. Shreve died barely a matter of minutes before her husband, and herein lies the final tragedy of the story.

* * *

Shreve had kept up life insurance policies of $250,000 payable to Mrs. Shreve, even borrowing from pals when he struck it tough, to make the payments so that she would never be in want. Had he succumbed a few minutes before Mrs. Shreve, the four children would have inherited the insurance; since, however, she was the first to go, the coin reverted to the creditors, and the children were left absolutely penniless.

THE MOANING MAIL

"DEAR MR. WINCHELL," affectionately writes R. F. H., "having perused your column for some time I feel constrained to make a few comments upon it. In the first place it is beyond doubt the vulgarest, most unrefined bit of depraved twaddle that I have ever had the misfortune to read. Its language touches the lowest depths of coarse and corrupted English. Its jokes are pointless, incredibly crude and in excessively bad taste. You are a blight upon twentieth century journalism, a cancerous growth which is vitiating the pure well of undefiled English. You should be summarily ousted; you are corrupting young minds.

"P. S. Why in hell didn't you print that poem I sent in, you big stiff!"

* * *

Vulgarest? Vulgar, a word of two syllables doesn't take the comparative "er" nor the superlative "est." It's—in the possessive case doesn't take an apostrophe.

"Have ever" isn't so cute, either. It is a locution almost as bad as a split infinitive, you hanging participle.

P. S. Your poem was an abracadabra of balderdash (punk to you!).

INCIDENTALLY

"DEAR MR. WINCHELL: Consider it a fan letter, but please read it. I want to get it off my chest. Only please, for God's sake, don't reveal my name or university, and crucify me. As contributor to our university paper I have clipped and copied and submitted many of the blurbs you print, all of which makes me a big shot with the crowd. The real object of the letter, however, if you have gotten this far, is that I lifted one of your recent articles about your village and turned it in for an English essay course. I just wanted to see how the professor would react to its composition, not mentioning where I got my material.

Imagine my amazement when I got the paper back with an A on it. The first and only one I received in this course this summer. All the others have been B and C, but the A surely gratified me, both in bolstering up my class rank, and gave me new ideas while copying it on the typewriter. I follow your syndicate stuff daily in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. Hope you won't give me the works for being frank about it all, and that your machine never gets on the blink."

Imagine YOUR amazement? Imagine MINE! I am forwarding your original letter to the teacher of P. S. 184 on 116th street, who had me expelled in 6B for being backward.

SPORTSMANSHIP

YOU probably recall the bravos that greeted Will Rogers a theatrical season ago when he saved Charles Dillingham's opera "Three Cheers" from the storehouse by jumping into the Fred Stone role after Mr. Stone crashed in a plane. It was done, so the announcements asserted, purely because Stone was Rogers' ace pal, and, of course, that isn't to be doubted.

But Will Rogers received $7,500 per week for filling the gap, a heavier wage than Stone was contracted for, and Rogers enticed capacity houses for a full season. But, if you asked us, the real sportsman of the entire affair was Mr. Dillingham, who might have closed the show and saved himself a great amount of cash, but he isn't the sort to throw a troupe out of work. For "Three Cheers" even with capacity houses all season and box-office breaking engagements on the road wound up losing $80,000! All of which came out of the Dillingham jeans.

Mr. Rogers, however, isn't aware of that fact to this day.

SINS OF ONE, ETC.

AMONG the current New York events is the startling, but thoroughly entertaining talkie, "The Cock-Eyed World," at the Roxy Theater. It is without a doubt the saltiest and most torrid show ever offered to the locals, and how it got by the bluenoses who censor such things is difficult to savvy. Mae West's various shady anecdotes which proved huge hits were tame, believe you us.

But what we started out to report was that the forthcoming two-reel talkie called "The St. Louis Blues," has been deferred by the censors who threatened the makers that unless a scene was re-taken the entire film would be blue-penciled. The objectionable episode reveals a brownskin lass reaching into her hose and extracting money for her man.

Go and see the Roxy smash hit and wonder!

OH, MR. WILSTACH!

Recommended to Frank J. Wilstach's book of best similes: Bugs Baer's: "As mean as the man who insisted on sleeves with his vest." . . . Barclay Warburton's: "As futile as a slow motion movie of a chess tournament."

SINGER

George Duryea and Sophie Tucker in "Honky-Tonk," in which Sophie is a cabaret singer. It's on the Enright screen.

Sophie Tucker Hit in Enright

It has remained for the talkies to bring stage celebrities of the musical offerings to the screen and the latest debut is made here by Sophie Tucker.

What a Sophie Tucker she has become in an emotional role! "Honky Tonk" is the name of her offering. It gives the cinema patron song and dance. The star herself renders eight numbers. And the way they went over with the Enright audience at the opening performance! Well, the star never had a better reception on a local stage.

FAULTS ARE FORGOTTEN

One cannot be critical with the picture. There are points in the acting that might be analyzed for faults. But they are all forgotten by the enjoyment Sophie creates. Whether she is weeping and broken hearted or whether she is singing to the plaudits of the cabaret, "Honky Tonk," Sophie Tucker gets you. She makes you feel her sadness or her joy. As a mother, she sacrifices the love for a home to earn money that her daughter can be educated abroad. Then the daughter, excellently played by Lila Lee, turns from her when she finds her mother is a cabaret entertainer. It is touching and the star makes you feel it.

SOPHIE IS BIG HIT

Sophie Tucker on the screen is as big a hit as Sophia Tucker on the stage.

Dick Powell is master of ceremonies for "Chinese Nights." On the stage several acts are presented with Melvina Sun scoring nicely with a fast dance. Then, of course, there are news reels and an organ recital.

GRETA GARBO PENN FILM FEATURE

By MILDRED FILLMORE

Despite some flashes of the famed Greta Garbo spirit, "The Single Standard," feature photoplay on the Penn screen, is a rather indifferent picture dealing with the difference in the effect of moral standards on men and women, a girl's demand for life and excitement, her realization of the cost, as reflected in the attitude of society, and her decision not to pay it.

Pictorially, it is a work of art, with some beautiful pictures, and if the essential action were shorn of tedious film-filling episodes, giving the real story a dramatic punch, it would be much more satisfactory. Those who enjoy the fiery Garbo however, may get enjoyment out of some of the seemingly unnecessary scenes, as, in one of them, she takes a night ride "at seventy," her companion a good-looking chauffeur, whom she and the subtitles (but nobody else) know to be a world war ace of good family.

TRAGEDY ATMOSPHERE

The episode has a tragic finish. And the chauffeur figures no more in the tale. Its just atmosphere to show the kind of lass Garbo plays.

The real story concerns this excitement-loving girl and her triangle involving the man she weds, played by John Mack Brown, and an artist, "Packy" Cannon, played with Nils Asther. "Packy" is an ex-sailor and ex-prize fighter. Eventually he is an ex-suitor for the favors of a married woman and tragedy that appears to be imminent is averted.

Miss Garbo has a few typically Garboesque moments in which she reveals her mastery of needs. Asther is the handsome "menace" of the cock-sure type. John Mack Brown's devotedness has a puppy-like quality.

BURKE IS SUFFICIENT

On the stage there is a presentation featuring Johnny Burke, squeaky-voiced comedian. "Over The Top," it is called and, true to its military atmosphere, it is mostly male, the only femme being Doris Roach, as a Salvation Army lassie with her doughnuts. She sings. The three Bernie Brothers dance precisely. The rest is Burke. Burke is enough. To see him drill a squad of rookies gives a laugh for the rest of the day. The presentation is in three scenes, opening with a night in an entertainment hut in France and closing with a patriotic tableau.

Elias Breeskin directs the orchestra in a group of selections from "Rio Rita" as the overture. Dick Liebert's overture has birds as the theme and he makes them humorous as well as tuneful.

Sheridan Square Film Is Comedy

William Haines is the star of "A Man's Man," screen feature in the Sheridan Square, playing a soda jerker of Hollywood who weds a film-struck girl played by Josephine Dunn. Sam Hardy, as an ex-film director who takes up the sale of fake oil stock, trying to delude both of them, has a very good role and plays it well. His plan to get Haines' bankroll and make a conquest of his wife through her craze to become a film actress, makes the basis of a lively, humorous story. Mae Bush earns honors as a hard-boiled film actress. One sequence has views of prominent Hollywood stars.

Child Badly Burned, Touches Live Wire

SHARON, Pa., Aug. 13.—(AP.)—Harry Fair, 7, of Masury, O., was critically burned when his clothing caught fire from a live wire with which he came in contact while playing near his home. Little hope for his recovery was expressed at the hospital where he was taken.

SPEEDY STEPS ON STANLEY STAGE

By J. G. SHRADLE.

Leaving the Stanley this week, the dancing of young Tommy Wonder probably dominates the photoplaygoer's memory. The remainder of the bill is about equal. It is entertaining.

But young Tommy gives two solo numbers during the stage presentation that is whizzed along speedily by the master of ceremonies, Brooke Johns. He is just a youngster and after witnessing his whirlwind offering it seems certain the future will look out for him.

FILM STORY NOT NEW

Colleen Moore comes as an Irish lassie in her first all-talking feature, "Smiling Irish Eyes." Colleen has James Hall as her leading man in romance filmed in beautiful scenic settings. There have been stories similar to this one. It tells of the Irish youth who comes to America to win success and the girl he left in Killarney thinking he has forgotten about her. But the plot is interestingly woven to satisfactory climax.

The supporting cast has been well chosen. The result is good acting even though some of the leading characters forget at times to keep the Blarney in their voice.

JOHNS IN TWO NUMBERS

Brooke Johns has two good numbers with the popular little Genie Lange. Arthur Nealy renders an Irish melody to the customers' satisfaction. A second song brings Johns into the number and it goes over. A comedy acrobatic pair draw the laughs. They're not formally introduced to the audience. Then, of course, there are the comedy and news reels, while the orchestra offers an excellent program.

There's an unannounced novelty on the screen, if the audience will look at it that way. Remembering the old days, slides tell where everything from doughnuts to nuts and bolts may be bought. Downtown cinema palaces long ago relegated them to the has-beens. But like everything introduced in the show world, they're doing a "comeback."

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

George Latimer McCook To Wed Portuguese Girl in France

WE all like to hear about the fascinating summer plans of Pittsburgh society folks. Even if we have to stay in the city the greater part of the summer, we can succumb to the delights of the wanderlust vicariously. But no matter how intriguing traveling may be, news of weddings always will take precedence in our interests.

Already we've heard of definite plans for three important fall weddings, and we may be sure that as September comes nearer, we'll hear of more.

And now I know of an engagement that will terminate in a wedding tomorrow. News has reached us of the betrothal of Beatrice Machado, daughter of the Portuguese consul and Mrs. Machado, of Havre, France, to George Latimer McCook, of Fifth and Amberson avenue. They will be married tomorrow at Havre, and will sail for home on August 28.

Dr. and Mrs. Edward J. McCague, brother-in-law and sister of the bridegroom-elect, who are now in Europe, will attend the ceremony.

* * *

EVERY day Canada attracts more and more Pittsburghers. The Foster Baird Doanes, of Murray avenue, will leave by motor Thursday for the Lake of Bays. They will be joined in the East by the Richard Donnellys, of Summit, N. J. Mrs. Doan, I might add, is the former Mary Louise Grabowsky.

Lillian C. Roberts, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Roberts, of Forbes street, is home from Hartford, Conn. There she was the guest of her sister, Mrs. Fred Inman Smith.

And did you know that Alice Tiers, daughter of Mrs. W. N. Ogden, of Oakmont, will leave Saturday for two weeks at Wildwood, N. J.?

* * *

MRS. LUCIE K. GILLETT, of the Woods apartments, Sewickley, and her daughter, Lucy Karme Gillett, will leave this week, I hear, for Cape May, N. J.

John D. Culbertson, Jr., of Grove street, and his son, Harlow Wheeler Culbertson II, have sailed for Bermuda.

News comes from Genoa, Italy, that Mrs. Aexander Montgomery Brooks, of Sewickley, are spending some time there. They have been abroad for several weeks.

PUTTING TASTE INTO COOKERY

Four Women Experts Rediscover Old Secret

An old secret rediscovered by four well-known women cooking experts is worth the attention of every woman in the United States. Vegetables are rated by scientists with milk and fruits as essential foods. Anything that will make good vegetables more delicious, hence more widely eaten, is of importance to the national health.

That is exactly the problem these women experts were working on—how to make vegetables so delicious that every member of the family will enjoy them and eat them. They cooked vegetables in many ways. They worked and tasted patiently. All voted unanimously in every case in favor of vegetables cooked in little water and with the addition of a dash of sugar. How simple—yet how far-reaching!

Try this simple rule today with beets, peas, string beans, lima beans, corn, carrots, parsnips, sweet potatoes, squash, onions, tomatoes, cucumbers, spinach, asparagus, beet greens and celery. Try using a little sugar and just notice the difference in flavor. Remember it does not make the vegetables taste sweet. It makes them fresher, brighter and better.

Add also a little sugar to meat and vegetable soup blends. Watch how it brings out the flavors of the meats and vegetables. A little sugar promotes successful cookery. Good food promotes good health. The Sugar Institute.

Wed for Voice, Sentenced to Sing to Wife

CHICAGO, Aug. 13.—(AP.)—Once more the neighbors of John Ropavac will hear the golden-voiced tenor of the West Side singing "My Angeline" in the morning and possibly also at night.

The singing will be done by court order.

Mrs. Ropavac testified that she married her husband because of his voice, but that he never sang any more, and that he frequently got drunk.

The court ruled that any woman who marries a man for his golden voice has a right to hear him sing, and ordered Ropavac to sing to his wife twice a day.

Is YOUR CHILD A DIASTATIC DEFICIENT?

A diastatic deficient is a child who through lack of the proper digestive enzymes fails to digest starchy foods. This results in a loss of nourishment, faulty digestion, sourness, acid stomach conditions, vomiting, chronic colds and loss of weight.
By use of the latest discovery of medical science—ACIDINE, a perfect anti-acid, plus "Japtase," the most effective of all starchy food digestants, (sold only as a component part of ACIDINE) these troubles can all be avoided.
Hundreds of mothers have told us ACIDINE has benefitted their children to an amazing extent—many undernourished children gaining from four to seven pounds in a few weeks.
ACIDINE is harmless and pleasant to take. It is safer to give a child than any other medicine of which we know. We guarantee it to give results or to return your money. We want no mother to spend money from which her children will not benefit to her satisfaction. Your druggist has ACIDINE or write Health Laboratories, Inc., Pittsburgh, Pa.

NOTE: Physicians will be mailed complete test packages and information on request.

Slavery of Whites Revealed in Old Deed

ROMNEY, W. Va., Aug. 13.—William Todd's reward for 18 months' labor for Samuel Pritchard was to be one woman, Mary Hinchley, one of Pritchard's servants, according to a contract made in 1771, found in an old raw-leather-bound volume of deeds in the Court House here. There is no reference in the document as to the woman being consulted, nor as to her color; but the context indicates that all principals were white, suggesting that slavery involved whites as well as blacks. The indenture is dated November 13, 1771. Pritchard further agreed to give each of the two a new suit of clothes at the expiration of the 18 months' terms.

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Aug. 13.—Construction of a new mineral industries building for Pennsylvania State College will begin immediately, it was announced today by President Ralph D. Hetzel and Edward Steidle, dean of the School of Mines and Metallurgy.

The building which is to be located on the west campus, facing the men's dormitory quadrangle, will be erected at a cost of approximately $343,283. The four floors will contain a large number of laboratories, class rooms, and offices to take care of all instruction work in geology, mineralogy, geography, oil and gas production mining, quarrying, metallurgy and ceramics, as clay and sand products.

The mineral and metallurgical industries will be invited to use the facilities of the building, and accommodations will be available for meetings of technical societies, according to Dean Steidle.

6 FREE IN RUM BOAT CASES

NEW LONDON, Conn., Aug. 13.—(AP.)—The six members of the crew of the schooner John M. Hathaway, of New Bedford, Mass., charged with conspiring to smuggle liquor into this country, were acquitted by United States Commissioner Russell H. Corcoran. Testimony showed the ship was seized 125 miles off shore, and no evidence was offered to prove there was an attempt to smuggle liquor.

The schooner was seized off Georges Banks by the coast guard destroyer Wilkes and 1,000 cases of liquor were confiscated several weeks ago.

The Hathaway crew was accused of setting fire to the ship and attempting flight in a small boat. The flames were extinguished by the coast guard crew and the vessel towed to this city.

Two Newark Women Meet Sudden Deaths

NEWARK, O., Aug. 13.—Mrs. Charles Drumm, 41, became ill in a theater and died from apoplexy shortly after arriving in the hospital.

Mrs. W. D. Jones, 70, was fatally injured last night, failing to see an automobile, police said was driven by Carl Ankele, rounding a corner. Her injuries were internal. Ankele was exonerated.

Poolroom Owner Combats Closing

MAN, ILL 8 YEARS, FINDS HEALTH IN FAMOUS KONJOLA

Was in Highly Nervous Condition—New Medicine Scored When All Else Failed.

Some of the startling figures showing the amazing success of Konjola, the new medicine, would challenge belief were the actual facts not known and verified. In less than six years Konjola has become the most talked-of medicine in America. In three months a million bottles of this remedy were sold in one state. In three weeks three carloads were sold in Philadelphia. Since the introduction of Konjola in Chicago, a few months ago, more than 90,000 bottles were sold. Is this not conclusive proof that Konjola is the master medicine; is a medicine that does all that is claimed for it? There are countless more reasons why Konjola is what every sufferer needs. Get them all from the Konjola Man, who is at the Dow Drug Store, formerly McCulloch's, Penn avenue and Sixth street Pittsburgh. If you would know how Konjola works then read every word of the statement that Mr. Raymond Crowley, Titusville, Pa., near Pittsburgh, made to the Konjola Man a few days ago:

"I want my experience with Konjola made public so that everyone who is ill may have the means to learn what Konjola does in the most severe cases. Hear my story and then judge what Konjola means to you.

"For eight years I had been in poor health. Ever since I was 12 year old my nerves were upset and caused no end of trouble. I could not even walk any distance without becoming distressed and nervous. I tried various medicines recommended for this disease but each one failed to benefit me. At school it was impossible for me to join in any sport. Knowing that something had to be done and that Konjola was highly recommended for such troubles I decided to give it a trial. Soon after starting the first bottle I began to get well. In three weeks Konjola did more for me than all the other medicines I tried in eight years. My nerves were calmed and soothed and now I am like any other healthy, normal person. That is why I believe Konjola is what every sufferer needs and I recommend it with all my heart and soul."

Konjola's 32 ingredients, 22 of them the juices of roots and herbs, each has a special duty to perform on the ailing organs, regulating and cleansing them. Soon a warm glow of returning health is noticed. Konjola might have been compounded by Nature, for this super-remedy assists Nature in restoring normal functioning to the important organs. Quickly and surely Konjola goes to the source of the ills of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, and of rheumatism, neuritis and nervousness.

The Konjola Man is at the Dow Drug Store, formerly McCulloch's, Penn avenue and Sixth street, Pittsburgh, where he is meeting the public daily, introducing and explaining the merits of this new and different medicine.

There is also a Konjola Man at Dow's Drug Store, Smithfield and Diamond streets—also Dow's Drug Store, 5939 Penn avenue, East Liberty.

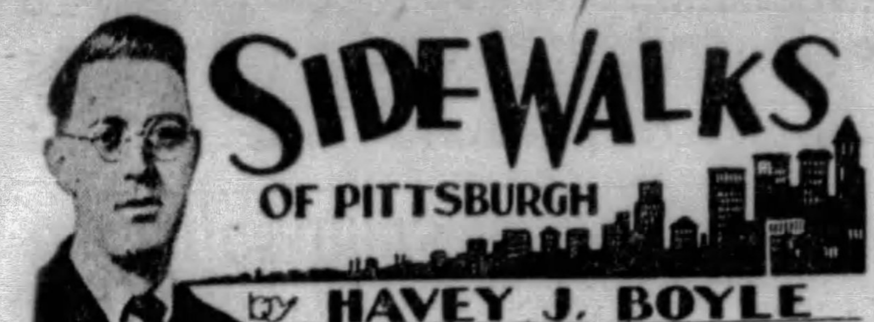
METROPOLITAN DISTRICT NEWS

FIVE BROOKLINE BOYS CONFESS ROBBERIES



I MAY change a little later on, but right now, having returned from Europe, I am moved to ask that the Chamber of Commerce here, the local boards of trade, the city planning commission, the city and county administrations, and all bodies having to do with the life in Pittsburgh cease all activities toward contemplated changes. I like the town just as it is.

* * *

The smoke is a beautiful gray-black, better than any smoke in the world. The climate is just right, a little warm one day, cool the next, and the rains are just the proper interpolations to the varied score. The hot pavements are easy on the feet and the litter of papers on the streets is of an artistic design when studied with an appreciative eye.

* * *

THE splash of the waters on the shores of the Monongahela and Allegheny somehow are more attractive than the waters of the Seine. And the arch in the City-County Building, built in the new regime, is to a local boy as beautiful as the Arch of Triumph in a certain antique city.

* * *

And that whiff which strikes the nostrils as you pass close by the local stockyards is a combination of the rarest perfumes, a boquet that would send into ecstacies of delight a connoisseur.

* * *

THE fire by night from the blast furnaces; a slow-moving packet, alight, passing under a bridge; the bluff overlooking the Monongahela; Sarah street at twilight; Penn avenue on a balmy afternoon, and Fifth avenue at night—they can't be beat.

* * *

In the suburbs the grass is just the proper shade of green, neither too deep nor too light, but just right. The flowers that creep along the lattice work of a porch right now are at the proper height and in full bloom, and the bushes just beyond the doors of Suburbia set off the scene in a fashion not to be improved upon.

* * *

THERE is cream for the coffee which makes the coffee turn into a light brown and is palatable beyond words. The gravy over the steak is of plenty of butter and of the juice from a well-fed cow; there is corn on the cob, with salt and pepper adding to the color scheme of the rich butter.

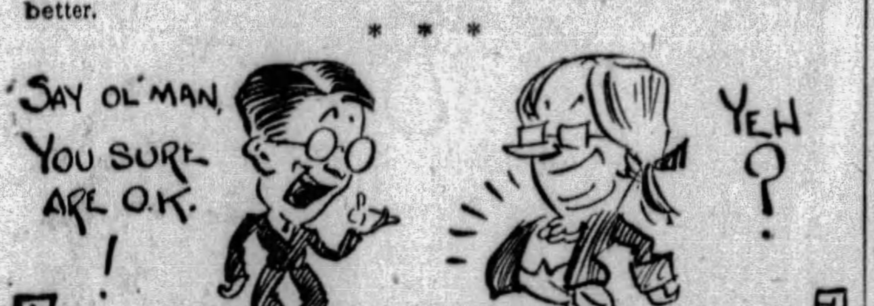
* * *

Our town, too, commemorates in many ways the deeds and warlike exploits of a great hero, Washington, as in Paris, for instance, there are innumerable reminders of Napoleon the First. But Washington street, and Mt. Washington, and the Block House, remind us of the man who founded an empire and the model of a republic, while the reminders of Paris recall the Corsican, who spoke bad French, and who exploited his military genius to establish himself as emperor in seas of wasted blood.

* * *

THUS my school lessons stand me in good stead and my provincialism and patriotism—of a kind—are buttressed rather than weakened by a short journey to foreign shores. I don't say I live in the best city in the best country. All I say is that I like it better.

* * *



So for the present I wouldn't have the ever-alert Chamber of Commerce touch a hair on the head of Father Pitt. Here and there may be signs he needs a hair cut or a shave or a bath, but with an old friend these things don't matter. To me he's the best old gent there is.

PARADE WILL MARK ROAD'S COMPLETION

South Side, Hill Top Join In Celebrating Paving Of South Eighteenth St.

One of the largest auto parades ever held in the Hill Top and South Side districts will mark completion of South Eighteenth street, if plans now under consideration by the South Side Advancement Association are carried out.

The street has been under construction since April 15 and is now nearing completion. Present plans set the fete for the latter part of this month.

South Eighteenth street is the main artery between the Hill Top and the South Side. For many years the road has been in bad condition, hampering traffic to and from the Hill Top. This year, however, the merchants were able to have City Council repave the street. The street has been completely torn up, a concrete base laid and over that bricks. To coomplete the road and give it a smooth finish a concrete layer has been poured over the bricks.

A committee from the advancement association is now conferring with Hill Top merchants asking their co-operation in the parade. Brentwood already has signified its intention of joining in the festivities.

W. LIBERTY AVE. IMPROVED

Residents of Brookline, Dormont and Mt. Lebanon soon will enjoy a smooth, wide boulevard from the south end of the Liberty tunnels all the way into Dormont, with the completion of resurfacing improvement along West Liberty avenue.

The improvement, begun last fall, has been needed for several years. The Pittsburgh Railways Company and the Bell Telephone Company completed their improvements first. New tracks were laid and the paving between rebuilt. The Bell Telephone Company laid underground cables along the curb.

The city improvement entered upon the last stage about two months ago, when the resurfacing began from the curb line to the street car tracks. For almost a year, now, residents of the South Hills boroughs have been compelled to climb a steep grade in Pioneer avenue thence through Brookline to Dormont to avoid rough stretches of paving along West Liberty avenue.

The new boulevard eliminates this grade and brings Dormont and Mt. Lebanon nearer to the city approximately five or 10 minutes by automobile.

PARENTS AID IN SOLVING CRIMES

Youths Held by Magistrate While Individual Charges Are Prepared by Police

Five boys, of respected Brookline families, admitted to Magistrate A. D. Brandon in Morals Court today they had embarked on a career of crime. Half a dozen robberies were confessed.

But as their stories indicated they were not all involved in each of the robberies, Brandon gave the police five days in which to prepare individual charges. He directed that the boys be detained in the meantime as "suspicious persons."

PARENTS PRESENT

Their parents, worried and anxious, attended the hearing, told the boys to make a clean breast of their misdeeds, and promised Brandon their co-operation in getting at the truth.

Patrolman Peter Connors testified he arrested Minnick and Bard last night at the billiard parlor of W. C. Irwin, 734 Brookline boulevard, and that they implicated the others.

ROBBED SIX TIMES

Irwin testified his place had been robbed six times in the last year. He estimated his total loss at $200. He said he could not recognize any of the defendants.

Connors said he expected to be able to prove that three of the boys held up, at the point of a pistol, a man in Chelton avenue, Brookline.

WILL DISCUSS PICNIC PLANS

Arrangements for the annual picnic of the Duquesne Heights Civic Association will be completed with a picnic committee meeting which will be held in the home of E. T. Zange, 303 Republic street, tonight. It will be the biggest event the organization has ever had, it was announced by President Joseph A. Heyl.

The members of the committee are requested to each bring a neighbor with them to take part in the final arrangements. Earl W. Altenbaugh is the general chairman.

AMEND ZONING AT MT. LEBANON

An act amending the zoning ordinance limiting the height of apartment buildings in Mt. Lebanon to three stories, was passed by the township commissioners at the regular semi-monthly meeting held in the Washington school building, Washington road, last night. This ordinance does not include the business section of the township.

STREET CONTRACTS

An ordinance on the final hearing for the rezoning of a part of McFarland road, from Dell avenue to Edwards avenue, failed to pass. A large delegation of citizens of that territory protested on several occasions to the construction of a three-story apartment building to house 14 families.

Contracts for the grading, paving and curbing of Mayfair drive and Virginia way, in the Washington Park plan No. 2, were awarded to the A. F. Jordano Company. The awarding of contracts for the construction of a storm sewer on Cedar boulevard was continued for a later meeting.

BUILDING GAINS

A report submitted by Building Inspector George W. Irwin from January 1 to August 10, shows a gain over 1928 for the same period by 11 permits and a gain of estimated costs of $870,437. In his report Mr. Irwin states he has issued 364 permits at an estimated cost of $4,341,779.

The following permits were issued: 254 dwellings; 19 apartment houses; 17 double houses; three duplexes; 10 business houses; 26 remodeling of homes; 29 garages; five temporary buildings; and one public building.

Bellevue Class To Hold Picnic

The Unity Bible Class of Trinity Lutheran Church, Bellevue, will hold a picnic in North Park, next Saturday afternoon. Members of the class and their families will attend.

BURY FRICK MAN TOMORROW

Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon for Henry M. Whitehouse, assistant treasurer of the H. C. Frick Coke Company, who died Sunday night in his home at 2349 Beaufort avenue, Brookline. He had been connected with the Frick Company 30 years. Three years ago he was elected assistant treasurer. Mr. Whitehouse was born in Youngstown, O., a son of Thomas C. and Emma Whitehouse. He came to Pittsburgh when a boy and soon after became affiliated with the Frick Company.

Mr. Whitehouse was a member of the Brookline Methodist Episcopal Church and had served as a member of the Board of Stewards for several years. He also was a member of Loyalty Lodge No. 696, F. and A. M. He leaves his wife, Mrs. Mary Evans Whitehouse; three sons, Paul, Henry and Charles Whitehouse. He also leaves his parents, two brothers and two sisters.

The services will be conducted at his late residence and burial will be in Mt. Lebanon Cemetery.

Runaway Machine Destroyed by Fire

When brakes on an automobile, believed to belong to Joseph Spraul, of 1527 Madison avenue, became loose while it was parked on Goehring street, near Kaiser street, late la night, the car ran 200 feet down the street, plunged over the hillside into a stone quarry and burst into flames when the gasoline tank exploded. Before firemen could be summoned on a still alarm the machine was destroyed.

First Cargo Barge Ready for Launching

The first steel cargo box-covered barge to be built in this district will be launched tomorrow from the yards of the Riter-Conley Co. at Leetsdale. This is the first of 11 similar barges to be constructed by the company for the Inland Waterways Corporation of the Federal Barge Line. Rapid progress is reported on the second barge.

MEUSCHKE OUT FOR BURGESS

For many years a factor in Castle Shannon affairs, Henry Meuschke, now president of the borough council, is said to be considering entering the race for burgess to succeed Thomas Delaney, the present official.

Injured in Crash, Man Asks $10,000

Claiming that he was proceeding across Beechwood boulevard at Wilkins avenue on a green light, when a car coming in the boulevard disregarded a red light and crashed into him, Howard Hager, Jr., of 1112 Braddock avenue, has filed suit for $10,000 damages against Thomas Pringle in Common Pleas Court. The accident occurred last New Year's day. Hager says his car was upset and his left leg and arm badly injured.

Versailles Woman Hurt in Auto Crash

Mrs. Mary Jenkins, 25, of Vine street, Versailles, suffered a fractured left leg and head and body injuries last evening when an automobile in which she was riding collied with another car in Elizabeth. She was taken to McKeesport Hospital.

Organist Accepts Call to Dayton, O.

James Philip Johnston, for 10 years organist and choir director at the East Liberty Presbyterian Church, has accepted a call to the Westminster Presbyterian Church, Dayton, O., he announced today. He is a graduate of the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music.

Husband Cruel Says Wife Filing Suit

Mrs. Ella B. Kohl, 86 Evans avenue, Ingram, charges cruelty in suit she has entered for divorce against Albert J. Kohl, 400 Dennison View street, Twenty-eighth Ward. They were married July 10, 1918, and separated July 5, 1929.

CO-EDS CLIMB 35 STORIES

There's a legend that if the flag drops, all will be well with the building.

And structural iron workers on the 40-story Cathedral of Learning this morning at 10 o'clock erected the flag on the topmost point. It indicates as well that the highest point in the structure has been reached, and that the steel work is just about ended.

Just a little more than a foot in depth, it will fly there until a high wind drops it. Workmen predict that it will be down in a few days, before all the erection steel will have been completed.

A half-dozen fair co-eds watched the ceremony. To do it, they had to climb 35 stories of stairs through the shell of steel, then three more on ladders to reach a small improvised platform hundreds of feet above the earth. With one of the students, Miss Betty Wagner, was her mother, Mrs. W. L. Wagner.

Injured by Auto, Child in Hospital

Anna Bucka, 6, of 3227 Harcums way, is in the St. Joseph's Hospital suffering contusions of the head, left leg, bruised spine and a lacerated left ear which she received when struck by an automobile driven by William Cannon, 32, of 123 South Twenty-third street, at Carson and South Thirty-first streets. Hospital authorities said that the girl's condition was not serious. Cannon will get a hearing in Traffic Court on a charge of reckless driving.

DRY OFFICIALS NOT IN QUIZ

Prohibition Administrator John D. Pennington today denied that his office had entered the investigation into the death of Jack Donohoe in Uniontown. Rumor that while at the Summit Hotel, near Uniontown, Sunday, he talked with Maj. Lynn G. Adams, of the state police, was denied.

"I saw Maj. Adams and bid him the time of day," said Pennington. "I had no conversation with him.

"It is true that an agent of the Pittsburgh office has been in Uniontown several days, but his presence there has no connection with the Donohoe investigation. He has been ill and is taking a rest."

The administrator said that so far as he knew there was no angle to the murder that would justify his office entering the case.

Scouts Enliven Camp Life With Daily Paper

Boy Scouts of the East Boroughs, who are camping at Twin Echo, near New Florence, exemplify their motto of "preparedness" by the publication of a camp paper.

One typewriter graces the camp and the punishment handed this machine rivals that of war correspondents. In this sheet the most intimate of camp personals are printed, in addition to current news gleaned from home papers that reach camp.

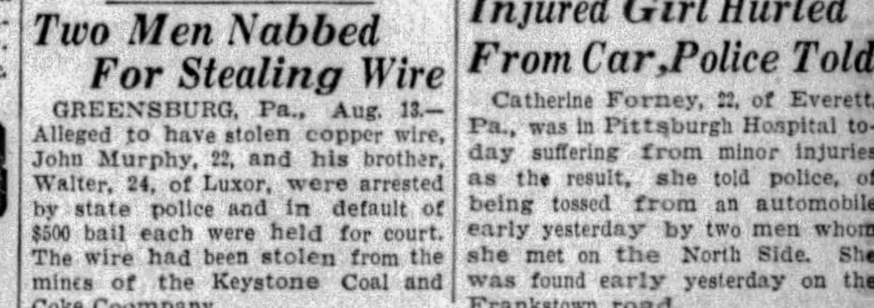
Overbrook Breaks Record In Contract Awards

Feeling the urge to close necessary business affairs before the borough becomes a part of the City of Pittsburgh January 1, Overbrook council broke all records for contract award, when projects covering many street improvements and totalling more than $100,000 were let.

Thirteen separate contracts were awarded, the majority calling for the grading, curbing and paving of streets. Six firms were successful in the bidding. Practically all the improvements are to be completed by November 1 and the contractors are to begin work at once.

Due to the time taken in awarding these contracts, councilmen were forced to curtail other activities and will meet tomorrow night in an adjourned session to dispose of these matters.

The ordinance authorizing the extension of Brookline boulevard was further delayed pending the settlement for alleged damage the road would occasion by passing through the Anderson farm.



BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Aug. 13.

The whole financial structure of Wall Street seems to have fallen on the mere fact that the Federal Reserve Bank raised the amount of interest from 5 to 6 per cent.

Any business that can't survive a 1 per cent raise must be skating on mighty thin ice. Why, even the poor farmers took a raise of from 6 to 10 per cent, with another 10 per cent bonus, to get the loan from the banks.

It took all that to completely break them, and nobody connected with the government paid any attention; but let Wall Street have a nightmare and the whole country has to help get them back in bed again.

Yours,

WILL.

POLICE BAFFLED AS ALL FAYETTE MURDER CLUES FAIL

ALLUM'S ALIBI IN MYSTERY SUPPORTED

2 Others Wanted for Quiz Surrender; Chance of Early Solution Believed Remote

UNIONTOWN, Aug. 13.—Collapse of the most promising leads in clearing the murder of former Constable John Donohoe is virtually admitted by Maj. Lynn G. Adams, superintendent of state police. Maj. Adams intimated that the investigation may now drag for weeks.

Since Donohoe's bullet-riddled body was discovered, nearly two weeks ago, investigators have sought evidence involving Glenn Allum, Washington County man said to have been one of the last to see Donohoe alive; Sam Spinnella and Ben Bergle, fugitives and alleged partners in a Connellsville moonshine conspiracy.

ALLUM ALIBI STANDS

According to information developed today, Allum furnished an alibi which the police so far have been unable to shake, while Spinnella and Bergie, surrendering voluntarily yesterday after consulting with their attorney, shed no light whatever upon the killing.

Bail for Bergie and Spinnella was tentatively set at $25,000 each today after a conference between District Attorney J. B. Adams and A. E. Jones, assistant prosecutor. Neither has made formal application for bail. They are charged with conspiracy.

Bergie was taken to Connellsville this morning to visit the scene of the "Slaughter House Still" raided some time ago.

Allum, arrested at the former home of "Big Ed" Wonsetler, where Mrs. Helen Hess and her daughter reside, is said to have insisted that at the time he is supposed to have been with Donohoe he was actually ill in bed at the Wonsetler home. Not only Mrs. Hess and her daughter, but other witnesses who have been interrogated, corroborated Allum's alibi.

BANKED ON ALLUM

The state police have, up to this time, based their major premise on the assumption that Allum was the man seen driving through Republic with Donohoe a few hours before he was killed.

The failure of the Allum, Spinella and Bergie "leads" to develop definite information has resulted in virtual admission on the part of the investigators that they must make a new start.

Maj. Adams told reporters he did not contemplate leaving for the present, but added that he did not expect to "be in Uniontown forever."

Although no conference has been held between Maj. Adams and Prohibition Administrator John D. Pennington, the state police superintendent said that the two organizations would continue to co-operate. There is no reason to assume that an intensive drive to "dry up" Fayette County is contemplated, he said.

Mr. Heinz also said that the bonds between England and the United States are too strong to be broken by any misunderstandings and he believes that in any emergency, England would quickly side with this country. He looks upon Russia as the weak spot in all Europe.

The meeting was held yesterday so that employes might welcome their president back to his native city. In the audience were branch managers from all parts of the United States and Canada, coming here for a sales convention.

AUTO WRECKED, FIGHT SEEN

Woods Run police today were trying to locate the owner of an automobile bearing a Minnesota license, found upset and badly damaged at the foot of Fayette street, yesterday. Four men were said to have been seen turning the car on its side in the middle of the street.

A report reached police that it was occupied by an employe of the Allis Chalmers North Side factory, and that the driver was attacked by the four men after he left the plant.

Officials of the Minnesota state highway department were asked to aid in identifying the owner of the car.

Boy Blames Uncle For Fire in Stable

SCOTTDALE, Pa., Aug. 13.—(AP.)—Fred Vinzeck, 15, and his uncle, James Christ, 27, were charged with arson and held without bail for grand jury action after authorities quoted the boy as saying he set fire to a livery stable at the request of his uncle, who promised him a fast ride on the fire-fighting apparatus. The arrests were made by E. W. Saber, fire marshal of Troop A, state police, Greensburg.

The livery stable, owned by David Ragen, was only slightly damaged. Christ was said to have been in the habit of loitering about the fire station.

GANG KILLINGS HIT IN TALK BY MARTIN

Racketeer Reign Could Not Survive if Mayor Wanted To Destroy It, Judge Says

Competition in crime, resulting in racketeer murders, could not survive "if the mayor and the head of the police department wanted to destroy it and set about to do it," Judge Richard W. Martin, mayoralty candidate, declared in his fourth radio address last night.

"If the racketeer pays money for political protection he does not do it openly," declared Martin. "The number, character and public notoriety of these evils furnish strong grounds to believe that bribery does exist. I do not say that political protection engages in murder. I do say it creates a condition from which murder arises inevitably."

Gang killing, said Martin, endangers innocent bystanders and are symptoms of political disease even more dangerous, because it reveals the presence of an unseen power that defies all law.

"Such power challenges the stability of government under the law," he continued. "Both cannot live. I believe that government under the law will not perish. The mayor of the city cannot stop people from killing each other. He could have put the racketeer out of business. He could have stopped political concessions to him. He could have dried up his source of revenue. If he had done this there would have been nothing for the racketeers to quarrel about."

The evil can be overcome, he said by divorcing the police force from politics.

"Let them know the mayor wants them to do this job and they will do it willingly, thoroughly, fearlessly," he stated.

KLINE OPENS TONIGHT

The prevalent belief is that concessions to commit crime are parceled out to racketeers in certain territories, he said, adding:

"The facts warrant this belief."

He referred to the shooting of Steve Monastero, gang leader, last week, saying that there have been 60 such murders in four years.

"We need not look to Chicago for terrorism," he said.

The radio campaign for Mayor Charles H. Kline will start at 7 o'clock tonight over KDKA. The first speaker will be Councilman W. Y. English. Friday evening Councilman John S. Herron will speak. The mayor himself will make his first address of the campaign at the mass meeting Tuesday night in North Side Carnegie Hall.

THIS WOMAN FOUND OUT FACTS

SHE COULDN'T BE BEAUTIFUL AND HALF SICK

"I want to tell you of my wonderful experience. Six months ago I was so thin and so sallow that all my friends asked about my health. I told them I was well but naturally thin, even when I longed for more weight and the clear skin that used to be mine.

"Because one of my neighbors said World's Tonic had added to her weight, I bought it. I was so ashamed of taking any medicine that I hid it from my husband.

"When I was halfway through the first bottle I noticed its benefit. I felt better, and my skin took on a little color. In a couple of weeks I began to gain flesh. To make a long story short, in four months I gained twenty pounds. I no longer had to get up in the night. I no longer belched up gas after meals and it was no longer necessary to take pills to get my bowels to move. All of my friends commented on my improved looks. I wouldn't tell any of them why, but since the improvement was permanent I think I ought to tell other people that I didn't realize I was sick and run down, and that was the reason I looked so bad. World's Tonic certainly is a friend to women.

"Mrs. Barbara Apader,
"Punxsutawney, Pa."

World's Tonic is an aid to health. It is a health restorer. It gives the body just the aid it needs to do its work properly. A really healthy woman is always attractive.

MILK STRIKERS OFFER ALIBIS IN RIOTS

Attending Party at Time of Attacks, Testimony Before Court in Contempt Cases

Judge James R. Macfarlane is to rule soon as to whether seven men are guilty of contempt of court for an alleged violation of an injunction restraining former employes of the Liberty Dairy Products Corporation from interfering with employes following settlement of the recent drivers' strike.

Testimony in the case was concluded yesterday, when the defendants took the witness stand and offered alibis by contending they were at a party given by Mrs. Mary Ross, 1904 Manhattan street, when alleged attacks upon milk drivers occurred.

The defendants are Carmen DeRenzo, Joseph Daggett, Dean Hough, John Desmond, William Connors, Frank Zerminari and Joseph DeRocco. All testified they had been drinking at the party and did not leave until 4 a. m.

The prosecution insisted the seven, in an automobile, had attacked milk drivers in Congress street, Shingess street and Dormont, between midnight and 3 a. m. It was testified that some of them left the party about midnight to get more wine, bu returned later.

NEW CHAMPION AT BRENTWOOD

Brentwood has another champion. This time he is the champion gum drop catcher. Now gum drop catching may be unheard of in some places but in Brentwood it created lots of interest.

Raymond Bauman

Seventeen-year-old Raymond Bauman, of 117 Van Wyck avenue, was crowned the gum drop catching champ in front of Gillespie's drug store. On this occasion when many of Bauman's backers were present, the youthful champion caught 153 gum drops tossed 20 feet into the air.

The gum drops were tossed over a street sign hanging in front of the store and Bauman, ever alert, captured every one of the confections. Nick Potter and James Moore, druggists, and Raymond Bloom, a garage keeper, and Evert Thomas, a contractor were witnesses. The four will back young Bauman to the limit if his title is questioned.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Paul Baumer and his soldier comrades all enlisted at 18. During their training, they were abused and persecuted by a former mail-carrier, now Corp. Himmelstross. Hating him, they beat him up the last night. Later, at the front, he appears. One of the privates calls him a "dirty hound." He threatens court-martial. Light sentences are imposed when the lieutenant learns the whole story of the corporal's abuse in camp. Paul and his comrades are back in the front lines. On the way they passed piles of new coffins. Their spirits are low. After days of fighting, the trenches are wrecked. Food is scarce and the barrage is so heavy that none can be brought up. Baumer and his comrades are in hand-to-hand fighting defending their position. After a successful counter-attack, night comes and all is quiet in the trenches. Again the shelling begins; attack, counter-attack, charge, repulse. Young recruits, with little knowledge of warfare, fall the easiest victims. Paul's company has been relieved and casualties are found to be numerous. While in swimming Paul and his comrades speak to several French girls across the canal. That night they visit the girls' home. Paul is granted a furlough but is sorry when he leaves his comrades. Everything at home seems changed and he is not at ease. He hates the silly questions asked about the fighting. Paul goes to see Mrs. Kemmerich and lies to her about the way her son was killed. He has reported back to the camp where he had his first training as a soldier. Paul returns to the front and is glad to be with his old comrades again. The Kaiser reviews the troops and they are disappointed in him. Paul, out on patrol, loses his comrades during a heavy barrage. He seeks shelter in a shell-hole. Suddenly an enemy soldier jumps into the hole and Paul stabs him. The man dies and Paul is remorseful. Looking through the dead man's wallet Paul finds pictures of a woman and little girl.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XXVII.

BY afternoon I am calmer. My fear was groundless. The name troubles me no more. The madness passes. "Comrade," I say to the dead man, but I say it calmly, "today you, tomorrow me. But if I come out of it, comrade, I will fight against this, that has struck us both down; from you, taken life—and from me—? Life also, I promise you, comrade. It shall never happen again."

The sun strikes low. I am stupefied with exhaustion and hunger. Yesterday is like a fog to me, there is no hope of getting out of this yet. I fall into a doze and do not at first realize that evening is approaching. The twilight comes. It seems to me to come quickly now. One hour more. If it were summer it would be three hours more.

Now suddenly I begin to tremble; something might happen in the interval. I think no more of the dead man, he is of no consequence to me now. With one bound the lust to live flares up again and everything that has filled my thoughts goes down before it. Now, merely to avert any ill-luck, I babble mechanically, "I would fulfil everything I have promised you—" but already I know that I shall not do so.

Suddenly it occurs to me that my own comrades may fire on me as I creep up; they do not know I am coming. I will call out as soon as I can so that they will recognize me. I will stay lying in front of the trench until they answer me.

The first star. The front remains quiet. I breathe deeply and talk to myself in my excitement: "No foolishness now, Paul—quiet, Paul, quiet—then you will be saved, Paul. When I use my Christian name, it works as though someone else spoke to me, it has more power.

The darkness grows. My excitement subsides, I wait cautiously until the first rocket goes up. Then I crawl out of the shell hole. I have forgotten the dead man. Before me lies the oncoming night and the pale gleaming field. I fix my eye on a shell hole; the moment the light dies I scurry over into it, grope farther, spring into the next, duck down, scramble onward.

I come nearer. There, by the light of a rocket I see something move in the wire, then it stiffens and lies still. Next time I see it again, yes, they are men from our trench. But I am suspicious until I recognize our helmets. Then I call. And immediately an answer rings out, my name: "Paul—Paul—"

I call again in answer. It is Kat and Albert who have come out with a stretcher to look for me.

"Are you wounded?"

"No, no—"

We drop into the trench. I ask for something to eat and wolf it down. Muller gives me a cigaret. In a few words I tell what happened. There is nothing new about it; it happens quite often. The night attack is the only unusual feature of the business. In Russia Kat once lay for two days behind the enemy lines before he could make his way back.

I do not mention the dead printer.

But by next morning I can keep it to myself no longer. I must tell Kat and Albert. They both try to calm me. "You can't do anything about it. What else could you have done? That is what you are here for."

I listen to them and feel comforted, reassured by their presence. It was mere driveling nonsense that I talked out there in the shell hole.

"Look there, for instance," points Kat.

On the fire step stand some snipers. They rest their rifles with telescopic sights on the parapet and watch the enemy front. Once and again a shot cracks out.

Then we hear the cry: "That's found a billet!" "Did you see how he leapt in the air?" Sergt. Oellrich turns round proudly and scores his points. He heads the shooting list for today with three unquestionable hits.

"What do you say to to that?" asks Kat.

I nod.

"If he keeps that up he will get a little colored bird for his buttonhole by the evening," says Albert.

"Or rather he will soon be made acting sergeant major," says Kat.

We look at one another. "I would not do it," I say.

"All the same," says Kat, "it's very good for you to see it just now."

Sergt. Oellrich returns to the fire step. The muzzle of his rifle searches to and fro.

"You don't need to lose any more sleep over your affair," nods Albert.

And now I hardly understand it myself any more.

"It was only because I had to be there with him so long," I say. "After all, war is war."

Oellrich's rifle cracks out sharp and dry.

* * *

We have dropped in for a good job. Eight of us have to guard a village that has been abandoned because it is being shelled too heavily.

In particular we have to watch the supply dump as that is not yet empty. We are supposed to provision ourselves from the same store. We are just the right people for that—Kat, Albert, Muller, Tjaden, Detering, our whole gang is there. Haie is dead, though. But we are mighty lucky all the same, all the other squads have had more casualties than we have.

Now we develop an immense industry. This is an opportunity not only to stretch one's legs, but to stretch one's soul also. We make the best use of such opportunities. The war is too desperate to allow us to be sentimental for long. That is only possible so long as things are not going too badly. After all, we cannot afford to be anything but matter-of-fact. So matter-of-fact, indeed, that I often shudder when a thought from the days before the war comes momentarily into my head. But it does not stay long.

We have to take things as lightly as we can, so we make the most of every opportunity, and nonsense stands stark and immediate beside horror. It cannot be otherwise, that is how we hearten ourselves. So we zealously set to work to create an idyll—an idyll of eating and sleeping, of course.

The floor is first covered with mattresses which we haul in from the houses. Even a soldier likes to sit soft. Only in the middle of the floor is there any clear space. Then we furnish ourselves with blankets and eiderdowns, luxurious soft affairs. There is plenty of everything to be had in the town. Albert and I find a mahogany bed which can be taken to pieces, with a sky of blue silk and a lace coverlet. We sweat like monkeys moving it in, but a man cannot let a thing like that slip, and it would certainly be shot to pieces in a day or two.

Kat and I do a little patrolling through the houses. In a very short time we have collected a dozen eggs and two pounds of fairly fresh butter. Suddenly there is a crash in the drawing room, and an iron stove hurtles through the wall past us and on, a yard from us out through the wall behind. Two holes. It comes from the house opposite where a shell has just landed. "The swine," grimaces Kat, and we continue our search. All at once we prick up our ears, hurry across, and suddenly stand petrified—there running up and down in a little sty are two live suckling pigs. We rub our eyes and look once again to make certain. Yes, they are still there. We seize hold of them—no doubt about it, two real young pigs.

This will make a grand feed. About 20 yards from our dugout there is a small house that was used as an officers' billet. In the kitchen is an immense fireplace with two ranges, pots, pans and kettles—everything, even to a stack of small chopped wood in an outhouse—a regular cook's paradise.

Two of our fellows have been out in the fields all the morning hunting for potatoes, carrots and green peas. We are quite uppish and sniff at the tinned stuff in the supply dump, we want fresh vegetables. In the dining room there are already two heads of cauliflower.

The suckling pigs are slaughtered. Kat sees to them. We want to make potato cakes to go with the roast. But we cannot find a grater for the potatoes. However, that difficulty is soon got over. With a nail we punch a lot of holes in a pot lid and there we have a grater. Three fellows put on thick gloves to protect their fingers against the grater, two others peel the potatoes, and the business gets going.

Kat samples the suckling pigs, the carrots, the peas, and the cauliflower. He even mixes a white sauce for the cauliflower. I fry the pancakes, four at a time. After 10 minutes I get the knack of tossing the pan so that the pancakes which are done on the one side sail up, turn in the air and are caught again as they come down. The suckling pigs are baked whole. We all stand round them as before an altar.

In the meantime we receive visitors, a couple of wireless men, who are generously invited to the feed. They sit in the living room, where there is a piano. One of them plays, the other sings "An der Weser." He sings feelingly, but with a rather Saxon accent. All the same it moves us as we stand at the fireplace preparing the good things.

Then we begin to realize that we are in for trouble. The observation balloons have spotted the smoke from our chimney, and the shells start to drop on us. They are those damned spraying little daisy-cutters that make only a small hole and scatter widely close to the ground. They keep dropping closer and closer all round us; still we cannot leave the grub in the lurch. A couple of splinters whizz through the top of the kitchen window. The roast is already cooked. But frying the pancakes is getting difficult. The explosions come so fast that the splinters strike oftener and oftener against the wall of the house and sweep in through the window. Whenever I hear a shell coming I drop on one knee with the pan and the pancakes, and duck behind the wall of the window. Immediately afterwards I am up again and going on with the frying

The Saxons stop singing—a fragment has smashed into the piano. At last everything is ready and we organize the transport of it back to the dugout. After the next explosion two men dash across the 50 yards to the dugout with the pots of vegetables. We see them disappear.

The next shot. Everyone ducks and then two more trot off, each with a big can of finest grade coffee, and reach the dugout before the next explosion.

Then Kat and Kropp seize the masterpiece—the big dish with the brown, roasted sucking pigs. A screech, a knee bend, and away they race over the 50 yards of open country.

I stay to finish frying my last four pancakes; twice I have to drop on the floor—after all, it means four pancakes more, and they are my favorite dish.

Then I grab the plate with the great pile of cakes and squeeze myself behind the house door. A hiss, a crash, and I gallop off with the plate clamped against my chest with both hands. I am almost in, I run like a deer, sweep round the wall, fragments clatter against the concrete, I tumble down the cellar steps, my elbows are skinned, but I have not lost a single pancake, nor even broken the plate.

FOREST LOVE by HAZEL LIVINGSTON

Jack Tells Nancy of His Plan to Visit Wife in The High Sierras

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Becoming cynical at her mother's wish to have her marry for wealth and social position, Nancy Hollenbeck, young and beautiful, accepts the ardent attentions of Jack Beamer, supposedly an Englishman of noble birth, who is married to a wealthy invalid. On a mountain trip Nancy, after a brief courtship, makes a hasty marriage with a handsome ranger, Roger Decatur. Sickening of the loneliness, with Roger away, she returns home to resume her old life, still keeping her marriage a secret. When Roger, deeply in love with Nancy, comes to take her back, she tells him unless he makes his home in the city she will divorce him, although she realizes her own love for him. After Roger leaves, Nancy continues her clandestine affair with Beamer, whose wife, aware of his philandering, refuses to free him. Louise, Nancy's sister, always second with men, now has a rich, though elderly, suitor. Beamer takes Nancy out to his stock farm on a jaunt. Mrs. Beamer unexpectedly arrives and Nancy is bundled into the kitchen. Beamer decides to placate his wife to protect his own financial welfare. Nancy, though humiliated, forgives all when he phones. At home Nancy assails her mother for catering to Lachman, Louise's rich admirer. When Louise, who is in love with Mat Tully, forgets her family dinner for Lachman, disaster impends. When her family is all together, Louise suddenly announces she is going to get married. At first her mother forbids her to do so, but later relents. Louise and Mat are married and leave on honeymoon.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XLV.

"I'M going up to the High Sierras for a few days—a week, maybe ten days," Jack Beamer told Nancy one warm night in June.

They were dining in a courtyard tea room they had found on the highway. It was dark and quiet, and rambling. A forest of Japanese umbrellas, potted bamboo and unexpected and meaningless archways made it safe for nervous couples who had no wish to meet friends. Jack and Nancy came there often, so often that they had got quite used to the warm salads and cold coffee, and hardly minded any more. There are so few places where you're not in constant terror of bumping into someone you know.

Not that Nancy cared. She had grown careless and indifferent of public opinion in the last few months. "Suppose someone does see us? What can they do about it?" she demanded listlessly. But Jack suddenly cared very much. "It might make a great deal of difference," he told her seriously. "Until I get this divorce settled, I've got to be darn careful. You don't realize how serious this is!"

"Maybe not," she smiled, patting his arm reassuringly. "But there's no use getting excited about it, because I've had all the seriousness I want in this life. From now on I'm just frivolous, Golddigger Nancy!"

"I wish you wouldn't talk like that. It doesn't suit you!" he said irritably, and Nancy laughed again, too loudly.

The strain was telling on them both, on Nancy more than him, he thought sometimes. She was becoming so reckless, so bitter. Losing her looks too. Not permanently of course. Her slim figure was as lovely, her perfect profile as flawless, her flyaway hair as soft and lustrous. But the bloom, the radiance that had attracted him at first, was gone. In its place was a hard brilliance that almost frightened him sometimes . . . God save him from a clever woman . . . and she used too much lipstick. It rubbed off unpleasantly when he kissed her. Yes, things couldn't go on like this much longer. The High Sierras would solve the problem once and forever, and to everyone's complete satisfaction, even Anita's . . .

"Why the High Sierras?" she asked after a long pause. She'd have to get over that silly habit of wincing every time she heard the name, so she might as well speak of it. Besides there was no reason why Jack shouldn't go if he wanted to, it was nothing to her. She had put all that out of her life.

"Anita . . . Anita wishes it."

"Anita!"

Jack wriggled uncomfortably in the spindle tearoom chair. "Most fellows would lie out of it, but I'm going to tell you the truth," he said slowly. "That's how much I care about you, baby, and count on you to understand."

"Well, I'm certainly not jealous!" Nancy smiled, but a sudden fear touched her, leaving her hands cold and clammy. She had never doubted him, never thought of his going back to his wife. She felt her world crashing, the very earth dropping out from under her feet . . . "Do you mean you're going—back?" she finished, as gamely as she could.

"Back? To Anita! Oh my God, no. Wait! You don't understand. It's just that I . . . well, it's this way, Nancy. I'm a quixotic fool, but the plain truth is that the woman is dying—"

"Dying! She's been dying for the last ten years. Ever since I first heard of her!"

"Yes, I know, but this time she is. Her doctor took me aside. Heart. Any minute——"

Nancy reached for a cigaret and lit it clumsily. "Then she'd better stay out of the mountains."

"Exactly what I told her. Good God, I talked till I was black in the face. Snelling, the specialist, told her the same thing, but she's set on it, and as he told me afterward, it seems to be a sort of dying wish, and so if you look at it that way, letting her have it at the last and all that, why I'm willing to go along, and she's agreed that if I'll take the trip with her she'll go right on to Reno and get the divorce . . . so that in September . . ." His hand found hers, he pressed it reassuringly. Then he reached for his handkerchief and mopped his perspiring forehead. "In September we'll be married, and no more eating at this darn speak-easy. God, it's hot in here!"

"You're not angry with me, baby? You don't think that I—that Anita and I—"

"I never think. I'd go crazy if I started thinking. Where's my purse? But I'm not crazy about the idea, Jack. Somehow, I—well—I don't like it."

He shrugged. "Well,—that's the situation. I can't help it."

She was suddenly sorry for him. "Never mind, honey, it doesn't matter. Is there anything left in the flask? We'll drink to September!"

* * *

If I were in love with him I could hardly miss him more, Nancy decided after he had gone. Or was it Lou she missed? Or . . . but she hardly ever thought of Roger any more, so it couldn't be he . . . It was just everything, the worry, the waiting . . .

"What's the matter, Nancy, aren't you well?" May Belle Craig, now May Belle Neal, and not a bit more diplomatic, shrieked at her across the table at a bridge tea.

"Perfectly. Don't I look it?" Nancy demanded, conscious of the eyes of the other two girls upon her too.

"No you don't. You look off your oats. I suppose with so much sickness in the house, and Louise getting married in such a hurry you've had your hands full. That's what I told mamma."

"Yes, we haven't got our breath yet . . . did you bid two diamonds partner?"

"That was the most romantic affair. . . .My dear, I mean it was the most exciting thing the way he turned out to be the Tully boy. And I always said that he had the most wonderful. . .I pass. . ."

"Two spades!"

"Three diamonds," Nancy murmured automatically. Now that they had started on Mat Tully again, they'd let her alone. . .Her mind went back to her own troubles. . . she must see Mr. Hess, the attorney in the morning . . . Maybe it would be better to brazen things out and go up to Reno. . .there was money enough left . . .

She heard May Belle's shrill treble. . .caught Jack Beamer's name. . ."Oh, I beg your pardon. Did you speak to me, May Belle?"

"I certainly did. I just heard the grandest gossip. About Jack Beamer—"

Nancy's eyes were glued on the cards in her hand. She fixed her lips in a set smile. Then everybody knew about the High Sierras. . .trust May Belle's mother for making the most of that. . .

But May Belle, freckled face aglow with news, had something much better than that to tell. "You'll get a great kick out of this . . . You know I've started riding lessons with Gil's mother. Of course I haven't a mount of my own yet, but she said if I liked it, she'd . . . but you don't want to hear about that. The old girl's not half bad really, for a mother-in-law. But what do you think? We were getting our horses and the English groom (positively the best looking thing) said something about polo, and I said I knew Jack, and he said, 'That bounder!' and I, just to see what he'd say, I said at least he was a great horseman, and . . . Nancy, are you listening? You ought to, after the affair you had with him up the River last summer. You'll just die at this! He said well he ought to know something about horses because he used to be a groom in Wickham or Cheshire or one of those funny English names, and he said he came over here without anything but brass—you know how the British talk—and he married Anita Chilton, and made her think he came from a grand family, when of course he didn't, his father kept a fried fish shop—don't you love it? Fried fish! . . . Nancy Hollenbeck, have you lost your sense of humor? My dear, you aren't angry? Why I never thought—"

This Marriage

NEXT to knowing how to catch a man, the most important thing, to a woman, is to know how to let him GO!

Among the Kurdish tribes, a man is allowed four wives, but usually takes only one; in America he is allowed only one wife, but usually borrows a few others.

Married Woman: One who gets a real kick out of lunching at a hotel—and a big thrill out of the shoe-clerk's assurance that she has an aristocratic instep.

When a married man is thrown overboard, somehow, he can always manage to swim to the other side, and land in some other woman's arms—or just to float around, until some other woman picks him up.

* * *

Many a young husband doesn't know where his next meal is coming from—until he sees the label on the can.

Many a woman starts a row over nothing, just to relieve the monotony. The average man's emotions toward his wife are so deeply buried, that it takes a domestic earthquake to bring them to the surface.

Sometimes, a barber shop can change a man in twenty minutes, as marriage could never change him in twenty years.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Summer Drinks and Their Health Value

THIRST is one of the effects produced by hot weather. Even those persons who rarely take a drop of liquid between meals, find themselves yearning for a drink.

The manufacturers of carbonated beverages are rendering a great public service. Under the most sanitary conditions, using the purest of ingredients, they are producing wholesome, delicious and really nutritious summer drinks. Indeed, their products are good for us every day of the year.

When it comes to the discussion of any beverage sold in a bottle, we are on dangerous ground. So intense is the feeling of many good people that they hate the "bottle." That object has been used through so many years as the symbol of drunkenness, debauchery, and crime, that it is difficult for them to look otherwise than in doubt upon anything put up in a bottle.

A moment's thought will show that this conclusion is illogical and unjust. There is a vast difference these days between the bottle and what the bottle holds.

The making of carbonated beverages is a scientific process. The recognized makers employ expert chemists and other scientists. Their products are non-alcoholic. They may be purchased with perfect propriety by the most pious of persons. Their use is indorsed by all moralists. A case of bottles containing one of these drinks, may be delivered at your door without raising a question of your attitude toward prohobition.

Mr. Bryan, chief apostle of temperance, was a devotee of grape-juice. You may buy this, or one of the many brands of ginger ale, sarsaparilla, lemon "pop," or other flavors knowing it is not violative of your temperance views. By so doing you will be giving your family a delicious and health promoting beverage.

The body needs a lot of fluid in hot weather. There is no better way to get it than by the use of these beverages. Good as it is, we get tired of water. The flavored product seems to hit the spot.

Answers to Health Queries

C. T. Q.—I perspire very freely—the slightest exertion will bring on the trouble. I am 16 years of age, weighing 165 pounds and seem well and strong. What would you advise?

A.—Where perspiration is excessive there is usually some nervous condition at the source of the trouble. Be sure there is no infection or other disturbance which may be causing the symptom. Some persons perspire more easily than others when there is no apparent cause.

* * *

F. A. M. Q.—Two months ago I had my tonsils removed and since have gained about 20 pounds. I will admit that I eat sweets. If I restrict my diet will I go back to my former weight or is the operation the reason for my gain

A.—The operation is not at fault. It is possible that your health is better since the removal of the tonsils, but if you watch your diet and take plenty of outdoor exercise you should not be burdened with excess weight.

* * *

E. L. B. Q.—My father who is 70 complains of pain and soreness in his back and experiences difficulty in arising after sitting for any length of time—he has a good appetite and walks daily. What would you advise?

2.—I am 30 years of age, married and have two boys. I am nervous and excitable and suffer with pains in the top of my head; what causes this and what treatment will be helpful?

A.—Very likely due to lumbago; try to locate a posible source of infection in his system, although the pain may be due to cold or strain. Massage and application of heat should give relief.

2.—Have your blood presure taken. This may have a bearing on your symptoms. There is always some underlying reason for nervousness.

* * *

B. W. Q.—What do you advise for constipation?

A.—You should eat simple, well-cooked food. Avoid foods unduly rich in fats and starches.

* * *

S. R. Q.—How can I reduce?

A.—Eat very sparingly of starches, sugar and fats. A gradual reduction in the amount of food consumed with regular exercise will work wonders in most cases.

* * *

T. Y. Q.—What do you advise for blackheads and pimples?

A.—Correct the diet by cutting down on sugar, starches and coffee. Eat simple food.

* * *

O. L. Q.—I am 17 years old and would like to be taller. What can I do?

A.—You will continue to grow until you are 21 years old. You have no immediate cause for worry.

* * *

D. C. Q.—What causes one to perspire under the arms, and what will relieve it?

A.—This is usually due to a disorder of the sympathetic nervous system. Hot water compresses applied under the arm for half an hour are beneficial.

F. W. W. Q.—What do you advise for herpes zoster or shingles?

A.—It would be wise to have a thorough physical examination, as some kind of body poison is responsible for the trouble as a rule, but the exact cause is uncertain.

E. D. T. Q.—Can a child inherit heart trouble?

2.—Is it serious for one who has a heart murmur to take ether when undergoing an operation?

A.—No.

H. L. M. Q.—What causes night sweats and what is the best remedy?

2.—Would decayed teeth be responsible in any way?

A.—May be due to weakness, a run-down system, nervousness or a possible lung condition. Examination will determine the necessary treatment.

A DOG-DAY DREAM

Drawn by Nell Brinkley

IF wishes were icicles—you and I, Monsieur and Madame, and the little Mademoiselle and HER Monsieur, would be sitting upon one at the moment of this writing. Dog days! They who seldom perspire are wiping foreheads and pinning curls back tight off necks. Chiffon is much—oh, more than MUCH—too heavy to wear. The man in tweeds dreams of the bliss of a toga, but he remembers himself that though the "polissman" sympathized, still would he take him to the station house of the two green lights if he dared! Lucky girls and women wear nothing from ankles to above knees. Lucky, you think, but even a bathing suit is Winter clothes on a day like this. The little boy in the country goes in his manikin B. V. D's, and the little boy in the city escapes in nothing at all, if he can accomplish it—I have seen it DONE—but short of that he paddles under the street showers in panties-sans-uppers. Coney Island from the air looks like a convention of bugs. The upper crust is just as warm as the under one. The whole world fans itself. Love languishes under a rose bush, if he can find one; on the shady side of the street, if he must. Work—WORK—is a task of Hercules, and yet it saves our lives if it is the kind we can do with our heads. I forgot I was so hot doing this picture for you to look at.

The sky looks blue, but am sure it is made of brass. Locusts and little boys are the only things on a day such as this Summer's mostly are who seem to have the wherewithal left to cheep!

The dreams of the lovers under the shade of the umbrella—and it's just as hot out of it as under it—very different from my Rocky Mountainous home State, my dears, where it is only the sun that is hot—are infested with North and South Pole properties. Penguins and seals instead of the lanquid robin and the family dog. Icicles and ice water for landscape. The cold rainbow of the Aurora Borealis crackling in the sky instead of our too dutiful sun sizzling there. And Mademoiselle and her Monsieur and the waiter in bathing suits in the frosty air!

LOVE'S AWAKENING

A Continuation of Love's Embers

By ADELE GARRISON

Mary and Noel Lead Rescue Party to Save Georges.

MARY had not seen either Noel or me as she dashed into the restaurant, by the bay, crying wildly for someone to come quickly. That she was frantic with fright was patent, and her own appearance was a terrifying thing. Her dress was torn, her shoes and stockings covered with dust, and with a wisp of a handkerchief she was dabbing futiley at blood which ran down into her eyes from a cut on her head.

Noel sprang from his chair the instant she appeared in the doorway, and raced toward her. I was but a few steps behind him as he caught her swaying figure and steadied her.

"Mary! Mary!" His voice was an anguished cry. "What is it?"

She was so obsessed with whatever fear was upon her that she evinced no surprise at seeing him or me.

"Oh! Noel! Auntie Madge!" she exclaimed as if her cry had summoned us. "Hurry! Hurry! I'm afraid they've killed him."

She turned toward the door, but Noel's grasp of her arm tightened.

"You are hurt! You must be taken care of," he said authoritatively.

"I'm not hurt at all," she said furiously. "This is only a scratch that I could stop if I had a decent handkerchief. Thank you," as one of the waiters who had rushed toward us proferred her a serviette which he had dipped in cold water. "This is all I need. But come! Everybody!"

With lithe agility she wriggled out of Noel's grasp and made for the door. But he was at her side the next instant, keeping pace with her.

"All right, I won't hinder you," I heard him say. "But you must let me help you. You cannot risk falling again. This way. My car is over here."

He took her arm, supporting her as she ran. With a spurt of speed, I reached her other side, and we ran to Noel's parked car.

"Get on the running board," he called to a couple of waiters who had followed us out. "You may be needed," and in another minute, with Mary and me beside him, and the two men clinging to the sides of the roadster, we were out of the driveway and speeding down the road leading from the bay. I had slipped one arm around Mary and with the other hand I held the wet serviette against the cut on her forehead. She was trembling violently, but her voice was steady and resolute as she directed Noel where to drive and told us what had happened.

It's about a half mile down this road," she said. "We were just coming to one of those wood roads when we saw a couple of men step out from the bushes and signal us to stop. They were directly in front of the car so Georges had to slow down, but he swerved to try to get past them for he said he didn't like the idea of their signaling. But just as we came up to them, one of them lifted his hand and pointed a pistol at Georges. The rest is all mixed up. There was a shot, I know, and the sound of glass breaking, and Georges slumped down on the wheel. I grabbed the wheel and tried to keep the car in the road, but it smashed against a tree, not so awful hard, for we were going slow, but hard enough. I tried to get Georges out from behind the wheel, but couldn't and there wasn't a soul on the road. So I ran back to the restaurant as hard as I could. I fell down two or three times, but I made it."

The waiter clinging to the door on our side of the car spoke apprehensively:

"Would the men be there still, do you think, Miss?"

"No fear," Mary said scornfully. "The second the shot was fired, they jumped back from the road, and I could hear them crashing through the underbrush like frightened cattle. They're two miles away by this time. That's right, Noel! Stop right here."

She had reached past me, torn open the door of the car and was out on the ground almost before the car stopped. Stumbling, she ran toward the other car, but as she put her hand upon the door she reeled back against me with a terrified scream.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Commenting on Frock

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Is it polite when one meets a friend to remark before everybody about any new clothes one may be wearing, such as: "Oh, see the new dress!" or "Somebody has a new coat!"? I was taught it was rude, and to me it is very embarrassing. G. M.

NO; these forms of comment aren't especially pleasant, but if one knows the other person very well it is quite natural to say, "I do like your new frock so much," or "What a very beautiful new coat you have!" This friendly sort of comment from one we know very well need not be embarrassing. You are delighted that some one likes what you wear, and you quite naturally and simply say so: "Thank you. I am delighted to have you say so," or "I am so glad that you like it, Jane. I have such faith in your taste that it makes me very proud that you like it."

Formal Evening Wedding

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. Am I right in maintaining that a church wedding taking place at 8 o'clock in the evening in church calls for strictly formal clothes?

2. The bride-to-be intends to have an usher and a bridesmaid walk down the aisle together in the recessional. I do not think that this is now good form? Am I right? There are to be four bridesmaids and four ushers, and the bride insists that it is correct for them to "pair off" in the recessional. F. P.

YOU are absolutely correct. Everyone, men and women, members of the bridal party or guests, should wear evening clothes.

2. And you are right here, too. In the cosmopolitan wedding of today, the bridesmaids walk in the recessional as they do in the processional, two by two. And the ushers walk together, two by two, after the bridesmaids.

A Bridesmaid May Be Married.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Is it correct to have a married woman for a bridesmaid at a wedding in which they are to have a matron of honor and two bridesmaids? A says it is. S.

A IS correct. Now no distinction is made between a married person and an unmarried one, either a man or a woman, as a member of a wedding party. In this party of which you speak there could be two matrons of honor, or the married woman might be included among the bridesmaids.

SPORT COMMENT

By HARRY KECK, Sports Editor

Hail Kauffmann! Deserves Big Hand. Not Getting It.

Helen Wills' Status. Is She Slipping? Foes Are Improving.

RING TITLE A LIABILITY

NOTE—James J. Long is on vacation for two weeks. During his absence, this column will be conducted by the sports editor.)

SOMETHING on the order of a real civic welcome should be given Carl F. Kauffmann, local golf star, who returned this morning from St. Louis, where, on Saturday, he completed his second defense of his National Public Links title, equaling the national tournament of record with three consecutive winnings of the crown.

Carl Kauffmann

Willie Anderson won the National Open title three times in a row, in 1903, 1904 and 1905. Kauffmann won at Cleveland in 1927, at Philadelphia last year and at St. Louis this year. Tom Morris, Jr., won the British open title four years in a row, back in the cradle days of golf, and Jamie Anderson annexed it three consecutive times, prior to 1880. In the modern game, Kauffmann's achievement ranks with the feats of Bobby Jones.

WHEN the Pirates swept through the East on their second trip this year and came home in first place a flock of public-spirited citizens conceived the idea of giving them a big whoopee welcome in mid-season. They really had nothing to celebrate and did about as much to start the team going on the rocks with their ill-timed demonstration as any other factor that has entered into the situation. They might better have waited until the pennant was in before cutting loose.

The case of Kauffmann is one that really merits a loud cheer from the folks of the town that he has been advertising to the world for the last three years in the role of a national champion, yet, in strange contrast to the premature popoff over the Pirates, he was greeted upon his return home today by only his faithful followers and a few others, who dug down in their jeans to hire a brass band for the occasion and buy him a gift.

IT SEEMS all Kauffmann can do is to play golf in championship style. And he is only one of those public linkers to be snubbed by the golfing elite. 'Tis a sad commentary on our sporting impulses and sense of proportions that we couldn't have had a real turnout for Kauffmann, who has done something, rather than for the Pirates, who merely gave promise of doing something at the time their celebration was arranged.

Wightman Cup

IS HELEN WILLS losing her grip as the tennis queen of the world, as indicated by the hard battle given her by Betty Nuthall, the young English girl, in the deciding match of the Wightman Cup series at Forest Hills, Saturday, when Little Poker Face was carried to deuce in each set and extended to the limit of her genius and stroking ability to win, 8-6, 8-6, or was the California marvel merely having an off-day in the contest?

There is food for considerable speculation in the tenseness of this match.

HELEN had come to be set up as well nigh invincible, a player outclassing her competition as Bobby Jones does his and as Bill Tilden and Jack Dempsey formerly did their fields. If she isn't slipping after ruling supreme since the passing from the picture of Suzanne Lenglen, then it is certain at least that she is beginning to get stiffer opposition.

Miss Nuthall has been developing steadily, but no one expected her to carry the battle to Miss Wills to the extent that she did in both sets. The English girl may be safely said to have "arrived" in that match, and the memory of it and of how close she was to a victory that would have been one of the greatest upsets of the year in any sport should make her a twofold harder opponent to beat in the future.

AT THE same time, Miss Helen Jacobs, that other California star, also has been stepping along by leaps and bounds, and is not far behind Miss Wills at this writing. Midge Gladman, another California miss, also has shown steady improvement in her game and there are other young stars coming along both here and abroad who threaten Miss Wills' supremacy. Perhaps fair Helen saw the handwriting on the wall even before last Saturday's close call, for, upon her return recently from Wimbledon, she announced that, following her impending marriage, she would not go back there next year to defend her championship. In order to keep up with or ahead of the procession she will have to continue to devote as much attention to her playing as she has in the past, or she will not be able to meet the growing challenge of the Nuthalls, Jacobses, Crosses and Gladmans.

Betty Nuthall

THE barring of Max Schmeling in New York state, Pennsylvania and elsewhere because of the involved negotiations of his various managers, thus removing him from the running for a championship match for at least a year, comes at a time when champions in other classes are bemoaning the fact that many challengers are bigger money-makers than they themselves are with the titles.

JOE DUNDEE, the welterweight champion, made only one big haul in the two years of his reign and that was the $50,000 he got for losing his crown to Jackie Fields recently. Sammy Mandell, the lightweight king, who recently defended his laurels against Tony Canzoneri, expresses dissatisfaction with his showing in that bout, attributing it to the conditions that exist among champions in these modern times. Lack of competition threw him out of his stride, he contends.

Mandell is sensible about the business. He wants to fight anybody the public is anxious to see him meet, and it is generally admitted, since his decisive victories over Jackie Fields and Jimmy McLarnin last year, that there is no real contender in the class.

"The result is," says Mandell, "that I have to remain idle. Now and then my manager, Eddie Kane, arranges a bout for me with a local pride, and, because my opponent is not a standout, the public and the newspapers cry that I am putting my title in a glass case and meeting setups. If I were not the champion, I could fight anybody anywhere and go to the post as often as I cared to and there wouldn't be a word of complaint. I wish somebody would dig up a man capable of beating me for the title. Then my troubles would be over. I'd get a big purse for my end, and, if he proved a better man, he would be welcome to the title with my blessings. If I can't beat everybody in the division I have no right to call myself champion. I'm not ducking anyone. I could make more money as a non-champion than as a champion. In other words, I'm just one of those fellows who is unlucky enough to have a championship strung, like a millstone, about his neck."

Al Singer

THERE is a lot of truth in what Mandell says. Tommy Loughran was in pretty much the same fix with his light-heavyweight title. Lack of competition made him fight for comparatively small purses, even in defense of his title, or remain idle. He'll make more money as a heavyweight contender than as light-heavyweight champion, because he can fight any and all comers and at regular intervals.

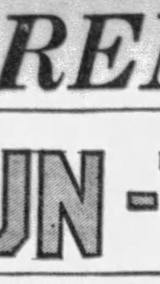
MOOSE, MOTOR SQUARE SET DATES

Local indoor boxing promoters are getting ready for their 1929-30 season and will be off to an earlier start than usual.

Announcement was made today by Francis Flynn that he will resume his weekly Friday night shows in the Moose Temple, downtown, September 6.



Francis Flynn

At the same time, John L. Hernon, manager of Motor Square Garden, revealed that his plans call for the staging of the first boxing show of the season there on the night of September 23.

REED TO BOX REED

The battle of the Reeds will be fought at Erie Friday night when Jimmy Reed, of Erie, and Eddie Reed, of Philadelphia, clash in the 10-round main bout. Leo Mozdy and Frisco Grande are in the eight-round semi-final and Mike Mulligan meets Matty Oldach in one of three preliminaries.

PETE ZIVIC BACK

Pete Zivic, Lawrenceville bantamweight, who is in training again following a long layoff due to a bad ear, probably will make a connection with a new manager within the next few days. He is dickering with Ray Alvis, of Chicago, to handle his affairs. Pete would like to meet Benny Schwartz, Johnny McCoy, Bushy Graham or any of the other 118-122-pounders. He has boxed all of the three mentioned above and holds a 12-round victory over Schwartz, scored in Baltimore two years ago.

Stanley Simmons, local light-heavyweight, will meet Socko Trenaman in one of the two eight-round bouts of a show at Cumberland Thursday night, August 29. Buck Griffith and Buddy Crass will be the other headliners.

Myer Saul, former local athlete and sports writer, and now a hotel proprietor in Atlantic City, has been named matchmaker for the annual Milk and Ice Fund boxing show at Atlantic City, August 22.

Homer Ronan, of Newark, O., and Johnny Dunn, of New Kensington, have been matched to box the 10-round main bout at Junction Park, New Brighton, Thursday night of next week.

ADAMS PLAYS WELL ON RETURN

Staff Correspondent.

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 13.—Sparky Adams played fine ball upon his return to the game. If Dick Bartell doesn't prove more effective in the leadoff position it would not be surprising to see the little veteran go to the spot he graced formerly. Bartell was up five times for five "horse-collars" in the finale with the Robins.

Johnny Morrison continues to pile up victories. John Dewey had to have the breaks yesterday, and he would be the first to admit it. Grantham's wallop was a scorcher, but it was on a dead line with Gilbert, who made a thrilling pickup of the smash. The ball was hit so hard that Grantham just missed being doubled at first.

DRASTIC SHIFT EXPECTED TO SPEED BUCS

By CHARLES J. DOYLE,

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 13.—Speed, speed and more speed, flavored with a dash of punch, will feature the Pirates tomorrow afternoon when they open a series with the Braves in Boston.

Manager Bush announced today that George Grantham would be the Pirate first-sacker tomorrow, provided the Tribe throws a righthand pitcher at the Freebooters in the opening clash.

The Pittsburgh pilot, disgusted with the sorry showing of his club in Brooklyn, has decided to make the drastic change noted in the hope of getting the club out of its lethargic offensive.

ADAMS TO STAY

Sparky Adams will remain in the shortfield with Traynor, Bartell and Grantham rounding out the first defense. The Waner boys and Comorosky will patrol the outfield with the fleet Rolly Hemsely continuing as first-string receiver.

The Buccos came here today to play an exhibition game with the Albany Club of the Eastern League. Immediately after the contest is completed, the Bucs will board a Boston train, the idea being to get to the New England metropolis before midnight.

All the pitchers of the team, excepting Heinie Meine and Fred Fussell, went straight to Boston. Fussell was sent home from New York for breaking training rules. Hemsley and Grantham also went direct to the next league battlefield.

ELDRED CAPTURES WEST PENN OPEN CROWN

HIGHLAND PRO TALLIES 141 TO WIN

By VERN SWARTSFAGER

For Highland had its own way again when Vincent Eldred, professional at that club, came through to capture the Western Pennsylvania open championship, held yesterday at the South Hills Country Club, with a brilliant tally of 70-71—141. This is Eldred's first year in Western Pennsylvania competition.

He ousted Perry Delvecchio, progreenkeeper at the Greensburg Country Club, who has held the crown for the last two years, the end of the 36-hole medal play test finding Delvecchio tied with P. O. (Post Office) Hart, of Wheeling, for the runner-up money with scores of 144. Perry started with 73 and in the afternoon needed only 71. Hart had a pair of 72s.

O'HARA CARDS 145

Peter O'Hara, of the Westmoreland Country Club, who led the locals in the recent national open, ranked next with 145, while a stroke behind him came Emil (Dutch) Loeffler, Oakmont's noted greenkeeper; Samuel M. Parks, Jr., former West Penn titlist and Highland Club champion, and Knox M. Young, Jr., of Highland, who was runner-up in the current Maine amateur championship.

Young had the best 18-hole card of the day, his 69 of the morning giving him a decided advantage—which he promptly dropped in the afternoon with a 77.

Chuck Onoretta, of Schenley, ranked next in the line, scoring a 72 and 75 for 147, and deadlocking with Fiore Bruno, of Greensburg, Jock Kennedy, of Fox Chapel, needed 148, and John Graham, president of the W. P. G. A., and Dave McKay, Pittsburgh Field Club pro, took 149. Charley Manning, of Shannopin; Walter Loeffler, of South Hills, and Andy Velican, of Nemacolin, made the 36 in 150. Nelson Zimmerman, of Wildwood, was a stroke worse, while Fred Baroni, of Stanton Heights, former titlist, had 152. Fred Brand, Jr., of Shannopin, former junior and senior amateur champion, was well down the list with 157.

ELDRED CONSISTENT

Eldred played good, consistent golf to cop the honors. In the morning he went out in 39 and came home in 31 for his 70—two under par—and in the afternoon he was out in the same number of strokes and back again in 32. His card:

Highland now boasts the open as well as the amateur champion of the district, although Maurice (Ski) Le Bosquet will be given his test in defense of his amateur crown during the title play which begins over the same layout tomorrow and continues until Friday. Le Bosquet only recently won the Stanton Heights invitation affair in an all-Highland final.

UNDERWOOD'S THREES

George Underwood, Alcoma professional, had an unusual day of it. Although he did not have extraordinary cards, he scored no less than 12 threes during the course of his 36 holes, seven of them on one round.

JOHNNY M'COY, SUB, BEATS SCHWARTZ

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

A partly bald little fighting man of more than 30 summers answering to the name of Johnny McCoy, and substituting on a little more than 24 hours' notice for Bushy Graham, upset the dope bucket with a thud and hammered out an impressive victory over Benny Schwartz, clever bantamweight, of Baltimore, in the 10-round main bout at the Meyers Bowl, North Braddock, last night, before a crowd that failed to come even close to filling the arena. Substitutions in two bouts unquestionably ruined the show and the dog races at Bridgeville kept away some of the regulars.

McCoy's smartness and adeptness at infighting proved too much for Schwartz, who never got a chance to get going in the smooth boxing form he displayed in his local debut against Jackie Rodgers, at the Bridgeville Speedway recently. Round after round, the veteran from Buffalo kept crowding Benny and working into close quarters, where he dealt out sudden death with both fists until Benny hung on in desperation. McCoy also threw a wicked right to the head that several times caught Benny flush and, in the third round, a solid right to the mouth cut Benny's lips, causing them to bleed the remainder of the way.

RALLY TOO LATE

The first round was fairly even, and Schwartz took the second and fourth, but he didn't win another one then until he staged a desperate rally in the tenth and final round, during which he made McCoy hang on following a series of rushes accompanied by sweeping lefts to the body. Just before the bell McCoy rallied to catch Benny coming in and plant a stiff right to the jaw that halted Schwartz in his tracks.

It was an interesting battle between two clever performers, with the man with the harder punch taking the play away from the favorite and younger mixer.

Schwartz weighed 119 pounds and McCoy 119¼ at 3 p. m.

Brooks Labach, of Williamsport and formerly of Wilmerding, making his reappearance in his home section after boxing in the hard coal region for some time, was his usual punching-bag self against Young Saylor, of Charleroi, in the eight-round semi-final, put on after the main bout, and took a stiff lacing all the way. Saylor's right eye was cut and puffed in the third round, but did not appear to bother him, while Labach's left eye was slashed in the last round. Saylor weighed 150¾ pounds and Labach only 144¾.

CHIODO BEATS SIRKO

Monte Sirko, of Oakland, substituting on even shorter notice than McCoy, put up a hard but losing fight against Johnny Chiodo, of Johnstown, in the second battle of six rounds. He outlasted Chiodo to finish fighting hard in the last round, but couldn't make up for lost ground. Both weighed 125¼ pounds.

Eddie Brannon, Negro, of the Hill, 131 pounds, repeated an earlier victory at McKeesport over Frankie Moran, of Homewood, 132, in the six-round opener.

Al Grayber refereed the main and second bouts, and Joe Keally the other two. The judges were Frank Ferris and Jock Simco, and the announcer Ray Eberle. As was the case at last week's show, the judges and referees were unanimous in every decision.

CARNEGIE NINE, MILKMEN IN BIG GAME

By TOM BIRKS

The big sandlot game carded for this evening will bring together the Carnegie Steel and Reick-McJunkins, of the Commercial and Industrial loop. These outfits will play off a tie game, and the winner will meet the Gimbel nine in a post-season game for the second half championship.

The Milk boys are fighting hard for this game. The Steelers defeated them in the first half championship, Engleman besting Laboon in a pitchers' duel. According to Managers Stuhlfire and Hatch, the same pitchers will work again this evening, and fans attending Garfield Park will see a real battle. Miss Burkart, welfare director of Gimbels, gave the Tuesday evening permit to the league for the staging of the game, and it is expected that a large crowd will be on hand.

The Harvey Club will meet Roosevelt this evening in the Central loop. Harvey does not have a chance, but the Roosevelt nine has a good chance to beat the flying East Liberty Red Sox and W. O. W. nines for the second half championship.

In the City loop, the St. John's nine will hook up with the North Side Civics. In the Steel City loop, the Dispatch nine will entertain the Whoopee Club.

CUBS, A'S LIKELY WORLD SERIES RIVALS

MAJOR LEAGUE LEADERS HOLD BIG EDGE

Associated Press.

The day of miracles may not be over, but it would take a highly trusting nature to bet that Chicago and Philadelphia will not meet in the world series this fall.

With two months to go before the season closes on October 6, the Growling Cubs Joe McCarthy has developed at Chicago held an eight-game lead over the National League field, while Connie Mack's Philadelphia Athletics had to look back 11½ games before they could see their closest rivals, the New York Yankees.

The Cubs have done little faltering in the last month or so and what few slips they have made have come when their nearest pennant rivals could not take advantage of them.

For example, the Cubs ran into Ben Cantwell when he was at his best yesterday and dropped a 4-3 decision to Boston in 10 innings. But this slip meant nothing, for both Pittsburgh and the New York Giants were beaten.

CUB HITTERS HELD

Cantwell held the Cubs to six hits, two of which helped the invaders to their three runs in the sixth inning. Malone, Nehf and Guy Bush all were subjected to a heavy battering, but stood off the Braves until the tenth when Richbourg beat out a bunt and scored from first when Blair threw late and wildly to catch him at the initial bag. Bush thus was charged with his second defeat of the season against 16 victories.

A double by Kelly, single by Pittenger and Horace Ford's home run in the eighth gave the Cincinnati Reds three runs and a 5-2 verdict over the Giants. Pete Donohue limited New York to five hits, one of them a homer by Chick Fullis.

St. Louis downed Philadelphia, 7-5 in a free hitting game at Baker Bowl.

A'S STRETCH LEAD

In the American League, the A's stretched their lead a full game by beating Detroit, 6-0 while the Yanks were losing at Cleveland. Rube Walberg gave up only five hits against the Tigers while the A's bunched eight hits off George Uhle with three Detroit errors to pile up a winning margin. Al Simmons hit his twenth homer of the season.

Babe Ruth's thirty-first homer couldn't save the Yankees from an 11-7 trouncing by the Indians. Ruth's round trip blow with two on in the third couldn't offset weak pitching by Pipgras, Pennock and Sherid.

Danny MacFayden yielded only three hits while Ted Lyons was beaten as early as the first inning when two walks, a triple by Rothrock and a double steal gave Boston three runs.

Doubles by Judge and Rice in the ninth gave Washington a 3-2 triumph over St. Louis. Garland Braxton gave the Browns only five hits.

Bainbridge Track Officials Arrested

CLEVELAND, Aug. 13.—(AP.)—Two officials and two contribution ticket sellers at Bainbridge race track in Geauga County near here were arrested yesterday on warrants charging operating of gambling devices, and last night it was undecided whether the present horse race schedule at the track will be continued.

Tommy McGinty and Homer J. Kline were the officials arrested. They pleaded not guilty before Justice of the Peace Arthur M. Ladd at Claridon and were released on $200 bond pending trial in the same court August 28. Matt Brock and George Lynchburg, the ticket sellers, met a like fate.

Paul Waner's batting was the only bright spot in the clouds that hung around the Pirate clubhouse after the game. Paul came through with four hits and a base on balls. Three of his smashes had the old familiar ring, indicating that the wee slugger is getting back to form again.

Democracy will have scored another signal victory if Babe Herman leads the National League in batting. Uncle Robbie's lanky slugger, in his first couple of seasons in the big show, was treated like a native from Central Europe, but now Babe is making his detracters look for the exits.

HERMAN IS HITTER

The journalistic boys who regularly rode the Coast Leaguer on account of his leaping antics in the outfield and John Anderson baserunning appear to have overlooked Babe as a great batter. And when he learns to run in the right direction he will be as fleet as most of them.

Herman has been consistently over the .400 mark in batting, and many of his drives have a Ruthian punch. The fact that he is not taken out of the lineup for the southpaws shows he can cope with any kind of pitching.

Herman's homer in the fourth inning yesterday, putting the Robins on even terms with the Pirates, was a Ruthian wallop. The drive passed so high and far over the short fence that it fell on the rooftops of the dwellings on the opposite side of the city street.

Jess Petty will get the first crack at the Braves tomorrow. The lefthander was impressive as he scored a victory over the Robins in the first contest, and when he went to the mound to heckle Herman yesterday he looked like a real pitcher.

CIONI SKATE CHAMP

CHICAGO, Aug. 13. — (INS.) — Spurting from last place, Roland Cioni, veteran New York champion roller skater, won the two-mile title last night in Chicago Stadium. Young Malcolm Carey, Reading, Pa., nosed out Joe Laurey, Chicago, for second place. Nick Bradle, of Cleveland, was fourth and Ray Davis, St. Louis, fifth.

Women Seek Stalls At Ebensburg Meet

EBENSBURG, Pa., Aug. 13. — Blair C. Seeds, president of the Cambria County Fair, which will offer a six-day race meeting here September 2 to September 7 inclusive, today received applications for stall room from Mrs. Byron Harris, of Washington; Mrs. William Shewbridge, of Baltimore, Md.; and Mrs. J. W. Callahan, of New York.

All three members of the fair sex raced their stables here last month. They liked the conditions under which the six-day meeting was run, and as their horses seemed to like the local racing strip, they decided to return for the second and largest meeting being offered by Charles M. Schwab and his associates.

Calgary Kay to Run At Cumberland Meet

BALTIMORE, Md., Aug. 13.—Calgary Kay, Canadian bred three-year-old, who won this summer in Canada at the lucrative odds of $374.10, is among the string of nine thoroughbreds, which Ben E. Chapman, of Bowie, Md., will campaign during the five-day meeting, which opens August 26, at Cumberland.

Calgary Kay is a half brother to Nealon Kay. When he won in Canada, he was ridden by the clever apprentice, Hughes, who will also do the bulk of the riding for Mrs. Chapman during Maryland's initial fall race session, which happens to be at Cumberland.

CIRCUIT MEETING OPENS

HARTFORD, Conn., Aug. 13.—(AP.)—Prizes totaling $40,000 will be up for competition at the Grand Circuit meeting to be held at Charter Oak Park for four days beginning today. The feature event will be the $10,000 Charter Oak stakes for 2:12 trotters, with 27 entries.

Grays' Mound Vet Strikeout Wizard

Smoky Joe Williams, 53-year-old mound phenom of the Homestead Grays, still seems able to throw the ball past batsmen, as in his last two performances he has to his credit a total of 24 strikeouts.

Twirling against the Massillon Agathons at Charleston, W. Va., August 7, the Grays' veteran whiffed 13 batsmen, and Sunday, at Cleveland, hurling against the Bacharach Giants in an American Negro League game, he fanned 11, making a total of 24 in two nine-inning games. While Joe was piling up this fine strikeout mark he was keeping the enemies' hits well scattered. Massillon found him for three hits and no scores and the Bacharach Giants managed to nick him for eight hits and three scores.

On August 4 Williams relieved Streeter at Youngstown in the fifth inning and during the remainder of the game struck out six batsmen and on August 7, against the Lincoln Giants, he fanned seven, making a total of 33 strikeouts in exactly 31 innings, an average of slightly more than one per inning.

GRANTHAM SENT TO FIRST

turned on the Pirates about the time that Traynor, Grantham and Grimes went out with injuries, haunted the club, yesterday as the Buccos dropped a 10 inning game to the Robins, 4 to 2.

BOOTS COMES THROUGH

George Grantham, batting for Sheely in the tenth with the bases loaded and one out, let fly with an ugly grounder, which might just as well have been an extra-base hit, to clear the bases. There were two reports in quick succession — one when Grantham's bat met the ball, and the other when Third Baseman Gilbert made a desperate grab for the mad rocket. Gilbert cut down Paul Waner at the plate, and then Flowers grabbed Sparky Adams' firecracker drive to throw out Adams and end the dangerous period.

On top of this misfortune, Carmen Hill retired two Brooklyn batters before Gilbert singled. Johnny Frederick duplicated his high-fly homer of the previous afternoon, and as his loft soared over the short rightfield fence he and Gilbert rode over, accompanied by a hundred kids who rushed onto the diamond from the bleachers.

PAUL HITS LINER

Brother Paul opened the tenth with one of his old-time liners to left center. Paul might have made three bases on this, his fourth hit of the contest, but he elected to play safe and remain at second. Capt. Traynor bunted him to third immediately.

Johnny Morrison was doing pitching duty at this time, he having relieved Clise Dudley when Brother Paul connected for two sacks. Morrison received a sign to pass Comorosky, and Brickell batted for Hemsley. Brick waited for a pass that filled the sacks. Sheely was due to swing, but Bush yanked him in favor of Grantham, with the aforesaid results.

BRAME WORKS WELL

Ervin Brame worked a delightful contest against Dudley, he making way for Steve Swetonic with runners on second and first and none out in the seventh, the score being tied at 2 all. Brame went into the inning with a one-run lead, and he seemed to be weakening when Swetonic rushed to the scene.

Manager Bush used a lot of good strategy in his attempt to save the game. Frederick doubled in the eighth with one out, and, with Babe Herman at bat, Bush called for Jess Petty, who promptly fanned the star batsman.

Rube Bressler grabbed a bat to swing for Hendrick, but Bush crossed the opposition again by getting Hill to the mound in a hurry, and the inning was over when Adams threw out Rube. Then came the exciting tenth.

SPORT COMMENT

By HARRY KECK, Sports Editor

AL SINGER and Kid Chocolate are a few shining examples of contenders who have greater earning power than the current crop of champions. Perhaps, after all, it will not be such a bad break for Schmeling not to be put in the championship class at this time. As merely a contender, he can campaign all over the country for the next year, if he will, and make double or triple the money the winner of the forthcoming Sharkey-Loughran match will net in the same time and at the finish stand out as the man the public will demand that the "champion" meet in defense of his crown.

FAVORITES COP IN W. MD. NET PLAY

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN,
Staff Correspondent.

MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK, Md., Aug. 13.—Skies cleared here yesterday morning after a terrific rain the night before, and the tenth annual Western Maryland tennis championships broke into spirited action under a brilliant sun and ideal playing condition. With four courts and a galaxy of Maryland, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Virginia and New York racqueters exceedingly busy, the entire first round of men's singles was completed and nine ambitious netmen even passed into Bracket 3.

Seeded favorites came through without exception. Sam Cohn, West Virginia state champion, carried too many guns for James Allen, of Pittsburgh, and triumphed, 6-1, 6-1. Marion Rinehart, giant Steel City star and ace of the Stanton Heights team, registered feature triumphs over A. O. Smith, West Virginia state doubles premier, 6-2, 6-4, the Pittsburgher's powerful service and strong barrier game smothering the Beckley veteran's less decisive strokes.

ARKLE FAVORITE

B. F. Arkle, blonde Wheeling luminary, blanked W. A. Reed, Fairmont youngster, in love sets and established himself, along with Rhinehart, Cohn and Billy Ramsay, crack Lafayette College and Uniontown youth, who spent a day of idleness as one of the tourney favorites.

G. A. Sawin, driving Steel Citian, had little trouble with William Winfield and progressed to round 3, 6-2, 6-1, while Sullivan, Pittsburgh Athletic Association entrant, defeated Carlton Chance, home lad, 6-2, 6-2.

Al Lane, former Wash-Jeffite, celebrated his honeymoon by nosing out Jennings Randolph, Davis-Elkins athletic director, in a lengthy affair which the Lane forehand dominated, 7-5, 2-6, 7-5.

Sam Keller, Duquesne University court captain, outstroked Desmond Murphy, of Catholic U., 6-3, 6-2, while his traveling mate, Bill Sewick, of the University of Alabama, took sick in his tilt with Bill Weber, Clarksburg stylist, and was forced to default, 6-3, 1-0. Sewick recovered after a short rest, however, and pronounced himself primed for the doubles, which get under way this afternoon. Weber went ahead to down O. L. Spencer, of Washington, D. C., 6-3, 6-0.

Robert Brown, Davis-Elkins slasher and holder of the West Virginia intercollegiate crown, accounted for O. W. Jones, Bridgeville boy, after a stiff struggle signalized by Brown's flashy overhead work, 6-2, 7-5.

ALLEN BEATS BROWN

James Allen, another Elkins delegate, cared for Joe Brown, of Greensburg, while still a third D.-E. performer, Doran Brown, eliminated J. Howard Moore, College Avenue Tennis Club leader, 6-2, 6-2.

Don Snyder, rangy Greensburger, pulled a brilliant comeback to rush the forecourt and spill Orlando Reynold, of Keyser, 6-3, 2-6, 6-2.

Dr. E. N. Flowers, cagy Clarksburg old-timer, fought out a close verdict over Lou Florian, Little Washington regular, 6-3, 7-5, to fill out an excellent opening day's card. The summary:

Round One—M. C. Rhinehart defeated A. O. Smith, 6-2, 6-4; B. P. Hoover, won from Andrew Smeaton by default; R. T. Shields, Jr., won from J. Servick by default; Lucius Bugbee, won from Harry Bowman by default; John R. Brown won from T. R. Mayhew by default; Robert Brown defeated O. W. Jones, 6-2, 7-5; Nelson Offutt won from Ray Lukanitsch by default; Ad Lane defeated Jennings Randolph, 7-5, 2-6, 7-5; B. F. Arkle defeated W. A. Reed, 6-0, 6-0; James Allen, of Elkins, defeated Joseph Brown, 6-3, 6-4; Sam Keller defeated Desmond Murphy, 6-3, 6-2; R. Davis won from H. Koblegard by default; E. T. Hammer defeated Henry C. Miller, Jr., 6-1, 6-3; H. Maxwell won from Alfred McCabe by default; W. H. Weber won from William Sewick, 6-3, 1-0, and default; O. L. Spencer won from Austin Pamaries by default.

Round Two—Paul Sullivan defeated Carlton Chance, 6-2, 6-2; R. T. Shields, Jr. defeated Lucius Bugbee, 6-1, 6-2; Don Snyder defeated O. S. Reynolds, 6-3, 2-6, 6-2; E. T. Hammer defeated H. Maxwell, 6-1, 8-1; Sam Cohn defeated James Allen, of Pittsburgh, 6-1, 6-1; Doran Brown defeated J. Howard Moore, 6-2, 6-2; G. A. Sawin defeated William Winfield, 6-2, 6-1; E. N. Flowers defeated Lou Florian, 6-3, 7-5; W. H. Weber defeated O. L. Spencer, 6-4, 6-1.

GUNNERS WIN

The Canonsburg Gunners defeated the Jimmy Smith Club, 2 to 1, in an Inter-County League game played at Canonsburg last night. The victors' two runs in the second gave them their victory. Gantz won a pitchers' battle with McFarland.

The J. G. Stephens copped a Major League game with the Kokinos Club. Altman's hitting featured. In another game in the same league the J. J. Boyles and Mt. Lebanon battled to a 9-all tie.

The Troy Hill Millers upset the Stamm A. A. in a North Side League tilt, 3 to 2. Eddie Imhoff took it on the chin on the mound, despite the fact he gave only five safeties.

Lawrenceville Business Men took the lead in the Greater Pittsburgh League by pasting the Hall Printing nine, 5 to 2, at Leslie Park. Lackin starred on the mound, giving only four bingles.

METHODISTS COP

The Methodists crept up on the league leaders by defeating Ingram, 8 to 4, in a Crafton Church loop game. King's hitting aided in the victory.

STEEL IN WILD LEAP SCALES NEW PEAK

Irregular Market Turns Bullish as Corporation Shares Dash Upward

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—(AP.)—Led by United States Steel common, which soared more than 10 points to another new high record at 240½, the stock market shook off its early irregularity today and pressed forward to the accompaniment of a series of bullish demonstrations in the steel, public utility, investment, railroad, electrical equipment and aviation shares.

Laclede Gas, which broke 60 points last week, rallied 40 points, and scores of others were run up 1 to 10 points.

The spectacular rise in steel revived rumors of a stock split up and higher cash dividends, but such action is not generally expected until the end of the year. Members of the finance committee meet this afternoon and the regular monthly meeting of directors will be held on the twenty-seventh, but the corporation offices report that "only routine business" is scheduled for consideration. Steel broke to 213½ in last Friday's break. The floating supply in the hands of brokers at the end of July was about 25 per cent of the total shares outstanding.

OTHERS FOLLOW

Other steels followed in its wake, Bethlehem and Crucible moving up 4¼ and 3 points to new high records at 128½ and 112⅞, respectively. High current earnings, coupled with a continuation of unusually heavy summer output, have encouraged buying of this group.

The credit situation showed signs of easing today despite the bullish activity of the last three sessions. Call money renewed unchanged at 8 per cent, but was quoted at 7 per cent in the outside market in the early afternoon. An easier undertone also was apparent for time money. Bankers report that the Federal Reserve system already has placed substantial sums in the credit market by the purchase of bills at the reduced buying rate announced last week.

General Electric dropped 5 points in the early trading to 374½ and then shot up to 387⅞. Simmons Co. ran up 7 points to a new high at 125 and A. M. Byers, Frank G. Shattuck, Warren Bros., United Aircraft, Wright Aeronautical, American Power and Light, Westinghouse Electric, Montgomery-Ward, American Machine and Foundry and Gillette Safety Razor sold 4 to 7 points higher, the last two reaching new high ground.

B. & M. LEADS RAILS

Boston and Maine assumed the leadership of the rail group by soaring 10 points. Chesapeake and Ohio ran up 6½. New York Central 4 and several others 2 to 3 points.

The day's business news was mixed. The American Woolen Company reported a deficit of nearly $2,500,000 in the first six months, as against a loss of $894,700 in the corresponding period of last year. Most of the other earnings reports were favorable. Private dispatches from Tulsa indicated a record breaking production of crude last week.

CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, Aug. 13.—Indications of good-sized export buying of United States wheat led to early upturns today in wheat values here. There were also advices that in three Argentine provinces where rain was most needed, showers only were received. Opening ⅞c to 1⅞c higher, Chicago wheat prices kept near to the initial range. Corn and oats sympathized with wheat, corn starting ¼c to 1¼c up and later showing losses, but then advancing again. Provisions tended higher.

With Liverpool wheat quotations today closing at 1⅛ to 1⅜ pence advance, whereas declines there were looked for, signs of liberal overnight buying of domestic wheat for trans-Atlantic shipment attracted particular notice among wheat traders here. In this connection, special stress was laid on dispatches from Buenos Aires, saying the provinces of Entre Rios, Cordoba and Santa Fe, Argentina, had obtained no adequate moisture relief, and that in Cardoba especially wheat was suffering from drought.

Estimates were current that 2,000,000 bushels of North American wheat had been taken today for export, including Canadian wheat and wheat from the United States. Meanwhile, according to latest unofficial figures, world crops of wheat, exclusive of Russia and China, promised a decrease of 560,000,000 bushels from last year, with world import needs forecast as far above possibilities under present general crop prospects.

Firm Leather Prices.

As a not unnatural reflection of the recent rise of hide markets, tanners of sole leather are increasingly firm in their views on prices, according to Dun's Review. No general advance has occurred in the latter commodity, yet instances are noted of higher quotations being realized. Aside from extra heavy leather, however, demand does not appear to have expanded appreciably, although some favorable conditions have lately developed in the footwear trade. That is true both of women's and men's goods, and some manufacturers of the former line have enough orders in hand to keep plants going for a couple of months. The improved situation is evident both in New England and the metropolitan area, and there is a more hopeful feeling regarding the fall outlook. Changing styles in women's wear continue to appear, with kid now rapidly becoming a leader in the different price ranges of women's wear.

American Airplane Output.

The United States not only has more airplanes in operation than any other country in the world, but the 1928 American production was greater than all the rest of the world combined. At the same time, the comparative smallness of the aircraft output is indicated by the fact that while automobile registrations in this country total some 24,000,000, the number of airplanes licensed by the Department of Commerce to date amounts to only 6,254.

AIR BRAKE UP IN MARKET HERE

Continued Buying Advances Stock in Both Markets; General List Is Narrow

Quotations were practically unchanged from the previous day's final sales and practically all trades were in small lots. The upturn in Westinghouse Air Brake on the New York Stock Exchange had reflection in an accompanying movement here, but the volume was very small. A large local following has been built up in Air Brake over the past month or so and it is said there has been some unusually strong buying from this city. General improvement in the railroad equipment field and progress being made in the development of the company's newer and heavier brake are the principal factors behind the current rise.

Earnings are said to be running about 50 per cent ahead of a year ago. Air Brake earned $1.37 a share on the stock in the first half of this year as compared with 92 cents in the first six months of 1928. Second half earnings are expected to run better than the first six months and it is considered likely the company will show more than $3 a share for the full year. In 1928 Air Brake earned $2.04 a share, or barely enough to cover the year's dividend requirement of $2.

Air Brake Rises On Report of New Design

Aside from being one of the leading manufacturers of automatic railway train control equipment, Westinghouse has been a big maker of equipment and brakes of all kinds for years. It is understood that a new and heavier brake has been designed and will shortly be offered to the railroads. Longer and heavier freight trains make big brakes necessary and a large share of the business in the new brake is expected to flow to Westinghouse.

Pittsburgh interests have been active buyers the past few days with consequent big gain in trading volume. Monday's turnover of nearly 35,000 shares on the New York Stock Exchange was one of the largest in several years.

SECURITY LOAN GAIN BOOSTS INTEREST

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER.

(Copyright, 1929, Universal Service, Inc.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—To a greater extent than ever before, American economic activity is being financed by loans secured by stocks and bonds.

The power of control over the money market of the Federal Reserve is weakened, not only by the lack of eligibility for rediscount of ordinary collateral loans, but also because of the fact that non-member lenders, including corporations, investment trusts, individual and private bankers, have become increasingly important factors in enlarging the supply of loanable funds. The published weekly figures on brokers' loans include only those made through New York banks. They tell only part of the story. Norman Merriman and Arthur N. Wolkiser, Wall street statisticians, have estimated that total loans on securities by banks and others recently reached more than $18,396,000,000.

Much of the funds coming from non-banking lenders constitutes the stake for a huge bet between bulls and bears in Wall street. A good deal of such capital is in reality awaiting permanent investment, and actual purchase of securities is deferred because the owners think prices are too high. Strictly speaking, they refer the interest return on short term loans to brokers to the dividend yield on stocks at prevailing prices. Any reduction in interest rates on call loans or in stock prices tends to encourage a shifting from the role of lender to that of investor. Accordingly, at times of acute weakness, the market at lower rungs meets natural support.

CAUSE RATE RAISE

In commenting on the total of security loans, Merriman & Wolkiser pointed out: "The rapid growth of these security loans, which have increased at a much faster rate than have the bank resources of the country during the same period, has undoubtedly been one of the primary factors in causing a world-wide advance in interest rates, which has been especiallw marked in the United States. It was, we think, undoubtedly the primary reason for the advance in the New York Federal Reserve Bank rediscount rate on Thursday.

"Although the rapid growth in the total of these loans is strongly indicative of credit inflation, the assumption that deflation of such excess credit will necessarily involve all the painful consequences of the deflationary periods of 1907 and 1920 is by no means justified."

In apply the brakes, the Federal Reserve tends to give savings an opportunity to catch up with credit expansion.

Current discussions are characterized by loose thinking about Federal Reserve functions—and not only by the man on the street. The former Governor of New Jersey, Edward C. Stokes, president of the First Mechanics National Bank of Trenton, has sent Comptroller Pole a protest against the raising of the rediscount rate of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York from 5 per cent to 6 per cent. Mr. Stokes' criticism implies a belief that the Federal Reserve system was created by Congress as a subsidy to privately owned banks. He complains that the bank cannot make a profit by borrowing at 6 per cent at the Reserve Bank and relending funds to customers at 6 per cent. As Moran remarked to Mack in similar circumstance "we found that out."

DISCOURAGE BOARDERS

Mr. Stokes' generalization, however, applies only to banks that are loaned up to the limit of their own resources. Federal Reserve policy has long sought to discourage permanent boarders among the member banks who are always borrowing at the regional banks. Such banks are in reality using Federal Reserve credit in lieu of their own capital funds. The chief lending power of member banks rests on their own capital funds and on their deposits. The Reserve resources constitute an emergency reservoir from which the member banks may withdraw funds at times of seasonal peak needs or on special occasions when it has for a variety of reasons suffered heavy and unexpected withdrawals of funds by depositors.

Federal Reserve officials take the viewpoint that a member bank which regularly and continuously borrows at the Reserve bank and relends to customers is a profiteer.

At times of corrective movements, such as the stock market is now experiencing, it is important for the prudent investor to remember that public utility stocks have been selling at from 25 to 35 times earnings or more, whereas railroad stocks have been quoted at between nine and 12½ times earnings. If the utilities offer better prospects of future growth, it seems that the advantage has been amply discounted.

Mexico Considers Fuel Oil Tariff

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 13.—The tariff commission, which forms part of the Ministry of Finance, has for consideration a proposed new import duty on American fuel oil of 20 centavos per 100 kilos, approximately 15 cents a barrel. At present there is no such duty. Object of new tax is said to be protection of Mexican coal fields, located chiefly in the State of Coahuila, although the official contention is that the new charge is intended to replace existing consular invoices which amount to 4½ cents a barrel.

West coast oil consumers chiefly are affected by the new duty, as it is now cheaper for them to buy fuel oil in the United States than from Tampico because of the freight rates from Tampico. Several of the principal west coast consumers are fighting the new duty.

COPPER STOCKS INCREASE

NEW YORK, Aug. 13. — Total crude copper production by United States Mines and other supply to smelters amounted to 79,329 tons in July 1929 versus 82,354 in June, off 3,025 tons. This was at daily rate of 2,559 tons in July and 2,745 in June. In July 1928 production was 73,426 tons daily average rate 2,369 tons.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—(AP.)—Curb exchange stocks today continued to work higher, but the advance lacked the vigor of the rally in the two preceding sessions. The movement became irregular at midday as the leaders were called upon to absorb considerable selling.

A handful of specialties were sent soaring into record high ground. The investment trusts were strong and a few of the airplane issues broke through to new highs. Call money renewed at 8 per cent, but the tone was easy with funds reported being loaned in the outside market at 7.

Crocker Wheeler, electric stock, again spurted forward to a new high, leaping 74 points to 474. One Wall street rumor has it that the stock is to be split up. The company has been benefiting from the increase in electrification of industry.

The utilities opened strong, but encountered persistent selling on the upswings and sold off around midday. Prices for the most part held above last night's closing. Nevada California Electric opened at a new high at 92½, up 2½ points, and then dropped below 90. Electric Investors started off strong above 277 and then dropped to below 270 for a net loss. Electric Bond and Share maintained most of its early gain. American Superpower sold lower for a time.

Insull Utility Investment continued strong, ranging from 111½ to 114. Last night it closed at 110½. Insurance Securities was pushed upward on announcement of its acquisition of New York Indemnity. Interstate Equity, trading company formed by the Bancamerica Blair Corporation interests, after holding fractionally above 20 for several days, ran up to 22, while Tricontinental Corporation again broke through to a new high. National Investors approximated its high price above 190.

In the air group Dayton Airplane and Aero Supply B both reached new tops on small advances. Curtiss Wright issues were firm, while Aviation Corporation, which reported net profit of $787,187 from March 19, when it started business, to June 30, neared 19. Air Investors was strong on reported net income of $147,200 for the second quarter compared to $138,300 in the first three months of the year. Net earnings for the six months are equal to 96 cents a share.

Following is the list of transactions on the New York Curb Exchange, giving all stocks and bonds traded (00 omitted in sales column of stock list; 000 omitted in sales column of bond list):

MACK IMPROVES OPERATING INCOME

Gain in Profits On Smaller Volume of Business Shows Company's Strong Position

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—While sales of heavy-duty motor trucks have not shown increases during the first six months of this year as anticipated earlier in the year, Mack Trucks has been showing favorable gains in earnings on a volume of business which is only moderately in excess of a year ago.

It is estimated that company's shipments during the first six months of 1929 were around 4,700 units against 4,650 in the first six months last year. Profits for the first six months of this year, however, amounted to $3,911,128 or $5.17 a share on 755,625 shares of capital stock against $2,830,055, or $3.84 a share in the first six months of 1928, a gain of $1,081,073 or 38 per cent. The gain in output during the first six months was around 1 per cent as compared with a year ago.

PROFITS INCREASED

The larger part of the company's gain in earnings this year was registered during the first quarter, when both output and profits were substantially in excess of last year. During that period, Mack earsed $1,429,587, or $1.89 a share, on its stock, against $745,672, or $1.01 a share in the preceding year. In the second quarter of the year, shipments were below those of the second quarter a year ago, but profits were larger at a total of $2,481,541, or $3.28 a share, against $2,084,383, or $2.83 a share, in the second quarter of 1928.

Earnings during the second quarter were somewhat short of the company's previous record performances during this period, but considering the sales situation they show the company operating in a very satisfactory condition notwithstanding a restricted market. When business in this field improves the company is apparently in position to increase materially its profits over previous performances, due to the various economies which have been introduced during the past three years of comparatively lean business.

GOOD FIRST HALF

Normally, Mack Trucks enjoys its most active business and largest earnings during the first six months of the year with some recession during the final half. Second quarter earnings usually set the peak for the year. However, due to low earnings during the first quarter of 1928, Mack last year showed its largest earnings in the final six months of the year, reporting net profit for that period at $3,085,246 against $2,830,055 in the first half year.

Based on the present outlook, sales and earnings for the final six months of the current year will be somewhat below those of the first six months. While a gain in earnings over the corresponding period of 1928 like that shown in the first half cannot be expected, it is liktly that Mack will equal during the current six months the results in the final half of 1928, adding about $4 a share to its earnings of the first six months and bringing the full year's results to around $9 a share for the stock.

Montgomery, Ward Report Unfounded

CHICAGO, Aug. 13. — Reports which have been in circulation recently that Montgomery, Ward & Co. is to absorb the Hartman Corporation were denied by Albert S. Scott, vice president of Montgomery, Ward & Co., who branded the report as untrue, stating that it has absolutely no basis in fact. Hartman officials refuse to discuss the matter, but intimated that strength in Hartman shares was probably due to the fact that the income statement for the first six months of 1929 will be published soon. Sales for July are understood to have been 25 per cent over July, 1928.

Gas Companies Seeking Eastern Markets

FILING of an application by Columbia Gas & Electric Company with the New York State Public Service Commission asking authority to acquire the common stock of the Binghampton Gas Works is another move in the great utility chess game now being played by the most important interests in the industry. Attention has been centered on the New York and New England territory for some time, both in the power field and in the gas business.

Several weeks ago the Niagara-Hudson combine was formed, representing a consolidation of power companies in the northern and western New York industrial areas. More recently the activities of the utility interests have been turning to the gas end of the business. Last week the Koppers interests announced a Massachusetts association to participate in the ownership and management of Bay State gas companies and Associated Gas and Electric entered the market with offers for the two gas companies in the Boston district.

Strive for Outlets.

THESE activities represent a struggle for markets to absorb natural gas production from western territory and also the gas output of by-product coke ovens. The New England territory, teeming with population and manufacturing activities, large and small, is one of the most desirable markets open to the gas producers. Massachusetts with its several industrial centers and its large population is the key state of the New England tier.

Massachusetts laws in resepect to public utilities, however, do not permit ownership of gas or electric companies serving Massachusetts communities by so-called "foreign" corporations, that is, corporations of other states. This accounts for the formation of Massachusetts companies by such interests as Koppers and Associated Gas in their program of utility acquisition in that state. These Massachusetts companies are usually known as associations and are created through a declaration of trust.

Augments Gas Supplies.

ACQUISITION of the Binghampton Gas Works by Columbia Gas will enable the latter to augment its supplies of gas being carried in the lines purchased last year from the New York Transit Company. This line runs from Olean, N. Y., east to a point near Binghampton and then turns south, running through New York and New Jersey to the terminus at Garfield, N. J. The artificial gas manufactured at the Binghampton works will serve as a supplemental supply to the natural gas carried through this line.

While it is not known whether Columbia contemplates entrance into New England proper, it is considered likely that the company will seek additional properties in Western or Central New York or that it will endeavor to obtain contracts for the supply of gas to cities and towns within its territory as now represented by ownership of the former New York Transit line. Service to Western and Central New York is a logical and natural extension of the territory already served in Ohio, Western Pennsylvania, Northern West Virginia, Northern Kentucky and parts of Indiana.

World's Largest System.

COLUMBIA'S natural gas system is the largest in the world. Recent activities of interests controlling Columbia in farther western territory indicate that the company may have plans for greatly enlarging its already extensive system. The Street interprets moves in the mid-western and southwestern producing areas as direct efforts in a program of natural gas transportation from those areas through the Central West and East to the Atlantic Seaboard. Delivery of Texas or Wyoming natural gas to Atlantic Coast cities is probably but a matter of time.

Lee Concession Canceled.

REPORTS from Washington that President Leguia, of Peru, had canceled the so-called Lee Concession involving 12,000,000 acres in the basins of the Huallaga and Maranon Rivers, in Peru elicited only mild interest here. The Benedum & Trees interests were reported at one time as having made extensive preparation to develop this property but it was stated at their offices yesterday that they had dropped the proposition after a survey and that the reports of the extensive development preparations were erroneous.

The concession was granted to Bertram E. Lee, an American, in 1926 and the contract contained certain stipulations which the Peruvian Government now alleges were not met. One was the construction of a railroad from Iquitos, on the Amazon River, to the Pacific Coast. Indications of petroleum deposits interested the Benedum & Trees organization in the property but after the survey it was decided development was not feasible.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—(AP.)—A sweeping investigation by the Senate Banking Committee of the financial, banking and speculative situation, unless alleged abuses are corrected is predicted by Senator Nye (Rep.), North Dokota.

Nye, in a statement, said that the Federal Reserve Law "has signally failed to meet expectations in respect of speculation" and added that the "Federal Reserve Board's own statements make the fact absolutely clear," "It is doubtful," he continued, "if any sound-minded economists can be found who really believes this condition of affairs is healthful to the nation or that it can fail to hurt the general business of the country. ZELLERBACH CO. IS IMPROVING POSITION

Big Pulp and Paper Producer Makes Money Throughout Low Period in Industry

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 13.—Increased earnings over the corresponding period of 1928 are anticipated when the first quarter report of Crown Zellerbach Corporation is published within the next few weeks.

For 1928 the company reported earnings equivalent after preferred dividends to $1.72 per share on the common compared with $1.55 in 1927. However, during the year the company maintained an average of approximately 50c a quarter for three quarters.

During one quarter the earnings dropped due to the forced shutdown of the Ocean Falls plant of Pacific mills on account of water shortage. To date the situation has been remedied and sufficient auxiliary power installed to secure continuous operation under any hydro conditions.

As Crown Zellerbach is the second largest American producer of pulp and paper, particular interest attaches to the company's progress and income advance that has been made during a period of admittedly low ebb in the national industry.

MAKING SPECIALTIES

Company profits have been maintained and will be reflected in the future program of the management of entering the field of the socalled paper specialties. While newsprint production comprises a substantial amount of the company's output no additional investment is contemplated in that direction until the present situation clears. Specialty products, however, were increased in May when the 100-ton daily capacity Kraft mill at Port Townsend was started. Although it may take several months to bring the mill to full production the entire output has been sold under contract for 10 years. Earnings from this plant will add appreciably to company's income during the current fiscal year.

EXPANSION PROGRAM

Further evidence of the aggressive selling and expansion program is seen in the announcement that the advertising account of the corporation has been placed with a large New York advertising agency. The amount of the appropriation and the lines to be covered has not been disclosed.

During the current season the company has also been fortunate in having timber losses due to fire less than normal, according to officials, although generally conditions in the Pacific northwest, where the bulk of the holdings are located, have been particularly conducive to forest fires this year.

The income gain shown by Crown Zellerbach Corporation in periods of national over-production demonstrates the ability of the management and the frst substantial sign of improvement in the national industry will doubtless be immediately shown in the earning statement.

RETAIL SALES HERE GROW

Retail sales in Pittsburgh during June showed an increase of 4 per cent over the same month last year, the Chamber of Commerce announced today. The gain is the more striking because Cleveland, Wheeling, Philadelphia, Chicago and many other cites reported losses. The figures were taken from Federal Reserve Bank reports.

In Cleveland and Wheeling there were decreases of 1.4 per cent and 8.7 per cent respectively.

Sales in Chicago showed a decrease of 1.8 per cent, and retail business in many southern and western cities was poor, New Orleans and Duluth-Superior showing decreases of 10 per cent below June sales of 1928. Philadelphia experienced a decrease of 4.2 per cent and Boston 5.4 per cent.

For the period January-June, inclusive, Pittsburgh showed a gain of 1.8 per cent, while Chicago gained only 0.8 per cent and Bolton 0.6 per cent. In the same period Philadelphia's sales dropped 2.2 per cent.

In Pittsburgh during June 64.7 per cent of all sales were on charge accounts; and 5 per cent of all sales were instalment sales.

More Miles From Tires. Make your old tires help you pay for the new! It may be economy for you to buy new tires when the old ones show wear, but it's needless waste to throw the old ones away. There are many hundreds, even thousands, of miles of service still in them—and many auto owners who have the time and mechanical ability are seeking just such as you have been throwing away. So advertise your used tires in the Classified Ads—it's economy for you, and economy for those who come to buy.

BUGS BAER Says

KNOCKING OFF HIS HUB CAPS

"Bugs" Baer

They project over building lines and are subject to condemnation under laws of public domain.

When you are twirling your wheel in an effort to make a three-foot harbor you will notice that the only thing that stymies you are your neighbors' hub caps.

By clever seamanship you cannot only park your bus, but you also shear off four hub caps.

Civil war means chauffeur against chauffeur.

Like that intrepid pilot along the Mississippi, you are holding her nozzle against the curb until the last galoot's ashore.

Then you step out to look at the damage. Four beautiful hub caps are loose on the cement plateau. Not much to look at, but like the monkey's child, all your own.

We know one bank president—and when we say we know one bank president—we mean one is enough to know—anyway. This gentleman makes paperweights of his captured hub caps.

In fact, or otherwise, there are many uses to which you can put hub caps.

It is very easy to furnish a home these days if you save all the damage that you do.

We visited the Van Louzes the other day. They live in the suburbs and as we went in the front door, their butler said:

Wait until they try that in Cicero!

MEN OF THE HOUR

This is G. Garlic Doakes, who has written the great American opera. His libretto lets all the principals be murdered in the first scene. A moment later the orchestra conductor commits suicide and goes home, thus leaving the audience to spend the rest of the evening visiting.

If women in the audience know they can visit after the first five minutes, perhaps they'll abandon their old practice of visiting through the first scene.

STOP THE PRESSES!

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 11.—While cleaning out an attic for a friend, Congressman Horace Frisby today discovered a bale of old newspapers which contained news of the World War.

The Congressman acted quickly.

Dropping everything else, Frisby hurried to the State Department, where he offered his services to the government. During the excitement he walked into a closed door, which, it was said, will cost $8 to repair. He was carried to the street by secret service men, who cheerfully posed for the above picture and then dropped everything to investigate Frisby's first aid suggestion.

'Welcome, Firemen;' Trite But Sincere to Visitors

"Welcome, Firemen!" is the sign hanging out in East Pittsburgh, where several thousand members of the Western Pennsylvania Volunteer Firemen's Association are holding their annual convention, which will close Saturday, after a week of business and social activities, parade and water battle. Thursday is parade day, always the big event of a firemen's convention.

Volunteer firemen are the greatest conventioners in the world. Their annual gathering, throughout our broad land, for many decades has been the yearly frolic to which members of volunteer fire-fighting organizations look forward to. "Welcome, Firemen!" is a legend. It has come to have a facetious meaning among humorous writers who refer to arrival of any delegation in any town as that of "visiting firemen," but in the town where the firemen actually are meeting the ancient greeting loses its triteness and becomes as sincere as if the expression were new.

Our smaller communities owe a debt of gratitude to the volunteer firemen who have organized to protect the homes and business places of the districts in which they live. They serve—pause on that—serve when called upon, willingly. So when they go to attend a convention, as many from our suburbs are attending in East Pittsburgh, the sign, "Welcome, Firemen!" has a most cordial meaning.

Equalization Vital Task For Naval Authorities

Now that the British government has again accepted real equality in every class of combatant ship as the future ratio between the British navies, the logical next step toward a successful negotiation would seem to be THE HONEST APPLICATION OF THAT PRINCIPLE.

Obviously, here is a task for the naval authorities of the two countries. It is certainly not a task to be entrusted to the politicians or diplomats or sentimentalists of either.

And if any yardstick other than tonnage is to be employed to equate the relative cruiser strength of the two navies, that yardstick must be acceptable to both the British and American naval authorities. They alone are competent to decide what constitutes REAL equality.

Of course, the British government will call upon the British admiralty to pass upon any yardstick proposed by the American government. And the British government will be guided in this technical matter by the admiralty's advice and counsel.

It appears, therefore, that the time has come when the Secretary of the Navy and the Chief of Operations and the General Board of the Navy should supplant the Secretary of State and the Undersecretary of State and the "parity experts" of the Department of State as the advisers of President Hoover concerning a new naval yardstick.

Equating cruisers of different tonnage, age, speed and gunpower is a technical task that can be performed only by the most highly trained technicians. We have these in our own Navy Department. We do not need to train any new ones in the Department of State. And certainly the American people will not permit their head servants to borrow any from the British admiralty.

Therefore, the sooner President Hoover calls to his council table Secretary Adams and Admiral Hughes and the members of the General Board, the sooner will the American people become convinced that there is some chance of a successful naval negotiation with the British government.

It is no reflection upon the legal ability of Secretary Stimson to say that he is not an authority upon the Navy. And it is no reflection upon the good intentions of the newly-appointed Undersecretary of State Mr. Cotton, to say that he is utterly unqualified to prepare a formula for the equating of British and American cruisers.

There was no difficulty about agreeing upon a yardstick at the Washington conference, where the United States scrapped capital ships to equate this class with the British.

There ought to be no difficulty about agreeing upon a yardstick to be used at the next conference, when some other nation must do the scrapping if real equality in every class of combatant ship is to be the ratio for the future between the British and American navies.

But that is NOT the question at issue.

Real equality in every class of combatant ship can only be measured by an HONEST yardstick, and if the naval authorities of the two countries cannot agree upon that yardstick, then the sooner the disagreement is arrived at and announced, the better it will be for the relations of the two countries.

For this is one of those vital matters where, as a distinguished British authority has declared, "ALL ARTIFICE IS OUT OF PLACE."

Sad Suicide

It Probably Did Not Happen.

London sends a sad story of a dog, deprived of a garden in which it used to play, committing suicide by swimming out to sea.

Touching, but improbable. Providence mercifully does not allow dogs or other animals to know anything about death.

So far as your little bounding pet knows, he will live forever and so will you, his master. No dog knows that if he swam out to sea in a straight line he would die. But a dog with rabies runs or swims straight ahead, not knowing where he goes. That might explain the suicide.

THE HEARST PAPERS DEMAND FOR AMERICA

1—SCHOOLS—MORE schools—BETTER schools—MORE ADEQUATE and more MODERN school buildings; the best TEACHERS and the best COMPENSATION for teachers; a SCHOOL SEAT and a LIBERAL EDUCATION for every child in America, native or foreign born.

AMERICA is the great melting pot of the world, and the product of the melting pot must be competent, educated, loyal, moral AMERICAN CITIZENS.

That is America's duty to itself and its contribution to the social organization.

THE schools are for all children; and all the children should there be taught and trained and graduated in that KNOWLEDGE WHICH IS POWER and in an enlightened understanding of AMERICAN PRINCIPLES AND IDEALS.

THE government of a Democracy reposes in the hands of the people, and the success of that government, the progress, the prosperity, the perpetuation of the nation depend upon the EDUCATION of the people, and the ABILITY OF THE PEOPLE TO GOVERN.

SCHOOLS are the foundation stones of the republic. Make them STRONG and SOUND and SUFFICIENT.

A NEW SATELLITE

A second satellite of Earth
And rival of the Moon.

Soon in their orbits round the world
Aircraft will grow apace,
Till air fleets dense as Saturn's ring
Encircle us through space. N. H.

Bible Passages

Obey God

(The Acts 5, 17-32.)

THEN the high priest rose up, and all they that were with him, (which is the sect of the Sadducees) and were filled with indignation.

And laid their hands on the apostles, and put them in the common prison.

But the angel of the Lord by night opened the prison doors, and brought them forth, and said,

Go, stand and speak in the temple to the people all the words of this life.

And when they heard that, they entered into the temple early in the morning, and taught. But the high priest came, and they that were with him, and called the council together, and all the senate of the children of Israel, and sent to the prison to have them brought.

But when the officers came and found them not in the prison, they returned, and told,

Saying, the prison truly found we shut with all safety, and the keepers standing without before the doors: but when we had opened, we found no man within.

Now when the high priest and the captain of the temple and the chief priests heard these things, they doubted of them whereunto this would grow.

Then came one and told them, saying, Behold, the men whom ye put in prison are standing in the temple, and teaching the people.

Then went the captain with the officers, and brought them without violence: for they feared the people, lest they should have been stoned.

And when they had brought them, they set them before the council: and the high priest asked them,

Saying, Did not we straitly command you that ye should not teach in this name? and behold, ye have filled Jerusalem with your doctrine, and intend to bring this man's blood upon us.

Then Peter and the other apostles answered and said, We ought to obey God rather than men.

And we are his witnesses of these things; and so is also the Holy Ghost, whom God hath given to them that obey him.

ROMANCE

By Herbert Kaufman

PAIN seeks to bind me to this bed
And shut all warm and gold and gay
And crimson memories away,
But sound-proofed walls, and guarded door,
Which whispering nurses sit before,
Can never hold Romance at bay.

IMAGINATION brings her loom
And ever at my beck and call,
Breaks magic windows in the room
And picture-tapestries the wall.

THE storied seas around me play,
Slim Argive galleys slink the dawn;
Grim slave-whisps hiss above the spray;
A trumpet sounds, the raid is on.

KNIGHTS errant to the lists advance,
(ONE did not know that she was vile)
Her guerdon dangles on his lance,
He falls. But God has marked the smile
Of understanding flashed between
The victor and his secret quean.

AND I may ride in Aquitaine
With Eleanor and all her train,
While troubadours strum lutes again
And tho' Milady found them fit,

OR watch with Helen at the gate
(Where is the mold from which she cast?)
We gaze while valor, lust and hate
Make warp and woof for Trojan's fate;
Lust takes first trick and hate the last.

THEN Louis hums a roundelay,
And doffs the majesty of State,
For we're to Trianon away,
At miller-and-the-maid to play.
(The deluge gathers, soon the flood,
And Freedom's birth in Capet blood.
Yet what's a throne, to lose or win,
While there is so MUCH pretty sin?)

HER eyes were mad, her mouth was wine,
And I may DREAM that she was mine.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

YOUNG Mrs. Adams, bride of six months, wants me to write an article on this theme: "WOMEN LOVE MORE THAN MEN."

From which you might suspect that all things are not well. They aren't. Six months ago Elliot Adams was a tall and shining god. Today he's just an old meanie. He comes home late for dinner and hardly ever phones during the day. He forgets anniversaries 'n' flowers 'n' candy 'n' pretty speeches.

"He just works and works," wails his sad little wife, "and he insists that he's showing me his love when he does that. He can't see why I don't understand. But I'd rather have one of his kisses than all the work in the world."

So she wants me to write an article on the fact that women love more than men—and I'm going to disappoint her! For I don't believe they do.

Men love quite as much as women. They are as tender, as loyal, as sensitive and romantic—BUT THEY DON'T MAKE AS MUCH OF A FUSS ABOUT IT. And there's a reason for that.

Love is more than love to a woman—it is the technique of her PROFESSION OF MARRIAGE. Modern woman can earn her board 'n' keep in a thousand ways outside of marriage, but MARRIAGE IS STILL HER NATURAL JOB. And she still gets from it rewards and releases which she can get in no other way.

THE GREATEST CAREER ON EARTH CANNOT GIVE A WOMAN THE SENSE OF ACHIEVEMENT WHICH THE ACT OF BEING MARRIED GIVES HER FOR EVERY WOMAN IS A SQUAW FIRST AND A FEMINIST AFTERWARD AND ONLY THROUGH MARRIAGE CAN SHE ATTAIN PRIDE, POWER AND PLACE AMONGST THE OTHER SQUAWS.

Because of this, marriage is more than a romantic episode to a woman. It is, in spite of her hifalutin' language, the most important and practical transaction of her life and from the day she is a toddler she is taught, and rightly taught, the technique of romance. Just as a boy is taught the technique of work.

Women are greater adepts in the technique of romance than men. They attach greater importance to sentimental details than men. And they are wise in this. FOR SENTIMENTAL DETAILS ARE A VERY VITAL PART OF THE GOING-BUSINESS OF MATRIMONY. The executive who neglects details, in any line of business, will shortly pay for his folly. Successful wives develop and maintain the beautiful technique of their trade.

BUT THAT DOES NOT IMPLY THAT THEY LOVE MORE THAN MEN.

A MAN EXPRESSES AS MUCH DEVOTION BY HIS WORK AS A WOMAN DOES BY HER WILES.

A WILTED COLLAR MAY BE AS TRUE A PROOF OF LOVE AS A SHEAF OF ROSES AND 50 PHONE CALLS.

And modern women are beginning to realize this. The twentieth century wife who sniffles because husbands doesn't spend his time in playing the romantic lover, is more apt to get the ha-ha than a hand. For wives work now, beside their men. And they've learned the High Cost of Loving.

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS.

OF COURSE women generally know a lot more about business than the jokers pretend, but there are some still that don't know so very much about Wall Street and promissory notes, I reckon.

Anyway, they tell about a bride that was just settling down in Topeka. She had been the rounds of the department stores and such places, and she dropped into a bank. She went up to a man at a desk that said, "Open Accounts Here."

"I guess I'll open an account at your bank," she says.

"All right. Checking or savings?"

"I don't know what you mean, but I'm opening charge accounts at all the other places, you know, and I suppose you'll be glad to have our business on that basis, won't you?"

Homing Pigeon

DID you ever see a homing pigeon
Just released from darkness to the light?
Have you seen those wings, widespread and eager
For the swift rush of the homeward flight?
Have you seen the bird with rapture soaring
Seeking for an answer to his longing,
Finding some strange whisper waiting there?

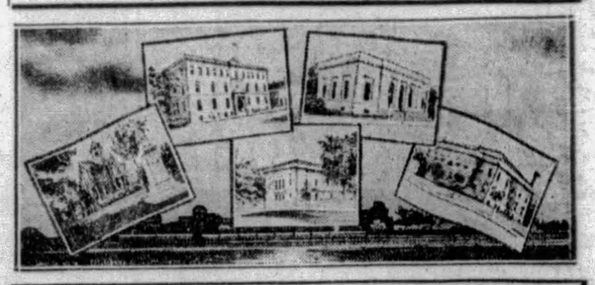
Cleaving upper heavens like an arrow
Flying through the night and through the day.
Like a homing pigeon is each kindness
Other hearts send seeking out to yours;
Every wish that love has ever fashioned
For your house of life will find its doors.

Red Wing 'Desirable City'

It Appreciates the Importance of Public Schools.



SOME PUBLIC BUILDINGS AT RED WING.

There is a fine little city called Red Wing, in Minnesota, with the Mississippi flowing past it, magnificent farming lands all around it, and many factories creating wealth.

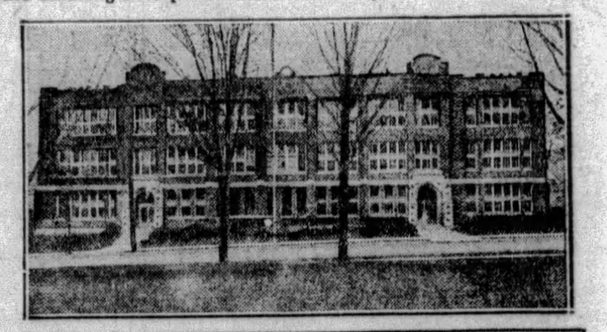
They are grateful that their ancestors created for them a combination of a New England village with all its charm, plus the hustling enterprise of a western city.



RED WING'S CENTRAL HIGH SCHOOL.

This is printed to emphasize the fact that Red Wing, kept well informed by Jens K. Grondahl's excellent Red Wing Republican, appreciates fully its most important possession, A FINE PUBLIC SCHOOL SYSTEM.

The citizens of Red Wing have been generous and grateful in their treatment of their city. They have given a municipal theater, a fine library, a beautiful park, and many other fine gifts.

But Red Wing's great pride is in the fact that it has "a public school as fine as any in the country, with modern buildings not overcrowded."

It has a civic music league, a symphony orchestra, four bands, and a drum corps, a Kiwanis club and an advertising club, but the public school is emphasized as the city's greatest asset.

An official pamphlet describing the city devotes one page to five public buildings, the courthouse, Y. M. C. A., etc., and another ENTIRE PAGE to one high school.

Let citizens continue to build from the Atlantic to the Pacific, fine primary schools and high schools, and this country will stand.

"Give light, and the people will find their own way." The light that the people need is the light of the mind, EDUCATION.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, August 13.—They were discussing plate cutting fast ones hurled by metropolitan wits. Each season brings a fresh crop of bold knights ready to shatter their comic lances for a rousing guffaw. Never was there such a demand for those who can whittle a wheeze.

While many of the satirical, ironical or just plain wise crackers are attached to newspapers, periodicals and the stage, there is an equally large number following more prosaic pursuits. One of the most dexterous is an expert accountant. Another is a life insurance solicitor.

And, of course, there is the army of horse play laugh provokers to be found around chop houses, speakeasy back rooms and in front of the Palace. Perhaps the humorist with the highest average of laughs in daily conversation is Irvin S. Cobb. He is always good for a howl.

Will Rogers, like so many others, needs an audience to uncork his swift patter. It is said his biggest laugh came in Los Angeles one day shortly after Fanny Ward arrived. He was lecturing when an usher came rushing down the aisle behind a little girl. "Don't step on that child," he shouted, "it might be Fanny Ward."

One of Bugs Baer's cracks that convulsed Broadway was his recounting an evening before in a swell restaurant. "I don't remember the initials," he added. A master of giddy idiocy is a comparative newcomer, Frank Sullivan. He has been dubbed "the king of absurdists."

He was clicking off one of his whimsical fantasies about a theatrical manager who ordered a faithless actor out in a snow storm. Sullivan tries to stop the manager with: "You wouldn't put a dog out on a night like this!" The manager sneered, "Oh wouldn't I?"—and, seizing a dog, puts it out.

Perhaps the most widely quoted femininist among the sharp shooting sophisticates is Dorothy Parker. She is credited with a biting satire especially adored by Algonquin cynics. Arthur Caesar has a quality of madness that drafted him to Hollywood along with Wilson Mizner, Grant Clarke and many others.

Word seeps back that the energetic Herbert Bayard Swope established the non-stop talking record at a London dinner party several weeks ago. His time in sustained talking was recorded at two hours and 40 minutes. That's conversation!

A fad for colored cigarets has caught on if window displays on Fifth and Madison avenues are criterions. The cigarets match the smoker's dress and are sold complete with leather cigaret case, holder and matches of the same shade.

The newest dance diversion is called "The Slowfox." It is a fox trot to slow music with dragging steps and half turns and is welcomed by the old boys with asthma and lame backs.

One of those from the Suez to the Strand cosmopolites on his way from Hollywood to New York recently stopped off at a small town in Kansas to visit a relative. His life had been attuned to city sidewalks, skyscrapers and the hurrah of modern madness. Expecting to remain only between trains his visit stretched into weeks. He is now building a home there and expects to remain permanently.

That crunching noise is Hollywood biting its nails to the quick. John McCormack, the singer, is to be paid $50,000 a week for ten weeks to make a movie. That, as Paper Collar Joe used to say, is "important money." And has never been topped by even the most elegant liar out there.

As one who would not give more than three heigh-hos, two hums and a single lack-a-day for all the talkies up to date it seems to me Mr. McCormack will not be overpaid if he is heard by audiences all over the land in just one song.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

So don't think you have more problems to face than your neighbor.

Often you think, however, that if others had such baffling questions arise as confront you many times they would not be able to surmount them.

People in the same sphere meet about the same conditions.

You may have more problems of a certain variety, while others would not consider your affairs problems at all, but would worry over totally different conditions.

Some are stronger to meet discouragement because they have the power of self-control developed to a degree that makes them seem brave.

They expect irritations and opposition and trials—and so should you.

Knowing that you will meet trouble, why not be prepared to let it trouble you as little as possible—let it skim over you, not down you?

It is broadening and strengthening to one's character to have to jump over or go around the ever-present big problems of life.
